Heath Scores Victory

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) —The governing Conservative Party buried its political hatchets today and closed ranks to acclaim Prime Minister Edward Heath once again as undisputed party leader.

Later, Heath told a wildly cheering audience of 3,000 rank-and-file delegates to the party's annual convention that Britain is going to take the place history has reserved for her and speak out again in international affiars.

"We're out in the world again," Heath said, rapping out his sentences and bringing the audience to its feet in a two-minute standing ovation.

"We're going to take the place history has reserved for us and speak with a voice that has been silent too long," Heath said. "We're out in the world again."

Speaking of Britain's entry into the European Common Market Jan. 1, 1973, Heath said, "In this new partnership we have a chance as a great people, as a formidable nation, as a shaper and moulder of the modern world to get back into action, to take up a part which I believe we have unique capacity to fill."

He described Britain's entry into Europe as "a new epoch in British service and influence on the whole society of man."

He said it is to begin this work that he will attend the Common Market summit meeting in Paris next week.

The delegates arrived Tuesday in a mood of some concern about the major issues plaguing the country—particularly inflation and high unemployment.

All these issues and many others were debated. Critics of the government let off steam but seemed generally to accept explanations by each of Heath's ministers in turn that the government is doing its best in difficult circumstances.

Soviet Jet Crashes, Up To 172 Die

Could Be Worst Single Civilian Air Disaster

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet jetliner carrying as many as 172 passengers and crew on a flight from Leningrad crashed last night near Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport, killing all aboard, the Tass news agency and an airport official said today. It would be the worst disaster in civil aviation history.

The jetliner, an Ilyushin 62 on a charter flight from Paris, was the second plane belonging to the state airline Aeroflot to crash in 12 days.

Western airline sources said they were told by Soviet airline officials the plane circled the fog-shrouded airport three times before it crashed near the village of Chernaya Gryaz on the main road to Leningrad. The crash scene was about seven miles west of the airport, the sources said.

UPI Correspondent Peter J. Shaw interviewed an official, who refused to give his name, at the airport's administration office who said, "The plane had 162 seats," and implied that all were filled. The official, who refused to identify himself, said the plane normally carries a crew of 10.

The official also confirmed the location of the crash.

A Tass announcement 17 1-2 hours after the crash acknowledged the accident but gave few details and no casualty toll.

Western sources said that about 50 French tourists were originally aboard the plane but disembarked in Leningrad. The sources were not sure if they were replaced for the flight to Moscow. A French embassy source said one French national was aboard when the plane went down.

Chilean Embassy officials said they were checking reports that the plane carried 38 Chilean citizens.

The airliner went into international service in 1967.

Shaw visited Chernaya Gryaz village and said residents told him they knew nothing about the crash. He said an official of a small hospital also said she was unaware of the accident.

Sheremetyevo, 18 miles north of Moscow, is the capital's main international air terminal and one of four serving the city.

The airport reportedly was tracking the aircraft on radar when the plane wentdown. Although the airport is equipped for instrument landings, the sources saidit was not known if the system was in use at the time.

The Tass announcement, issued at 3 p.m., said:

"A passenger airliner which was on its way from Leningrad to Moscow crashed in the area of Sheremetyevo airport on Oct. 13 at 9:50 p.m., it is announced here.

"Both the passengers and crew lost their lives. A government commission has been ap-

Rain Doesn't Dampen Opening

By MARLENE FREEDMAN

Sears Roebuck officially opened its San Rafael store at Northgate Mall today, attracting bargain-hunters, thousands of young Winnie the Pooh fans and those wanting a free breakfast. (See other story, page 10.)

Despite occasionally heavy showers, more than 2,000 persons had lined up outside the store by 6:30 a.m.

Sears officials served a free breakfast, serenaded first-day customers with the Marin Banjo Band and distributed free games, food and goldfish.

Shortly before the store opened at 8 a.m., a giant-sized Winnie the Pooh appeared outdoors and performed until his costume got drenched. To the delight of balloon-carrying children, he and his companions, Tigger and Eeyore, — took turns drying off inside the store and returning to sing and dance.

When the doors opened, a sea of umbrellas, raincoats and boots entered. Some youngsters ran to the toy department and Christmas items already on display, but others followed the Winnie the Pooh characters wherever they went.

"There he is, let's go see him again", one youngster squealed. His mother exhorted, "Get in there this time and get a balloon."

Sales clerks were busy giving directions, routing lost children to the personnel department and ringing up purchases.

One little girl was sitting in the lost child department sobbing when Winnie the Pooh walked by. She ran from her chair, no longer crying, and said, "I want to see the Pooh."

The nurse at the first aid office said she had treated a minor cut and filled a call for aspirins.

During the rainy wait outdoors, one disconsolate mother, standing with her eager child, held an umbrella tightly, shrugged and said, "A promise is a promise."

The store was opened yesterday to preferred customers. The only marring incident both days was a demonstration by a small group protesting the store's use of an astrology theme for promotional purposes.

Crowds of 5,000 had been forecast for today's opening and arrangements had been made to shuttle patrons from an auxiliary parking lot at the Civic Center to the mall. By midmorning, buses were not in use, however.

San Marin Is Winner Over San Rafael High

San Marin High School scored a stunning upset last night, beating defending co-champion San Rafael, 18-12, on the losers' field to open a weekend of Marin County Athletic League football action.

In a North Bay League game, Petaluma beat Vallejo, 7-6, in a key battle on Petaluma's Durst Field.

Marin CatholicHigh broke a four-game losing streak, beating Healdsburg in a non-league game in Healdsburg.

Grid action continued today, with Terra Linda visiting Redwood in an important meeting, while Drake and Novato round out weekend Marin County Athletic League play at Tamalpais High. Both were afternoon contests. Tomales will travel to Petaluma to meet St. Vincent at 8 p.m. today.

Rain, Other Events Cut Into San Rafael Town Hall's Crowd

By MARY LEYDECKER

A crowd of up to 200 persons, much of it representing the business and civic community, gathered today at Dominican College to discuss the future of San Rafael.

The rain, the official opening of the new Sears Roebuck store at Northgate and the first game of the World Series were variously blamed for a smaller crowd than sponsors of the meeting — first of its kind in the city — had anticipated.

Television reporter Ron Majors, a resident of the city, opened the day-long session by posing such questions as: Is San Rafael a hodge-podge of signs and various styles of architecture or is it an orderly, well-planned community?

He accompanied his question with slides of scenes in the city which could lead to either conclusion.

Majors contrasted a view of Mount Tamalpais blocked by an auto dealer's parking lot with pictures of pleasant residential areas.

He also showed a picture of the delivery entrances and trash pickup areas behind Montecito Shopping Center which border on the San Rafael Canal. The area might have been a municipal yacht harbor if it had not been sold for development 10 years ago, Majors said.

As the new Sears store was drawing huge crowds, Majors suggested that the facility may cause traffic problems.

He told the audience "there are no hard and fast answers" as to how San Rafael can preserve open space and still provide housing for low and middle income persons.

Majors pointed out that the median price for San Rafael homes this year is $44,000 and the apartment vacancy rate only 3 per cent.

After the opening remarks, participants broke up into workshops to discuss community development, open space, housing and recreation, as well as "pet peeves." Several city officials were available in the latter workshop in order to answer questions by residents who had special gripes on such

20 Pct. Hike In Voter Registration

Peter C. Meyer, county elections officer, disclosed today that 126,928 Marinites are registered for the Nov. 7 election, nearly a 20 per cent increase over the primary total.

He described the rise as "fantastic," attributing it to an unprecedented registration drive.

A total of 106,244 Marinites was registered for the June primary election.

"San Francisco has added only 30,000 and they're four times our size," Meyer remarked.

Deadline for Nov. 7 registration was last Sunday.

Meyer's figures showed a further widening in Democratic registration over Republican. Democrats counted 52,544 for the primary, but now have 63,-610. Republican registration increased from 42,235 to 50,723.

Other figures were: declined to state party preference, up from 7,353 in the primary to 11,483; Peace and Freedom Party, down from 903 to 891; American Independent Party, 157 to 164, and miscellaneous, 52 to 57.

Meyer didn't know at present how many of the new registrants are 18-to-21 year olds, voting in a presidential election for the first time.

He said total registration is expected to decline about 10 per cent after Nov. 7, when the traditional two-year "purge" from the rolls of voters who have moved from the county occurs.

Mrs. McGovern Still In Hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleanor McGovern is in "good condition" at Georgetown University Hospital, the McGovern campaign office said today.

Spokesmen said that Mrs. McGovern, wife of Democratic presidential nominee George S. McGovern, will remain in the hospital today to get "more rest".

School Consultancy Work Is Solicited

By PAT PERRY

First of two articles

Lawrence I. Kramer, president of the San Rafael Board of Education, and Frank L. Miller, a trustee of the Tamalpais High School District, have approached school board members and administrators throughout Marin County, soliciting business for their consulting firm.

The "KM and A Report" from Kramer, Miller and Associates Inc., mailed to trustees and administrators states: "We want to remind old friends that we are still here and introduce ourselves to board members and professionals with whom we have not yet worked."

A business reply form adds: "We invite you to meet with us (without obligation, of course) to discuss the ways in which we might be of help to your organization."

Kramer, chairman of the board of the San Francisco consulting firm, acknowledged that he had sent the mailing to his fellow San Rafael school board members:

"I sent it to my colleagues on my board because I have been working with them for years, I presume they would be interested - I know damn well they wouldn't talk any business.

"If you look around schools in Marin County and look at school board members you will see people who serve on the boards of many agencies. These happen to be the bulk of our client body. They do know us and they do know we have some track record, and it's also a means of familiarization."

Kramer emphasized that he considered there was nothing unethical in the business mail-

THE POLITICAL SCENE

McGovern At Cow Palace

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Amid signs the gap between the candidates is narrowing slightly, Sen. George S. McGovern continued a thus far successful sweep down the West Coast today while Republican strategists laid plans for increased campaigning by President Nixon.

McGovern marked the end of five days of intensive cross-country campaigning late Friday with a rally at San Francisco's Cow Palace that local observers said exceeded the 22,000 persons John F. Kennedy attracted there in his race against Nixon 12 years ago.

Earlier at Portland, Ore., a noontime crowd estimated at more than 5,000 gathered in front of historic Pioneer Court House to hear the Democratic nominee.

The White House meantime announced that Nixon would give a 15 minute radio address Sunday afternoon to discuss the problems of crime and drug addiction and what he had done to solve them.

Nixon was to meet today with the first delegation of mainland Chinese physicians to visit the U.S. in nearly two decades before flying to Camp David to polish his radio speech.

The White House also said Nixon would be holding one and perhaps two news conferences before the Nov. 7 election and that although there were no plans for campaign appearances next week, he would be making some after that since Congress would be adjourned.

In New York the Sindlinger polling organization reported Nixon's huge lead over McGovern had been trimmed slightly in recent weeks by some defections, by an increase in the number of undecided voters and by an increase in the proportion of eligibles who now intend to vote.

The latest poll of 2,311 eligible voters, conducted Sept. 29-Oct. 5 by telephone, found 60.5 per cent planning to vote for Nixon, 21 per cent for McGovern and 18.5 per cent undecided. In the previous week's survey Nixon's lead was 62.1 per cent to 21.5 for McGovern. The proportion of eligible voters who actually intended to vote jumped more than 2 per cent to 58.5 per cent between the two polls.

McGovern, concentrating on the corruption issue, proposed a seven point ethics-in-government standard he said he would ask Congress to enact if he is elected.

It included full financial disclosure by higher paid federal employes, a required five-year wait before employes could hold private industry jobs relating to their government work, and establishment of an office of investigations separate from the Justice Department to examine charges of corruption.

In other developments:

The Texas legislature extended McGovern an invitation to address it, probably Monday.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, addressing a fund-raising dinner sponsored by the New York State Conservative party, said that compared to "McGovern's venemous rhetoric, my statements look like something out of the pages of 'Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm.'"

Sarent Shriver told a Cleveland rally "We have come to a stage when we are more surprised than•e are shocked by deceit. Truth has become a victim of war, a casualty in Washington."

The American Independent Party filed a $25.2 million suit in behalf of their presidential candidate, John Schmitz, against three major television-networks chargingthere has been "a virtual news blackout" of the party's campaign.

UAW In Series Of Walks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The United Auto Workers apparently has begun a series of short strikes against the world's largest auto maker in a running dispute over a controversial management costcutting team. More than 14,500 workers walked out of three vital General Motors Corp. assembly plants Friday and three other GM plants approach strike deadlines next week.

The first to walk out were the 2,350 members of UAW Local 549 of the main Fisher Body stamping plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Six hours later 3,700 members of UAW local 10 left the General Motors assembly Division (GMAD) plant in Doraville, Ga., followed closely by a walkout of 8,500 hourly workers from UAW Local 25 at the St. Louis GMAD Assembly Plant.

A GM spokesman in Detroit said the Mansfield walkout alone, if continued, could stop virtually all GM assembly operations, including those in Canada and Mexico, just as sales hit record levels for the giant.

An early morning settlement at a Van Nuys, Calif., GMAD Assembly Plant presented one bright spot for the firm. The plant, which builds Chevrolet Novas, Oldsmobile Omegas and Pontiac Venturas, would have been struck early Friday but for the last-minute agreement. UAW spokesmen have also reported problems solved at the Parma, Ohio, and Detroit Fleetwood plants.

But GM heads are turning to three other assembly plants where workers have threatened to walk out no later than next Friday unless production standard disputes are settled.

GM's Fairfax, Kan., plant has set a strike deadline for next Thursday, and plants at Arlington, Tex., and Janesville, Wis., face shutdowns next Friday.

The battle between the union and GMAD, a management team cutting costs through such measures as elimination of some manpower, has been running for some time. As production of 1973 models started, the union charged "inhuman" cutbacks in the work force had created more work per employe.

It remains to be seen whether the UAW will prolong the strikes.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Assassin Victim

BELFAST (UPI) — Police found another Ulster assassination victim in Belfast today, the 68th since July, a spokesman said.

Officers found the body of a man, shot in the head, in the Castlereagh Road area of East Belfast where Protestant mobs rioted for two nights earlier this week.

"This looks like another of the assassination killings," the spokesman said.

The murder raised the toll for three years of feuding between majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and the army in Northern Ireland to 602 dead.

Students Felled

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Forty-eight high school students returning from a football game were struck by food poisoning last night and treated at Confederate Memorial Hospital.

All but five of the students, who attend Carroll High School at Monroe, La., were treated and released.

The remaining students were kept overnight for observation and a hospital spokesman said they would be released today after they were examined by doctors.

Authorities said some of the students became ill before they left the game and by the time they reached nearby Bossier City, La., "they were getting sick by the score."

Carrier Fight

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Navy announced yesterday that a fight between black and white sailors on the carrier USS Kitty Hawk, on duty off the coast of North Vietnam, resulted in injuries to 46 persons.

The Navy said an investigation will be launched into the incident. The ship remains on duty at its present position.

Three of the sailors were injured seriously enough to be flown to hospitals ashore after the incident which Pacific Fleet headquarters described in a brief statement as an "altercation."

The Navy said the incident flared Thursday Vietnam time while the 1,062-foot carrier was on Yankee Station off North Vietnam as part of the Seventh Fleet.

Oil Slick Fight

MEXICAN HAT, Utah (UPI) — Crews set up huge booms yesterday to catch an oil slick before it spills into Lake Powell and oil company workers began scraping a black sludge coating off the sandstone cliffs beside the San Juan River.

The slick was expected to reach the first of three 1,500-foot styrofoam booms thrown across the mouth of the 186-mile long man-made lake today.

When it reaches the booms, straw will be dropped by planes to sop up the oil. Huge drag lines will pull the sodden straw from the river to be burned or buried.

About 168,000 gallons of crude oil gushed from a ruptured pipeline into an irrigation ditch which funnelled it into the scenic San Juan River three days ago.

Sets Concessions

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende offered a series of concessions today to striking truck drivers in efforts to end a walkoutthat has crippled delivery of vital products across the nation.

Allende said he will free more than 400 jailed drivers and return 350 trucks seized by the government if the strikers return to work.

Otherwise, Allende said, he will never authorize the return of the trucks to their owners. "This is not a threat, it is a decision," he said in a nationally broadcast midnight speech.

The Socialist president also warned the government will bring legal action against shops that fail to open. Thousands of retail establishments closed yesterday to support the strikers.

Supports Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Times, calling President Nixon the best choice for the voter of the center of the political spectrum, endorsed him for re-election in an editorial prepared for its Sunday editions.

The Times cited Nixon's record in foreign affairs and his handling of the 1971 economic crisis as reasons for the endorsement.

"For the voter who seeks reasonable answers to present problems, the choice in 1972 is clear. The Times recommends the reelection of PresidentNixon."

Brothers Freed

HONG KONG (UPI) — Two British brothers detained by China for five years crossed into Hong Kong today carrying all their possessions in bundles. They told border officials they were pleased to see them but did not discuss their detention.

Percival Farmer, 46, and his brother+rederick, 45, detained in China since September 1967, were arrested duringthe Cultural Revolution on charges of contravening the laws of the People's Republic of China.

Avoids Red Face

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service, monitor for price controls, has headed off what it called a potential "embarrassment."

The Government Printing Office was planning to raise the price of the IRS book on income tax preparation from 75 cents to $1. The increase would have been 33 per cent. President Nixon's price guidelines suggest increases of 2.5 per cent.

GPO said the fair value of the book should be $1.50, but it will remain at its old price.

Fifth 'Ace' Of Viet Air War

SAIGON (UPI)—An American airman shot down a Soviet-made MIG jet over North Vietnam to become the fifth "ace" of the war but two other U.S. planes were reported lost and their four crewmen listed as missing, military spokesmen said today.

On the political front, President Nguyen Van Thieu called home his ambassadors to the Paris peace talks, the United States and Britain for "further consultations."

Capt. Jeff S. Feinstein, 27, of East Troy, Wis., an Air Force F4 Phantom "weapons systems operator," was credited with his fifth MIG downing over North Vietnam Friday when he downed a MIG21 40 miles west of Hanoi, the spokesmen said. Piloting the Phantom was Lt. Col. Curt Westphal, 43, of Bonduel, Wis.

But U.S. Command spokesmen disclosed the downings "to unknown causes" of an Air Force F4 and a Marine Corps A6 Intruder over the North Vietnamese panhandle. The Phantom was downed Tuesday and the Intruder Thursday and the two-man crews of each were listed as missing in action.

Clearing weather over the North Friday enabled American warplanes to carry out 330 strikes, the heaviest raids in three days. B52s also struck the North with 10 missions, a communique said. No B52 raids were flown over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos or Cambodia.

Field reports said South Vietnamese troops today cleared two more hamlets of Viet Cong units in heavy fighting along Highway 13 north of Saigon. One battle was reported within 13 miles of the capital.

Military spokesmen also reported three clashes late Friday and early today near Trang Bang, 30 miles northwest of Saigon. They said government infantrymen supported by tanks killed eight Communists and at a cost of four dead and one wounded.

Field reports said South Vietnamese troops today cleared the last Viet Cong out of Xom Suoi, 22 miles north of Saigon, but virtually leveled it with air and artillery strikes. They also reoccupied the hamlet of An My, 17 miles from the capital.

Saigon spokesmen said an observation plane Friday spotted 140 survivors of the overrun Central Highlands camp at Ben Het and they were lifted to safety aboard helicopters which took them to the province capital of Kontum, 260 miles north of Saigon.

Ben Het was captured by the Communist for the first time in the war late Thursday. It is a former U.S. Green Beret outpost 280 miles north of Saigon near the triborder area of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. There were no reports of fighting today around the camp, situated on three hills and surrounded by 2,500-foot mountains and plateaus.

The MIG21 downed Friday over North Vietnam was one of a flight which approached U.S. planes north of Hanoi, spokesmen said.

"The flight of four MIGs broke into twos for the attack," Feinstein said. "Meeting them head on, we maneuvered to get off a shot."

Teacher-Student Racial Imbalance

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A report presented yesterday to the State Board of Education shows California schools have nearly a 30 per cent racial imablance between teachers and students.

The study, a follow-up on a 1967 report, showed that 29 per cent of all pupils represent ethnic and racial minority groups while minority teachers make up about 10 per cent of the state's staff.

The widest gap was among the Mexican-American students, who make up 16 per cent of the pupil population. The report said 2.6 per cent of all teachers are Mexican-Americans.

The report, prepared by the Bureau of Intergroup Relations, was based on student-teacher totals in the fall of last year.

Marin City Plans Will Be Studied

The Marin County Planning Commission, meeting Monday at 9 a.m. at Civic Center, will review plans by a Washington, D.C., firm to build 444 apartment and townhouse dwellings in Marin City.

The firm, Mid-City Developers, was selected this week by the county redevelopment agency to complete development of the remaining 36 acres of residential land in the community redevelopment project.

The commission also is expected to discuss the recent state Supreme Court Ruling that major construction projects undergo environmental impact studies.

The ruling, result of a legal battle between conservationists and a developer in Mono County, has disrupted regular planning review throughout the state.

On the planning commission's agenda, for instance, 20 of the 22 items scheduled for hearings have been postponed pending a decision on which need environmental impact reports.

Most have been delayed to Oct. 30. They include an assortment of hearings on zoning and development matters.

Youths Will Canvass For Memorial Funds

Teen-age volunteers will canvass Novato next week to collect funds for a memorial plaque for a Novato boy and obtain donations for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Alameda.

The campaign was organized by Debbie and Linda Curry of 102 Grande Vista, Novato, under authorization from St. Jude children's research hospitals.

The drive was inspired by the death of Alec Eugene Bernadsky, 14, of 1 Plaza Loma, who succumbed Sept. 8 from brain damage. Young Bernadsky was injured in an accident in the Philippines 14 months before. During treatment at a hospital there, Bernadsky's life's processes stopped for 10 minutes. He was revived, but suffered brain damage. He had been hospitalized since that time.

The plaque with his name, age and cause of death will be placed in the original St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. The balance of the money collected will go to the Alameda hospital.

Ocean Voyager Back To Going It Alone

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Pat Quensal, trying to row to Hawaii, is down to going it alone...again.

John Martineau of Redding, Quensal's latest partner on the voyage, was brought in by a Coast Guard cutter early today after complaining of a kidney disorder.

Martineau was taken off Quensal's 22-foot dory last night when the boat was 70 miles west of Point Reyes.

Martineau and Quensal, of Vaughn, Wash., left Half Moon Bay last Sunday in the Washington man's most recent attempt to reach the islands.

Quensal first set out in June from La Push, Wash., with another crewman. But the dory was forced to put in here because of bad weather and the man decided to quit.

Another sailor joined the effort and Quensal shoved off again. But the second seaman also decided he did not want to go on and Martineau got aboard at Half Moon Bay.

Reagan Will Hit Trail Next Week For President

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, who has made recent campaign trips for President Nixon in Texas and Oklahoma, will travel to Pennsylvania and Illinois next week to stump for the chief executive.

The governor's office announced Friday that Reagan will appear Monday in Philadelphia and Scranton at GOP events.

On Tuesday, Reagan will appear before the Inland Daily Press Association's annual meeting in Chicago and later attend a GOP rally at Bradley University in Peoria.

The governor also will do some campaigning for Nixon next week in California, appearing Sunday at a Japanese-American Republicans rally at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

Reagan also will throw out the first ball at the fourth World Series game Wednesday night in Oakland.

Zoning Board Denies 2 Pleas

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Zoning Adjustments has approved a mobile home request, but denied two variances for Petaluma residents.

The board granted the request of Eleanor Siemer for a mobile home for an agricultural employee at 4235 Spring Hill Road.

The board, meeting Thursday, rejected a variance request by Phillip A. Waterman for a garage addition to his home at 465 Thomapson Lane that would have reduced the sideyard line, and rejected Leon Bohling's request to reduce the minimum lot size on his property at 898 Liberty Road.

Rise In Interest Draws Response

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The upward creep in interest rates has brought the second critical administration response in as many days.

In diplomatically tough language, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns said Thursday he hoped banks would be "increasingly mindful" that escalating interest rates could sabatoge the government's economic stabilization program.

As an added incentive to toe the line, Burns said the administration's Committee on Interest and Dividends "would extend its surveillance to earnings of banks and other financial institutions."

Congress Is Near Adjournment; Senate Approves Spending Limits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With two big pocketbook issues and welfare reform remaining to be settled, Congress toiled toward adjourning its 92nd session today.

While campaign-thirsty legislators pressed to get home, the action centered on conference committees trying to reconcile differences on highways, spending limits and welfare.

The Senate after hours of debate last night approved a measure to limit federal spending to $250 billion in the fiscal year ending next June 30. The Senate provisionwould permit President Nixon to cut spending across-the-board to achieve the ceiling.

Sens. Alan Cranston and John Tunney, both D-Calif., voted with the majority Friday as the Senate passed the $30.2 billion revenue sharing bill on a 59-19 roll call vote.

The House bill gave the President unprecedented authority to cut where he chooses or even eliminate programs approved by Congress.

Conferees also worked to write a compromise between an $18 billion Senate welfare reform bill and a $8 billion House bill. The welfare bills included social security increases.

Also in dispute were bills to continue the highway construction program. The Senate version would tap the highway trust fund for urban mass transit systems, inluding railroad commuter trains. The House bill would keep the fund, financed by highway fuel taxes, committed to roadbuilding.

The Senate-passed spending limit was a rider on a bill authorizing a temporary increase in the national debt from $450 billion to $465 billion. This was a must to keep the government from going bankrupt after the permanent debt limit reverts to $400 million Oct. 31. The national debt stands at $432 billion.

Nixon has insisted that the Congress give him authority to trim back federal spending to $250 billion this year as an inflation-fighting device. The House agreed, abandoning for the first time since the Republic was established, Congress' right to designate how and to what limits the President could spend tax money.

The Senate insisted in its version that Congress retain a measure of control. It exempted from the presidential axe nine categories: Interest on the national debt; Veterans benefits and services; Social Security trust fund benefits; Medicaid; Public assistance maintenance grants; Food stamps; Military retirement pay, and Judicial salaries.

In a burst of adjournment-eve activity, Congress sent to the White House:

—A landmark bill to share $30.2 billion of federal funds with state and local governments;

—A $4.7 billion appropriations bill containing $350,000 to keep alive the controversial subversive activities control board, but stripped of its only remaining duty to investigate political dissidents.

—A bill prohibitinglocalities from imposing head taxes on airline passengers;

—A $74.4 billion appropriations bill to run the Defense Department although it is $5.2 billion less than President Nixon requested.

Lost in the pre-adjournment shuffle was legislation imposing federal controls on strip mining, a practice assailed by environmentalists for its damage to the rural landscape.

'Letter Bomb' Hurts Mail Room Handler

NEW YORK (UPI)—A "letter bomb" mailed from Malaysia exploded in the hands of a worker in a Bronx post office today.

The postal worker, whose hands were severely ripped by the blast, was rushed to a hospital in fair condition. Police said he was "lucky to be alive."

A brass percussion cap contained in the bomb was lodged in the bones of the injured man's hand, and spokesman said most of the flesh on his hand was torn off by the impact.

Authorities said the explosive was apparently similar to two "letter bombs" receivedrecently by two former officers of Hadassah, the American women's Zionist organization. The earlier explosives, received in the mail here from Malaysia on Oct. 6 and Oct. 10, did not explode.

The orange envelope which exploded had been returned to the post office by its addressee, whom police would not identify. The letter contained a note which was torn apart by the blast.

The letter "blew up" when mail handler William Figueroa, 26, turned it over to reseal the envelope, a police detective said. The mail handler's cage was ripped apart by the blast and fragments flew 30 feet across the office.

One unidentified postal worker said the blast sounded like "a cherry bomb going off." He said Figueroa staggered out of the area of the explosion, "too stunned to say anything."

Several other "suspicious" orange-colored envelopes also were found in the post office. Police bomb squad investigators and the FBI were called to examine them.

The mailed bombs received here earlier this month were similar in design to the device that killed an Israeli embassy official in London last month. Both of the letters carried notes allegedly from Black September, the Palestinian guerrilla organization which claimed credit for the deaths of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics.

The current series of bombs was mailed from Penang, Malaysia, however. The original bombs discovered in September were mailed from Amsterdam.

Authorities in Malaysia, a Moslem country sympathetic to the cause of Arab guerrillas, reported they were investigating a youth group suspected of involvement in the bomb attempts.

CONSULT

ing, which went to San Rafael Schools Supt. John F. Plank and other administrators.

The San Rafael Municipal Code states it is a felony for any commissioner or officer to suggest that any employee trade with any certain person or firm.

Kramer said he and Miller have never done any business with any of the school boards on which they serve, "and would under no circumstances."

He said the mailing was simply "a description of how to choose a consultant."

Kramer, formerly on the Dixie District School District board, said "We don't work with school boards very much, but I don't see why we wouldn't work with districts in San Francisco or Oakland for instance."

The copy of the "KM and A Report" advocates the use of consultants "when boardand staff feel lokced-in to existing goals and procedures" when "there's an important job to be done," when objectivity is essential, and when special knowledge or experience is needed.

Throughout Marin County major school districts used outside consultants in the last school year in widely varying degrees.

ly Miller's own Tamalpais District which spent a total of $27,060 on consultants' fees in the 1971-72 school year.

At the other end of the spending scale, the Novato Unified School District spent "about $800 or $900" according to Supt. James G. Bunker. Dixie School District Supt. Clifford Campbell said the district had employed a consultant a few years ago for a teachers' in-service program, "but it's not our mode of operation."

The San Rafael Board of Education paid out $8,853 for outside consultants, a total that included $2,078 for the high school district, and $6,775 for the elementary district.

The Marin County Board of Education spent $7,349 last year, according to Joseph D'Amato, director of business services in its 19 different programs.

The Marin Community College District spent $5,646 for consultants in the 1971-72 school year.

Petaluman In Good Condition

A 20-year-old Petaluma man was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with head and facial injuries received in a three-car crash southbound on Petaluma Boulevard South near I Street.

Police said Timothy Peterson of 200 Price Drive was hurt about 10:25 p.m. yesterday when his auto crashed into the rear of a car operated by Terry Cook, 31, of 8177 Arthur Street, Cotati. The Cook vehicle had pulled from the curb into the path of his car, according to officers.

Horse Show Is Postponed

A horse show tomorrow benefitting Leonard Strikker, the Tamalpais Valley horseman who has been in a coma since he was thrown from a horse in June, 1971, has been postponed.

Organizers, owing the postponement to wet weather, said the event has been rescheduled for next Saturday and Sunday under a covered arena at the Santa Rosa fairgrounds.

Riding is scheduled in three areas — western, 4:30 p.m. Saturday; English, 8 a.m. Sunday, and gymkhana, 6 p.m. Sunday.

Admission to the event, sponsored by numerous horsemen's organizations, will be free, although donations are to be asked.

Lessening Of Showers Is Forecast

After a brief glimpse of blue skies yesterday, Marin and Southern Sonoma counties again were doused by rain today, but the weatherman predicted a lessening of showers for the rest of the weekend.

The National Weather Service forecast a 60 per cent chance of rain throughout the area tomorrow. Southerly winds are also expected.

During the 24-hour period ending at noon today, San Rafael had .67 inches of rain.

Other rainfall figures for Marin and Southern Sonoma, taking in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today, were: Petaluma, .35; Woodcare, .58; Terra Linda, .43; San Anselmo, .47; Novato, .45, Sausalito, .35, and Bolinas, .15.

Phone Rate Hikes Planned

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ATT) plans to seek increases of 10 to 15 per cent in nation-wide telephone rates over the next three or four years.

A spokesman haid rates will be increased by individual "operating companies" — local telephone companies, most of which are partially owned by ATT.

Increases would be sought, the spokesman said, in monthly telephone charges, long distance rates and installation charges, which may be more than doubled. He said existing charges of $15 to $25 may be increased to $40 to $45.

Could Provide A Shocking Forecast

TOKYO (UPI)—Kyoto prefectural police raided three factories manufacturing machines which produce a fortunetelling card when a 100-yen (about 30 cents) coin is inserted in a slot.

Police said about 20,000 of the machines had defective wiring, which might produce an electrical shock rather than a look into the future.

A Plot On Carson Is Broken Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police broke up an alleged attempt against television entertainer Johnny Carson, arresting two men and a woman at the drop site for "an extremely large amount" of money, authorities said today.

A note demanding money from Carsonhad threatened the lives of Carson and his family unless he complied with the demand, police said. The note was found on Carson's property last Monday.

Police kept Carson and persons close to him under surveillance, and instructions for dropping the money were received last night following "several contacts" during the week, officers said.

A police officer driving Carson's car dropped a container with undisclosed contents at a corner in suburban Van Nuys Friday night, and detectives arrested two men standing near the site and a woman parked in a car nearby moments later, authorities said.

The two men struggled with police and had to be subdued by force, officers said.

Richard Culkin, 32, his wife, Linda, 21, both of North Hollywood, and Richard Dziabacinski, 26, of Sun Valley, were booked for investigation of extortion, police said. Culkin and Dziabacinski were hospitalized for treatment of minor injuries.

pointed to investigate the cause of the disaster."

An American embassy spokesman said airport officials reported no Americans aboard the plane.

The Tass announcement was only the second time in six years the Soviet's have reported an airline disaster within 24 hours of its occurrence.

The last time was in 1966 when a TU114 crashed at Sheremetyevo Airport, killing 50 persons.

The Soviet's have yet to announce the crash of an Il18 reported by Western sources Oct. 2 near the Black Sea resort of Sochi which the sources said killed about 100 persons.

Friday's disaster came two months after an Il62 belonging to the East German airline Interflug crashed shortly after take-off from East Berlin's Schoenefeld Airport, killing 156 persons.

The worst confirmed airline disaster in history happened in Japan July 31, 1971, when a jet fighter and a Japanese Boeing 727 collided, killing 162 persons.

Suit Over Razing House Dismissed

A $50,000 inverse condemnation suit by Planning Consultant Norman T. Gilroy over razing of an old house in San Anselmo was dismissed yesterday after the City of SanAnselmo agreed to pay $1,000 to a man who held a promissory note on the building.

Judge Joseph G. Wilsonof Marin Superior Court ended the case in its third day of trial on agreement by both sides that the city pay the $1,000 to Horst Hanff.

Gilroy, Hanff and Wilfred A. DeCook, who also held a promissory note, sued the city in 1969 after the city council voted to destroy a house at 21 Loma Robles. The house was burned the next day.

The council said at the time Gilroy had had two or three years to fix the building, which had been the subject to complaints about unsafe conditions from neighbors and police.

Two Hurt In Drake Accident

Two Bolinas residents were hurt Thursday in a one-car accident on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Samuel P. Taylor State Park, the California Highway Patrol reported.

The Highway Patrol report did not contain details of the accident, which occurred at 8 p.m.

CLIFF AND SUZI

Computers and modern machines haven't yet caught up with pole logger Cliff Nix and his horse, Suzi. Pole logging is hard work near Sargents, Colo., in the Rockies, says Nix, who has been at his profession for 30 years. He admits, though, that Suzie does the heavy labor, dragging timber down mountain sides. (UPI Telephoto)

Youths Held In Deadly Weapon Case

Two 17-year-old Novato youths were booked into Marin County Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon after a resident told Novato police they invaded his home and attacked him.

Police said Eduino Pimentel, of 672 Plum Street, told them he was having dinner with his wife about 5:45 p.m. when the young men entered the house through an open garage door.

The youths said they were looking for a friend's home, officers were told, and asked Pimentel for cigarettes, which he gave them.

WhenPimentel said he attempted to escort the youths off his property, they began yelling obscenities and jumped on him, knocking him to the ground. The youths then began kicking him in the head with their boots, Pimentel told officers.

A neighbor called police who arrested the pair.

Pimentel suffered a cut and swollen lip in the incident, according to officers.

The names of the youths were withheld on orders of Judge Joseph F. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Tough To Pronounce

TOOELE, Utah (UPI) — Travelers have a hard time pronouncing the name of this town near the Great Salt Lake, often incorrectly saying "tuly" or "toe-lay" instead of "tuilla" as it is called. The unusual name, which appears to be Hawaiian in origin by the spelling, actually came from an Aztec word for a plant.

No Strychnine In Water Sample

The Marin County Board of Health has notified the Mill Valley Police Department that a sample of water from Miller Creek does not contain strychnine poison.

The sample was sent to the health department last week when a dog died after drinking from the creek.

A local veterinarian diagnosed the illness as strychnine poisoning and the animal died a few hours later, police reported. Police had believed the dog first had been poisoned then had drunk from the creek, but wanted to be certain.

The water sample was sent by the health department to Berkeley, where it was analyzed by state officials.

A Clash On Rights Of Women

The antiwomen's liberation movement clashed with women's lib forces yesterday in a shouting match at Tamalpais High School, Mill Valley.

The confrontation occurred in the school's new sociology course, "Women, Then and Now," which traces through lecture and guest speaker the role women have played in history.

Yesterday'sspeaker was Betty Jean (J.J.) Jarboe of Mill Valley, international president of the Anti-Women's Liberation League and board director of the National Council for the Preservation of the Family.

Her appearance attracted about 45 students, including 10 male students.

Seated on the floor as well as at desks, the students quietly listened to Mrs. Jarboe criticize the women's lib movement as erasing distinct masculine and feminine roles in society. "We think you can be great to one another without mirroring one another and maybe one of your greatnesses is your differences," she said.

She opposed the argument of women's lieration supporters that women have been historically oppressed. She said women have possessed power over men ever since Eve convinced Adam to take the apple.

The housewife, mother and career woman, whose frilly dress contrasted with her blue jeans audience, denounced the pending federal Equal Rights Amendment as imposing government control on many spheres of personal and family life.

She said it would give divorced women responsibility for one-half of child support, make them eligible for the draft and active duty in the armed forces and would lead to the removal of couches and other feminine amenities in restrooms.

In a flurry of shouts, her audience protested that women do not hold power themselves, but only second hand by persuasion over their husbands who control the economy.

The students argu d variously, "Our whole nation is based on the oppression of women"... "women can do anything better than men"... and "women are raised to be sissies."

When Mrs. Jarboe said a survey disclosed that four out offive women don't want to fight in the armed services, an outspoken young man retorted, "Well, nine out of ten men don't, either."

And when she said the Statue of Liberty was chosen to representwomanhood as a symbol of liberty, another young man quipped, "but that was before women had the vote."

Speaks Tomorrow

Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, will speak before the Rodef Sholom Men's Club at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at 170 North San Pedro Road. The meeting will be open to the public.

Mrs. Robert House looms large behind a collection of tiny items that went on display at the Corte Madera Recreation Center as part of the two-day Marin Gem and Mineral Fair. # Hearing Set For Tuesday

A preliminary hearing for a 23-year-old man who allegedly tried to burglarize a bait shop, then pulled a machete on sheriff's deputies who stopped him has been set for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Ellis was arrested Oct. 5 by deputies who saw a man apparently throw something through a window at the Sausalito Bait and Tackle Shop at Gate 6, Waldo Point.

Deputies said that after the man was cornered on Bridgeway, he drew a machete and refused to surrender until Deputy John Earl took it from him.

A Rainbow Of Color Greets Visitor To 'Patch In Time'

By ADA GARFINKEL

The results of a six-month-long labor of love has culminated in a unique exhibit today and tomorrow at the Mill Valley Recreation Center.

"A Patch in Time" is an exhibition of antique and contemporary quilts and patchwork sponsored by the Mill Valley Quilt Authority for the benefit of Marin Aid to Retarded Children. A prescreening committee made up of the six members of the authority — Joyce Gross, Marian Wilkie, Ellen Beasley, Lou Norton, Florence Smith and Sally Garoutte — traveled as far north as Willitts and south to Fresno to select the entries.

It is amazing how contemporary some of the designs are and how diversified the functional use extends. "Compass Rose," a patched-and-pieced quilt with a design of blue circles on orange squares, is a perfect example of present-day "Op-art," although made 90 years ago.

There are three basic methods of quilting and each is amply represented in the exhibit, often with variations. The outstanding example of basic quilting (which is the process of stitching together three layers of material including the batt or filling) is the elegant and historic figure of "Frederick Douglass."

Second, there is "crazy-patch," in which each square is made individually and then attached to a backing. And while quilting always has a definite theme and a specific design, "crazy-patch" is abstract.

Lastly there is the "tied" quilt, more commonly referred to as comforters or coverlets.

Technically not a quilt (since it is "tied") "Jeremy's Quilt," made by Barbara Lewis of Walnut Creek for her young son, uses samples of men's suitings in three-inch modules — all in grays — which fit together like building blocks.

Some quilts derive special interest from a creator's professional life, as in Margy Rutledge's "Photographer's Abstract," a strongly patterned geometric and floral work in black and white squares. And "Heraldic Quilt" by Jean McLean of San Rafael uses the McLean family coat-of-arms for a machine-quilted crib cover.

One of the more intricate processes is "Cathedral Window," which designates a special method of folding and applique. The results are a mosaic-like or stained-glass effect with tiny colorful squares on white circles attached to bleached muslin.

All of the quilts in the exhibit are functional but not all are covers. There are pillows, chairpads with tie-dye as well as quilting, wall hangings, clothing (vests, pants, and skirts) and a hammock in woodsy browns.

Artistic merit and much creative use of materials, stitchery, emblems and personal mementos is incorporated in the works. They are examples of individual and collective effort to illustrate the continually evolving art of quiltmaking over the past 150 years.

The center, at 180 Camino Alto, will be open this weekend from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Kennedy Wins Approval On Watergate Subpoenas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, chairman of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee, has obtained the approval of its Democratic majority to issue subpoenas for an inquiry into the Watergate bugging incident.

A copy of an Oct. 12 letter to subcommittee members that the Massachusetts Democrat wrote said a preliminary inquiry already underway also includes related charges of Republican campaign tactics of over-all espionage.

A Republican member of the subcommittee, Sen. Edward J. Gurney of Florida, denounced Kennedy's move as "a partisan political attempt to keep the Watergate affair alive."

Gurney said he would strongly protest Kennedy's intention to issue subpoenas, but a footnote to Kennedy's letterdisclosed that the Democratic members already have approved.

The Democrats are Quentin N. Burdick of North Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Philip A. Hart of Michigan, and John V. Tunney of California. Together with Kennedy they constitute a majority of the eight-member subcommittee.

Kennedy's letter left up in the air the question of whether public hearings might be held before the Nov. 7 election.

"The preliminary inquiry will continue during the recess," his letter said, "But no decision will be made to move to public proceedings without consultation among us."

Hub — Appropriate Name For Important Intersection

The Hub —well known to travelers making their way from the Marin's interior to Highway 101 — is a commanding crossroads. Radiating from the intersection are the Miracle Mile, which leads to Fourth Street and San Rafael; Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, which bisects the intersection, and Center Boulevard, which runs from the Hub parallel to westbound Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. At top left is the Highway 101 overpass in San Rafael, backed by a microscopic Montecito shopping center and the San Rafael Canal area. At top right is Larkspur and Corte Madera Creek, the latter snaking from the proposed site of the Golden Gate Bridge District ferry terminal on the San Quentin Peninsula. Rosing above the horseshoe bend of the creek is Bon Air Hill, topped by The Tamalpais, a retirement residence. The College of Marin may be seen where Corte Madera Creekbegins to narrow. On the upper left portion of the wooded ridge cradled between the Miracle Mile and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard are the Bret Harte and Southern Heights areas of San Rafael. On the right side of the ridge lie Greenbrae and Ross. Adjacent to the Hub is San Anselmo's Red Hill, while beyond, or west on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, is the Red Hill Shopping Center. Next to the shopping center is Isabel Cook School and Memorial Park, which faces San Anselmo's Sunny Hills to the left. At center bottom is Sir Francis Drake High School, also on the boulevard as it winds on to Fairfax.

'Tom Paine' Due In Marin Tuesday Night

"Tom Paine," a production that portrays the American Revolution patriot in an inventive manner combining music and dancing with philosophy, will be performed Tuesday in Veterans Memorial Building.

The play, directed by Tom O'Horgan of "Hair" and "Jesus Christ, Superstar" fame, will be presented at 8:30 p.m. in a one-night stand. It is part of a national tour being made by the company which includes several members of the original cast from New York.

Although revolving around the life and times of a real historical figure, the play is billed as nonhistorical, concentrating more on why a man becomes a revolutionary than on actual events.

The cast includes 11 actors who sing, dance and, in one instance, even roller skate and use bizarre masks and props.

Repeat Performance Of Rossini Opera Scheduled

The Sonoma State College Opera Workshop will give a repeat performance of Rossini's comic opera "The Luggage Mix-Up" at 4 p.m. Oct. 26 in Ives Hall.

Overflow crowds saw performances on campus last spring. Members of the National Opera Association, attending their 18th national convention in San Francico that week, are expected to attend the performance.

Tickets for the public and school groups are available at the Center for Performing Arts.

Dr. Peggy Donovan-Jeffry of Larkspur again will direct the performance. Cast will include Richard Goodman, Steven Covington, Rosemary Bock, Mary Beard, Robert Cullinen, William Pisenti, Carol Hansen and Peter Higbee.

Music will be provided by the College Philharmonic under the direction of David Sloss of San Rafael.

Jazz Vibraphonist To Give Concert

Jazz vibraphonist Bobby Hutcherson will give a concert at 8 p.m. Friday in Olney Hall, College of Marin.

Hutcherson will be accompanied by drummer Michael Carvin and bass player James Leary. His appearance is sponsored by the Associated Students of the college.

Historic Site Idea Is Backed

The North Marin Federation of Homeowners has endorsed efforts to name the Olompali estate a national historic site, according to president Guthrie R. Greene.

Gail Wilhelm, representing the North Marin Unit of the Marin Conservation League, presented a history of the estate to the federation at its meeting Wednesday night.

She reported the ranch could qualify for federal or state funds aimed at preserving the site.

Also, the association set 8 p.m., Oct. 25 at San Marin High School lecture hall for a debate on Proposition 14, the Watson tax shift proposal on the Nov. 7 Ballot. Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, will speak against the issue. The speaker for the proposition will be announced later.

Recycling Of Waste Wanted In Plan

The environmental advisory subcommittee of the Marin Municipal Water District has recommended that facilities for reclamation and recycling of waste water be included in the district's plans to consolidate sewage treatment plants in Central and Southern Marin.

The engineering consortium which drafted the plan included reclamation and recycling as an eventual goal of the consolidation plan, but excluded the processes from the first phase of the project.

Correct Dates For College Production

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal made it appear the College of Marin Drama Department's upcoming production of "The Madwoman of Chaillot" would be presented on dates other than those scheduled.

The actual dates of the performances, all at 8 p.m. in the college's Fine Arts Theater, are Oct. 19-22, 25-29 and Nov. 1-4.

Part-Time Teachers Say Pay Too Low

Part-time teachers, who make up nearly half of College of Marin's instructors, have told the Marin Community College District board they don't earn enough to live on.

In a special meeting Monday at 8 p.m., trustees will consider a request from the college's part-time teachers association for salary hikes.

According to E. Smith Dunlap spokesman for the association, the district's 105 part-time teachers are permitted to teach only a maximum of three classes. Most teach only one or two, he said.

Dunlap said many of the part-time teachers find it necessary to obtain food stamps and other government aid because average pay is about $125 a month for each class taught, based on 60 per cent of a pro-rated full-time teacher's salary, divided by five.

The association has requested that part-timers be paid 80 per cent of the full-time rate, also complaining that part-time teachers aren't allowed to join the district's health plan.

No action is expected at Monday's meeting.

Bid Openings Set Next Month

Construction bids will be opened next month on two major highway projects in Petaluma, according to the state Division of Highways.

Bids will be opened Nov. 22 for construction of a new four-lane overcrossing of Highway 101 at East Washington Street. Cost of the project is estimated $1.3 million.

New State Post Goes To Davis

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has named A. Earl Davis to the newly created post of state Science and Technology Coordinator.

Reinecke said Thursday that Davis will be charged with the responsibility of finding ways to apply science and technology to the state's decision-making process.

He also will be responsible for developing programs to make state and local governments become partners in using technology to solve a "broad array of social and environmental problems."

CALIFORNIA DESIGNERS

The Jilted Woman Dressed Again

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — California's designers have given up the young girl and have gone back to dressing the women they jilted a few seasons ago. They've left the costuming to their friends in Hollywood.

Members of the Los Angeles Fashion Guild, a group of couture and better ready-to-wear firms, whose clothes have price tags from $80 to $200, are doing tried and true fashion.

They're the kind you wear to the country club. Hemlines are safely around the knee. Long dresses are meant to go out only after 5 p.m.

DESIGNERS PUT the layers together themselves in three and four-piece costumes so their customers won't get confused mixing and matching.

The no-nonsense looks for spring were viewed by the nation's fashion press at shows this week at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

Jackets are primarily long in this group. There are blazers, long tunics for maximum coverage, safari jackets and cardigans. The little battle jacket and shrink sweaters are not this group's business.

Daytime dresses take optional skinny belts that go around the waist, rather than hug a hip. Colors are the pastels that used to be spring traditionals. in addition there is an emphasis on black and white — nothing far out about that —and a refreshing combination of navy with bright green.

Pants by California coutueriers are for the most part conservatively flaired. There are no baggies or trousers in this collection. Evening pants are the Palazzo type, pleated all the way around and as wide as a ball gown.

GEORGIA BULLOCK likes the shirtdress. She does a group of daytime dresses that are tucked front and back to fall full from the hip. Belted, the dress looks nice and conservative. Unbelted, it looks new. For evening she puts a full satin skirt with a wool ribbed sweater top that has satin collar and cuffs.

David Barr is big on white for spring, accented with jonquil yellow or azalea pink. He likes twin sweater sets and his favorites are in cashmere. One of his best looks is a trench coat that he calls a Hollywood wrap.

Georgette Trilere for Trimar is into nailhead trim for spring. She puts nailheads on suede cloth and does the combination inpantsuits, wrap coats and even holiday dresses. She said the silk daytime dress is her bread and butter. She does it with optional belts, bow necklines and all kinds of polkadots.

FOR CALIFORNIA and Hawaii swimwear designers the yearly battle to do something new is on this week at the California Fashion Creators showing in Beverly Hills. New for next year is the long caftan by Tori Richards (left), swimwear by Kintskins using sweater knits for the first time in swimwear (center), and a pantsuit featuring a bikini top by Elisabeth Stewart.

Mrs. Magner Elected Newcomers Club Head

Mrs. James L. Magner, who moved to Tiburon one year ago, has been elected president of the Newcomers Club of Central Marin

Bringing together new residents of Central Marin is the group's purpose, according to Mary Jane Magner, and anyone who moved to the area less than two years ago may join. Monthly luncheons are planned, and the club has special interests groups, such as bridge, gourmet cooking, arts and crafts and gardening.

Mrs. Magner has also served as vice president and secretary of the club. She is the vice president of the Church of All Faiths Women's Group.

The new president is a native of St. Louis, Mo. Her hobbies are gourmet cooking, knitting and boating. Her husband is the regional manager for General Electric Medical Systems, and they are the parents of William, 22, Mark, 17, and Anita, 12.

Other officers are Jean Buddle, first vice president; Mac DuBois, second vice president; Kathy Cerar, secretary; Jerry Ziegler, corresponding secretary; and Florence Denterlein, treasurer.

MRS. JAMES MAGNER
Leads Marin club

DESIGNER CHESSA Davis wears a skirt that is a walking diary of some of the fun things in her life. Shown at the California Fashion Creators showing in Beverly Hills this week, the skirt is a mish-mash of fabrics on which she hung bells, ribbons and the acorn she teethed on as an infant. It is called the "peddlers' cloak skirt."

In a garden setting near Malae Kahana Bay on the Island of Oahu, Hawaii, Sandra Lea Huus and Michael Scott Magill, both of Kailua, Hawaii, were married on Monday.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson of Portland, Ore., and the bridegroom is the son of Betty Jane Magill of Belvedere and Carson Magill of Mill Valley.

Following a wedding trip to Maui, the couple will live in Kailua.

Sandra was educated in Portland schools.

Michael is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and will receive a degree in December from the University of Hawaii. Mrs. Carson Magill of Vallejo is his grandmother.

'Organic Eggs'

"Organic eggs," as labeled on egg cartons, are twice as expensive and no more nutritious than regular eggs, according to Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The term "organic eggs" means the eggs from chickens which have been supplied "natural" foods. However, overwhelming evidence indicates that an egg is an egg.

Adventists Are Praised For Their Practices

The American Heart Association has observed that the religious practices of Seventh-day Adventists apparently are responsible for members' longevity and relative invulnerability to heart attack.

A 10-year study of 57,000 adventists by Dr. Richard T. Walden of Los Angeles shows that the men, none of whom drink or smoke, have heart attacks 10 years later than the average American male. Similar patterns of longevity are noted among adventist women, who have attacks five years later than women in the general population.

Dr. Walden believes the Adventists' vegetarianism, which excludes meat with its high cholesterol content, as well as regular exercise, helps fend off heart disease and allows adventists to live longer than other Americans.

Ordination Of Women Will Be Topic Of Public Forum

Ordination of Women in the Episcopal Church will be the subject of a public forum tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael.

Rev. Marjory Quinn, newly ordained deacon assigned to weekend counseling and worship services at Grace Cathedral, will be the speaker.

The subject of ordination of women beyond the order of deacon in the Episcopal Church is causing controversy among clergy and laity. Delegates to the denomination's Diocesan Convention being held next Saturday and Sunday at Grace Cathedral will debate the issue.

She teaches educationally handicapped children in the Richmond public schools and is studying for a master's degree in counseling at California State University, Hayward. She, her husband and three children live in Alameda.

Grapes Cause Wrath: Will Mom Forgive Drunk Girl's Boyfriend?

HELEN AND SUE:

My folks had always liked my boyfriend a lot — until last week, when we went to a party where there was wine. Dumb me — it tasted like fizzy punch, and I got drunk. Real drunk.

I was awfully sick and my boyfriend got scared so he tried to revive me at his house, andlater got his brother and another girl to help him take me home. When my mother saw me half passed out, she told him to leave and never come back. She didn't feel any better about him after nursing a very upset and heaving girl throughout the night.

I felt better after a couple of days, and boy, I've sure learned my lesson. Mention grapes to me, even, and I turn green.

But now my boyfriend won't call. He's scared of what my mother will say. He sends messages through my girl friend every day.

My folks won't let me go out with anyone for two weeks. I don't blame them — I deserve grounding. But I don't want to lose the best guy I ever found. It wasn't his fault I got drunk — he didn't even notice how much I took.

How can I get him and my mother back on good terms again? — ALONE AND SORRY

A AND S:

Your b.f. could make a good impression (let's hope —a comeback) if he'd stop in to see your mother, preferably when you're not at home. She'd most likely reconsider if he explained how sorry he is, and asked for another chance. It will be tough, but I can't see any other way of winning her back.

After all, your folks should be thankful he brought you home. There are guys who would take advantage of a drunk chick. — SUE

DEAR A AND S's MOTHER:

Very few kids make it through teenage without at least one sick-and-sorry drinking-experience. Be glad your daughter was with a fellow who protected her, and don't judge him too harshly. He's learned his lesson and so has she.

It would be a pretty sad world if no one ever got a second chance..— HELEN

DEAR RAP:

This is crazy but true. The people who howl loudest about "long-haired hippies" are the ones that are just about beyond repair themselves. I've seen men with big fat paunches, and smelly cigars in their mouths look at a clean guy with a beard as if he were a bug to be stomped.

And middle-aged women with too much makeup, fat backs and frizzy, dyed hair get real uptight at girls who want to look natural in jeans, no lipstick and straight hair.

How about this? If we don't point out older people's strange (to us) getups, couldn't they stop calling us names? — NOT A DIRTY HIPPIE

DEAR NOT:

Right. How about it ? Clothes or hair don't make a freak — on either side of the "gap." If everyone dressed alike, it would be an awfully dull world. — SUE

DEAR NOT:

I'm reminded of two barefoot girls in cut-off jeans, halters, beads and head bands who stood in front of a high-fashion men's store window. Said one to the other, pointing in disgust at the perfectly turned out "businessman" model: "Migosh, can ya just imagine going with a guy that dresses like that." — HELEN

Saddle Stitching Adds Touches, But Not A Top Fashion Trend

By EUNICE FARMER
Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate

Dear Eunice,

Will you please divulge the deep, dark secret of saddle stitching? I am very fond of this and can't find the instructions in the patterns even though the sketches often look like they have been saddle stitched. This is a rich, decorative stitching that never seems to grow old or out of style.

MRS. G.D.

DEAR MRS. G.D.,

Saddle stitching is a beautiful couture touch and although it never really goes out of style, there are times whe it is definitely more fashionable than others.

Donald Brooks, one of the top American designers has used this beautiful detail throughout his collection this fall and I, too, love it. One of his most attractive ensembles was a spruce green coat with white stitching which contrasted a white dress with a spruce green stitching.

You can use saddle stitching to emphasize any style lines on your garments. It is usually done about one half inch from the outer edge of the garment after the garment has been completed. You may use silk buttonhole twist, or if you desire a more decorative stitch, use a strand of yarn. Saddle stitching is done by hand in a running stitch, but no back stitches such as we use for hand picking. The stitches are usually longer than the space between stitches.

You may use this detail on any pattern that has some details in pockets, collars and yokes. Saddle stitching is very much today, so try it on a new garment or add it to last year's and make it look new. Always remember that hand work is not as perfect as machine work, and this is the beauty of it. Don't fret too much if there is a thread off here and there, just keep it as even as you can.

MRS. FRANCIS Woodbury, San Antonio, Tex., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion: "I have another suggestion for saving patterns and making them readily available. Put them in the plastic wrappers that come on newspapers. You will have no cutting no pasting, no folders to buy."

This promises to be one of the biggest years ever for you girls to be making a winter coat. The fashion picture has settled down considerably, and the topper length is now being shown with pants, dresses, and long clothes for evening. Therefore, one good looking coat can take you from morning to night.

You must be extremely careful when selecting your pattern. There is a big difference in styling and for many good reasons. The clothing picture itself is different, plus the styling of the clothes we wear under our coats. Instead of the sleeveless dress or the tight, long sleeves that were perfect for those body fitting coats, today we have sweater knits, shirt sleeves, raglan and dolman sleeves, plus the layers or parts of one ensemble. Therefore, we need roomier coats with more ease and larger sleeves. Today's coats with raglan sleeves are a natural, and they're also much easier to make.

Don't be afraid to make a coat. They're actually easier to make than a suit and require less fitting. You can usually save more money on a coat than any other part of your wardrobe.

DEAR EUNICE,

I travel quite a bit and enjoy knit pant suits because of the comfort and easy care. I have found that when it is necessary to do a lot of sitting, no matter how expensive my suits are, the knees always bulge out of shape. Is there any easy solution to this and is it possible to change ready-made pants?

MRS. L.T.

DEAR MRS. L. T.,

The weight of the knit and the design of the pants has a lot to do with the bagging at the knees. The looser the knit, the less fitted the pants should be.

I examined a very expensive pair of imported wool knit pants and to my surprise I found that the pants had a partial lining in the front only. This was a lightweight, firm rayon lining. It was attached at the waist, side seams and ended just below the knees.

I have since tried this with a pair of my own knit pants and find it works beautifully. It is also comparatively simple to add this lining to pants that are ready-made, but you will have to hand sew the lining in place. It is not necessary to tack the lower edge of the lining to the pants. It will hang in place without.

Trt it, I know you'll like it. Lining also makes the pants feel good and they don't have a tendency to cling.

Plan to make a caftan for at-home wear during the upcoming holidays. Complete instructions are given in Eunice Farmer's "Super Caftan" leaflet. To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Emily was attended at the wedding by her sister Patricia Ann Homer of Berkeley as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Susan Lundmark and Marta Von Lowenfeldt, both of San Rafael.

Guilds Are Added By Boyd Museum

Two new guilds of women volunteers have been added to the Boyd Marin Museum of Science, according to Mrs. James Olson, guilds' press chairman. Guilds have been formed in Sleepy Hollow and in Novato to benefit the museum.

The museum now has 14 guilds working to raise funds and staffing the San Rafael building.

Make Clear Path From Door To Bed

Arrange furniture so that there is a clear path from door to bed, with light switches at both places. All screens should be securely fastened lest children lean against them and fall to the ground, and windows, preferably, should be open from the top.

Auxiliary heating devices should be used with extreme care and turned off before you go to bed. People are often trapped by fire at night. Closing your bedroom door may prevent your becoming overcome with smoke or heat and may delay the fire until help arrives.

The entire family should know what to do in case of fire including alternate escape routes if fire should ever block the hall or stairs. And despite frequent warnings, smoking in bed still causes many deaths.

Chairman Is Announced For Festival Of Trees

Her husband is a division marketing supervisor for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., and they have two sons, Bobby, 8, and Johnny, 4. The family has lived in Marin for three years.

Mrs. Mertz is also a member of the Mariners, the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, Marin Alumnae Club of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Glenwood Guild of the museum and the Coleman School Parent-Teacher Association. She taught junior high school in Long Beach and San Lorenzo.

Gynecologist's Views On The Nation's Mores

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—After 15 years as a gynecologist and obstetrician, Dr. Boyd Cooper figures he knows something about women.

"I'm not a psychologist or a social worker," he says. "I'm a gynecologist. I see young women, and I know the problems which arise from living in a sexually permissive society."

And he thinks a society whose mores have changed must make provisions for some of the problems created.

He was a leader of the movement for legalized abortion laws in California, where the laws were liberalized a few years ago.

He also thinks the government will have to provide child care centers for the offspring of single parents—whether they are single because their marriage ended or because it never took place.

Cooper, chairman of the obstetrics and gynecology department at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital, has writtena book about some possible solutions, titled "Sex Without Tears."

"The best solution to unwanted pregnancies is to prevent them in the first place," he says. "But human beings don't always have the temperament or the technical information to do that, so we are always going to have unwanted pregnancies."

Cooper says there are four ways to handle the problem—marriage, keeping the baby and rearing it without a father, giving it up for adoption, or abortion.

"The time-honored solution, of course, is the forced marriage, but they never work," he said. "Even if the marriage lasts, it merely endures.

"Most illegitimate babies are adopted out, and that is a horrible emotional experience for a woman, one she never forgets. The woman who has an abortion goes to sleep and when she wakes up it's over. But the woman who carries the full term feels the baby moving inside her body, sees it, touches it and hears it.

"Then she gives it to another woman. That is a totally different experience and there has got to be a better way.

"Society has subtle pressures on unwed mothers—the rejection by their parents, sending them away so the neighbors won't know. Life is never the same for these girls."

Cooper says rearing a child without marriage "could be very successful if the attitudes of our society change."

"What we need is proper child care centers," he says.

Cooper envisions government-subsidized children's centers throughout the nation to care for the children of single women as well as married women with careers and men who have to rear children alone.

"They would be open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, although no child would be there all the time," he says. "The unwed mother could go there during her pregnancy to help, and to be trained.

"To raise a child alone in this society a woman needs to make $700 or $800 a month, and not many women make that much. That's why the centers need to be state-supported."

Cooper says "most women faced with an unwanted pregnancy should be aborted."

"I didn't always feel that way," he said. "I am a Mormon and I had strong religious convictions about it. But I've come to realize that a procedure which takes five minutes to do and in no way permanently damages the woman is preferable to the emotional scarring from other so-called solutions.

"If we didn't make such a big deal of it, if society didn't reject the woman who underwent an abortion, then it would be an even better way to resolve the problem than it is now."

Watch Where You Put Them

Never put scatter rugs at the head or foot of the stairs, and use rubber backing or non-skid mats under small rugs.

Also, be sure to tack down curled rug edge and mend tears. If you're waxing the floor, apply the wax evenly and rub in well; don't ever wax the stairs. If there are children in your house, you should have folding gates at the top and bottom of the stairway. Stairs should have sturdy full-length railings and a light switch at the top and bottom.

And remember — things left on stairs, such as bundles or toys, may save a trip up, but may also result in a fast, bone-breaking trip down.

Key Safety Tips For The Kitchen

Keep burnable things such as curtains, towels, cookbooks and cooking oil away from the stove. Keep a pot holder handy for quick use. Wipe up spilled grease at once. Watch that kettles don't boil over and put out a gas flame, and before leaving the kitchen, check to see that all burners are off. Keep a fire extinguisher handy.

The kitchen is a dangerous place for children, so while there, his or her safest place is in a high chair or playpen. Here are some additional suggestions that could prevent your child from becoming harmed. When you're cooking, use the stove's back units, with pot handles out of reach.

If you break glass or china, wrap it in a newspaper before throwing it out. Keep household cleaners such as lye, disinfectants, ammonia and other poisons away from food or children's reach.

Sears' Payroll Over 500 Mark

Marin's new Sears store at Northgate Mall has more than 500 employees, 90 per cent of them living in Marin County. (See picture and story, page 1.)

Store Mgr. Will H. Sanders gave these figures at a preview luncheon at the store yesterday for almost 100 business and civic leaders.

"We are dedicated to serving you as you would want to be served," said Sanders, who came here after three years in Sear's Anchorage store.

Other Sears' executives who hosted the luncheon were John G. Lowe, vice president of Sears's nine-state Pacific region; George G. Gaugler of Hayward, district manager of the mid-California group of Sears stores, and Philo K. Holland Jr., public relations director.

Wishard A. Brown, publisher of the Independent-Journal, was master of ceremonies. He and other civic leaders who welcome Sears to Marin were:

Attending the luncheon to help Sears with the grand opening were actress Arlene Dahl; astrologer Carroll Righter; professional golfer Shirley Englehorn, and Emily Zinser, Disneyland's ambassador of goodwill, who introduced Winnie The Pooh, Eeyore and Tigger.

Permission Sought For Special Path

The Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association has requested permission from Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to build a pedestrian-bicycle path across the utility's property as a short cut for children attending Mill Valley Middle School.

According to association president Louis Millen, about 30 children cross PG&E's property, south of Roque Moraes Drive, along a muddy path.

He has asked permission to convert the company's abandoned railroad siding and bridge pilings into an improved, narrow pathway.

If constructed, the path would become an important part of the Sausalito-to-Strawberry Point bicycle route, said Millen.

A PG&E spokesman said the company was studying the proposal, with an answer expected in about a month.

He said PG&E has allowed similar agreements for their holdings.

Millen said the association would seek funds for the project if PG&E grants permission. He said Mill Valley city engineer estiamted the cost of the project at $3,000.

Food Stamp Grand Theft Sentence

A 31-year-old Lagunitas woman was ordered yesterday to serve 10 days in jail and repay $276 as part of a sentence in Marin Municipal Court for misdemeanor grand theft of food stamps.

Judge Peter Allen Smith also placed Marcia Pessis, mother of three small children, on probation for three years and gave her a 60-day suspended jail term.

She previously pleaded guilty to the allegation that she used another name and failedto report she was receiving Aid to Families With Dependent Children when she obtained food stamps from August to December 1971.

She was charged after an anonymous tip from the San Geronimo Valley, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams.

Hyams said she should have been paying about $14 for each $28 worth of stamps, but was paying only 50 cents per $28.

Conference In Another Check Case

A second pretrial conference for rock musician Buddy Miles on a felony bad check charge was set yesterday for next Friday in Marin Municipal Court.

Attorney Judd Iversen, appearing for the heavy set leader of the Buddy MilesBlues Band, said his client has paid the Emery Freight Corp. the $997 he previously tried to pay with a check from a closed account.

The musician has contended the bad check was a mistake, but a pretrial conference failed to produce either a dismissal or a guilty plea.

If the second conference fails, a preliminary hearing will be set on the felony charge, Judge David R. Baty said.

Most Campus Enrollments Up

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Student enrollment for the fall quarter at most University of California campuses showed an increase this year but UC Santa Barbara and UC Riverside suffered declines, campus officials announced Thursday.

The largest increase was at UCLA which enrolled 29,661 students for the fall quarter, second highest figure in its history and a 1,770-student increase over a year ago.

Food Supplies In Bangladesh Good

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Sir Robert Jackson said Thursday nobody is dying of starvation in Bangladesh. He is chief coordinator of the U.N. relief operation in Dacca and returned from there three days ago.

Jackson said that in response to an appeal by Secretary General Kurt Waldheim last summer a total of 900,000 tons of food grains have been made available to the people of Bangladesh. He said this was approximately enough to feed them until their harvest in December.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smokeparticles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 14, the 288th day of 1972 with 78 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Libra.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, 34th president of the United States, was born Oct. 14, 1890.

On this day in history:

In 1912, former President Theodore Roosevelt was shot in Milwaukee but refused to have the wound treated until he finished his speech. He was campaigning for a third term.

In 1933, Germany announced it would withdraw from the League of Nations by the end of 1934.

In 1944, British and Greek troops liberated Athens which had been in the hands of the German Nazis since April, 1941.

In 1949, an East German puppet state was set up by Soviet occupation authorities.

Appeal On Span Approach Made

The main San Francisco approach to the Golden Gate Bridge is far too dangerous to wait another four years before starting construction of a replacement, bridge district directors declared yesterday.

In a unanimous vote, they appealed to the California Highway Commission to finance the $14 million project as soon as possible as an "emergency."

District officials will appeal to the commission at its next meeting on Nov. 15 in Fresno.

The district has been making similar appeals to the commission for years, without result. Replacement of the approach, Doyle Drive between the Marina and the toll plaza, long has been used as a political hostage in the state's freeway fight with San Francisco.

State highway officials have claimed a new approach should be tied into a cross-city freeway.

State plans for the project call for replacing the present 60-foot-wide roadway, which has six, 10-foot lanes, with a 96-foot-wide roadway with eight, 12-foot lanes. Most important, the new roadway would have a 32-inch-high concrete barrier separating traffic.

The lack of a barrier on the present roadway has contributed to numerous fatal accidents.

The highway commission's current plan is to fund the project in fiscal 1976-77. Rights-of-way costs will be in addition to the $14 million construction cost.

A completely separate right-of-way for buses would add $7 million to the cost, according to state estimates.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

SHELTERS — Offered a $250 prize for the best design for a district bus shelter to be submitted by a student at a San Francisco design school.

TAX FUNDS — Applied to the Metropolitan Transportation Commission for $1,652,000 in revenue from the new statewide sales tax on gasoline. Of this, $1.1 million will come from Marin's share, $425,000 from Sonoma's and $127,000 from San Francisco's.

CLOSING — Received a report that the planned one-hour closing of the bridge has been postponed approximately two weeks to the first or second week in November. It will permit placement of special equipment to replace suspender ropes.

ACCIDENT — Received a report that a district bus suffered some $3,000 in damage when hit in a traffic accident Sept. 29 on Highway 101 at the Alto Wye. The California Highway Patrol cited the driver of the car who allegedly caused the accident.

FERRY — Received a report that passenger counts averaged 2,518 on the Sausalito ferry during weekdays last month, 3,916 on Saturdays and 4,802 on Sundays and holidays.

BUSES — Received a report that of 448,841 passengers carried on district buses last month, 126,805 came from local traffic within Marin County. A one-day record of 6,674 commutere were carried from 6 to 10 a.m. on Wednesday.

SONOMA — Received a report that the district's bus system to Sonoma County, compared to Greyhound's previous system, had boosted capacity by 53 per cent and patronage by 108 per cent.

HOLIDAY — Reported that commuter bus service on Veteran's Day, Oct. 23, will not be cut to holiday levels because many riders apparently will work that day.

TUBES — Bought 1,000 plastic traffic tubes from American Molded Products for $2,656.

MEETING — Rescheduled the board's Nov. 24 meeting to November 30.

"We've been discussing very important matters. The minister has had very hard negotiations. I am happy they have worked out agreeably."

The agreement will open 40 U. S. ports and 40 Soviet ports to the ships of each nation, according to the text and accompanying documents released by the White House.

Was A Cross Put On Moon?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A magazine has reported that the first astronauts on the moon—the Apollo 11 crew—left a small gold cross there for the proprietor of an Acapulco hotel.

Travel Leisure Magazine also reported Thursday that the Apollo 7 astronauts deviated slightly from their flight plan to take a picture of Las Brisas Hotel on Acapulco bay.

The article, written by John McPhee, said that Col. Frank Brandstetter, the hotel owner, is a frequent host of the astronauts after they have been on the moon.

The report that the Apollo 7 flight purposely deviated from its course was denied by the space agency. Spokesme said this would have been impossible without ground control learning about it. The agency also said it had no knowledge of the gold cross being left behind on the moon by Apollo 11.

Status Of Quentin Is Undecided

MONTEREY (AP) — State prison officials agree California needs more maximum security prison space and will be hard pressed to shut San Quentin by 1974 or 1975 unless that space is found, a prison official said yesterday.

Phil Guthrie, spokesman for the Department of Corrections, said wardens and other prison staff members agreed during informal discussion here Thursday that the maximum security space is needed because the character of inmate populations has changed in the last decade.

The change-hiking the number of inmates who committed violent crimes from one-third to one-half - has created the needs for more maximum and medium security space, Guthrie said.

"If we don't get more of those facilities, we will be hard pressed to close San Quentin as early as we would like to — which is sometime during 1974 or 1975," Guthrie said in an interview.

There is $150,000 in this year's budget to begin planning for two maximum security facilities slated to be part of the phase-out of San Quentin, Guthrie added. "But right now we are geared for the kind of intake we had in 1960, and most of the people left in the prisons are hardcore inmates with long criminal records.

"Nowadays, if a guy is a small time offender, he is often handled in other ways and is not sent to a state prison," he said.

That situation leaves the prison system with an excess of minimum security space that is no longer needed, Guthrie noted.

No final decisions were made at the meeting, which was a regularly scheduled gathering of state prison officials.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

WHO'S WHO TODAY? Ask Grandma to help with this one! Today's mystery birthday celebrity was born 76 years ago in Springfield, Ohio, and entered silent films in 1914 with her sister Dorothy. They were as familiar to theater-goers then as Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, and Fatty Arbuckle. Her credits include: "Birth of a Nation," "Way Down East," and "Orphans in a Storm," to name a few. After talkies arrived, she refused to appear in them and wouldn't see one for 10 years. Finally she relented, appearing in sound films and TV in her later years. Now it's not unusual to see her being interviewed by Johnny Carson, Merv Griffin, or Dick Cavett. Well, did you guess Lillian Gish? None other!

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

1. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, the 34th U.S. President, was born on Oct. 14, 1890, in Denison, Texas, and educated at West Point. The successful planner of the 1942 North African campaign, "Ike" was picked by Roosevelt and Churchill to command the largest military invasion in history — D-Day! Quiz question: Was Ike originally baptized David Eisenhower instead of Dwight Eisenhower?

2. EAMON DE VALERA, first president of the Irish Republic, is 90 years old today. He fought to win independence from Great Britain, was caught, imprisoned, and then released. Today he is the oldest living hero of the movement. Is it true that Eamon was born in the United States?

3. ROGER MOORE, film and TV star, is 45 today. Born in London, he co-starred with Elizabeth Taylor in "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and had a successful TV series as "The Saint." Guess who co-starred with him last season on ABC-TV — Tony Randall, Tony Quinn, or Tony Curtis?

ANSWERS

1. Yes; 2. Yes; 3. Tony Curtis

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Curious Will Know Which Play Will Work In Today's Hand

If you are blessed with normal curiosity you will soon know which play will work in today's hand. However, if you were actually playing the hand you would not be able to see the defensive hands. How should you play for the slam if you see only your own hand and the dummy?

DRAW TRUMPS

Naturally, you win the first trick and draw one round of trumps. No problem about that. But plan the later play. (As a matter of fact, you should make the full plan before touching the first card from the dummy.)

You can confidently expect to win six trumps, four clubs and the ace of diamonds. You need one additional trick. Should you lead a spade toward the king, or should you lead a diamond from dummy in order to finesse with the queen?

CAN YOU RECOVER?

In choosing the right suit to play first, the question to ask yourself is: "Can I recover if my guess is wrong?"

If you take the diamond finesse and happen to lose to the king, the defenders will also take the ace of spades. Recovery will then be impossible.

Suppose that you draw a trump and run the four clubs, discarding a spade from dummy. Now enter dummy with a trump and lead dummy's only remaining spade. If you lose the king of spades, you are not yet beaten. You can still get back to dummy with a trump in order to try the diamond finesse.

BOTH CHANCES

In short, the spade play gives you both chances. The diamond play gives you only one chance. Half a loaf may be better than none, but the whole loaf is better still!

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

What do you say?

ANSWER: Make a forcing opening bid.

Using standard bidding methods, bid two hearts. If you use weak two-bids, your forcing bid is two clubs. With a hand of such great strength you want to make sure of reaching game even if partner's hand is worthless.

Freighter Will Carry U.S. Wheat To China

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— The Danish freighter Laura Meek is scheduled to sail Saturday with 40,000 long tons of white wheat for the People's Republic of China.

Gerald Louis-Dreyfus, president of a Paris-based firm bearing his name, announced in mid-September he had contracted with the Chinese for 400,000 tons of wheat, the first American grain bound for China in 20 years.

Suspect In Assault Case Is Booked

A Fairfax man has been arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon and disturbing the peace following a fracas that began at a San Rafael tavern and ended in a parking lot a block away.

Eugene Francis Maher, 27, of 55 Bolinas Road, began by throwing a full glass of beer at Marcia Lyon, a female employee at the Patio bar on Fourth Street, witnesses told police. He threw more glasses at the walls and furniture, and then accosted Charles Dotson of 171 Elm, Mill Valley, threatening to kill him, according to witnesses' accounts.

Dotson fled with Maher in pursuit, finally confronting each other in a parking lot at Third and Cijos streets. Maher grabbed a clay jug from a nearby truck, and Dotson grabbed a brick and struck Maher on the chin, knocking him to the ground, police said.

Police arrested Maher, took him to Marin General Hospital for treatment of a cut chin, and booked him at the Marin County Jail. He was released without bail to appear Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Pleads Innocent To Auto Theft

An 18-year-old San Franciscan pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony count of stealing a car from a San Mateo man in August.

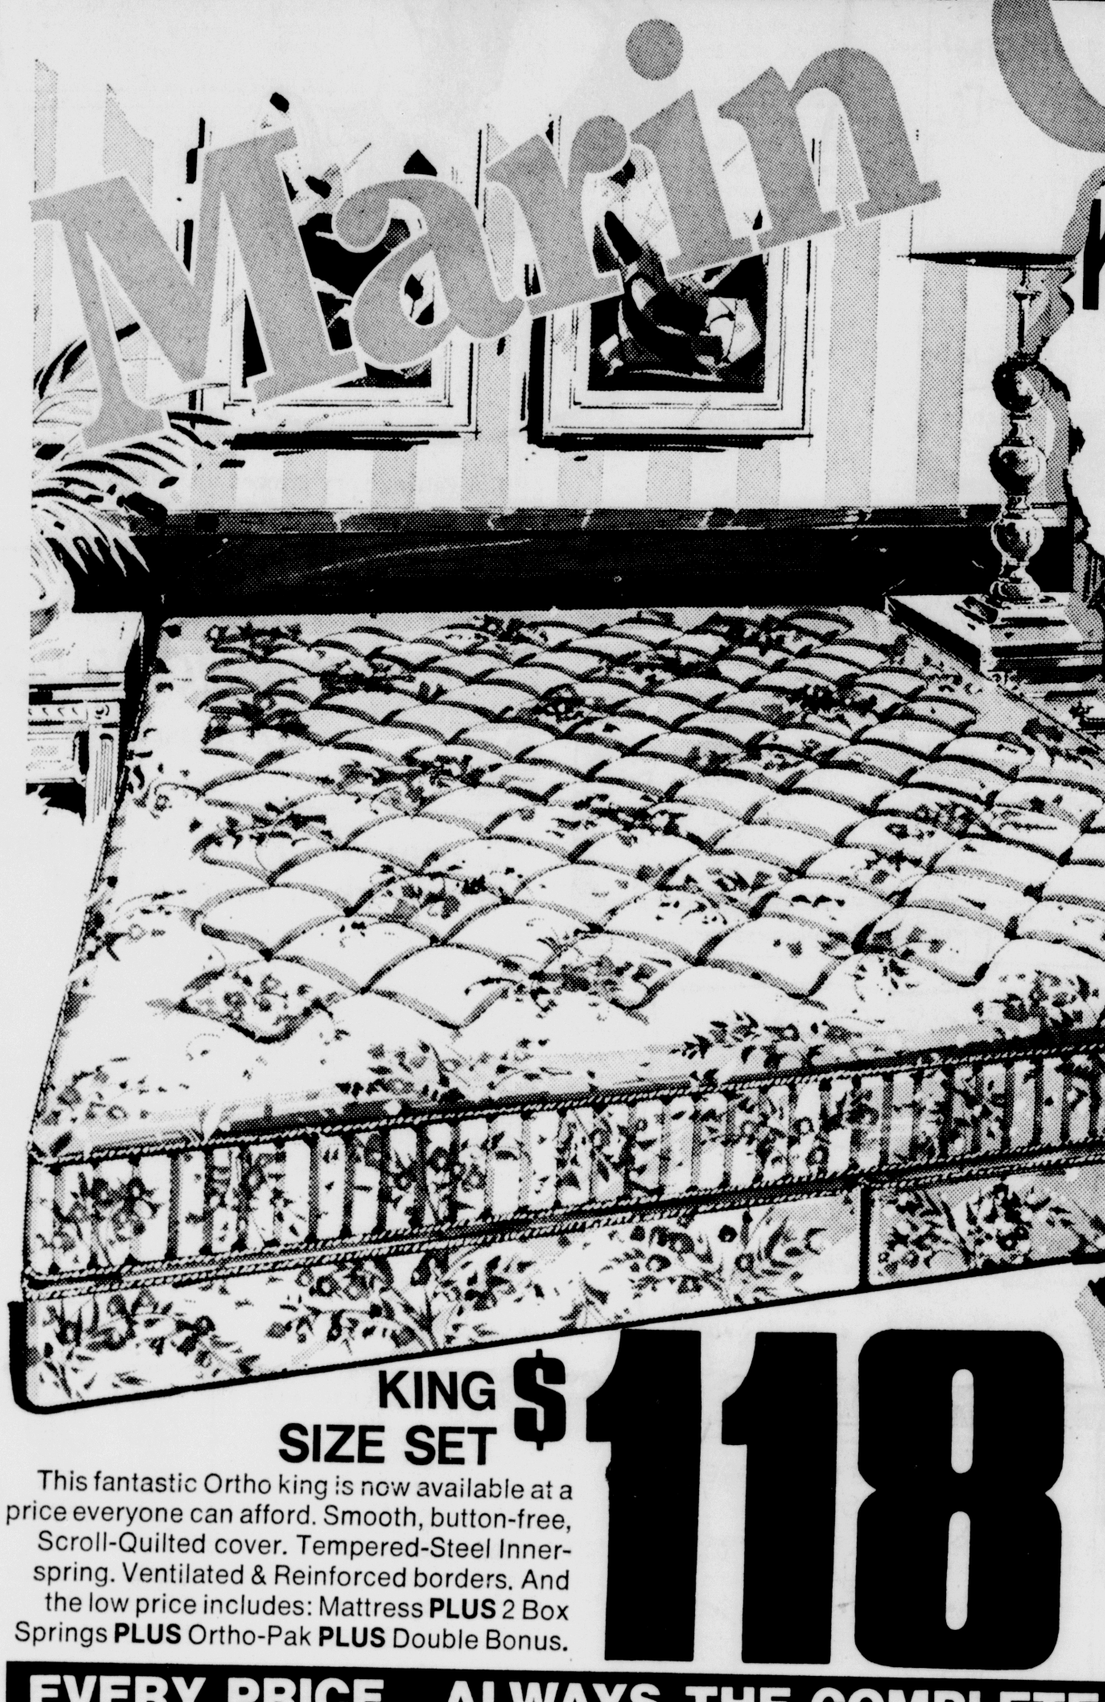

A preliminary hearing for Clay Leon Huckins was set for Oct. 24.

The California Highway Patrol arrested the youth Aug. 23 on Highway 101 near the Marin County Dump in Novato when a license check revealed the car he was driving reportedly had been stolen from Figone. Fignone.

World Series Emotional Drama Unfolds: Campy In, Jackson Out

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The story of the most emotional drama so far in the 1972 World Series could be seen in their eyes.

Reggie Jackson's eyes were clouded, almost misty and filled with despair. Bert Campaneris' eyes had a contrite look but a beam of relief shone through.

"I can't help the team, I can't play, I can't be in the World Series," Jackson sighed just before he hobbled onto the turf of Riverfront Stadium on his crutches."

"I no try to do it, I lost my temper," Campaneris said softly in his thick accent. "I very sorry. I very happy to play in the Series."

That was it. Campaneris is in and Jackson is out. And the two players were obviously on an emotional see-saw with Campaneris' sense of relief only matched by Jackson's sense of bitter frustration.

Campaneris, suspended for the final three American League playoff games for throwing a bat at Detroit pitcher Lerrin LaGrow, was to be at shortstop today when the underdog Oakland A's go into the Series against the Cincinnati Reds.

Tomorrow's second world series in Cincinnati starts at 10 a.m. Pacific Coast time, and will be televised by NBC, Channels 3 and 4. Tickets for games three, four and five at the Oakland Coliseum are still available at the Coliseum box office. Games three, four and, if necessary, five at the Oakland Coliseum begin at 5:15 p.m. Pacific Coast time.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn gave him a reprieve when he reinstated him for the Series and said he will finish out his suspension in the first seven games of the 1973 season.

But there could be no reprieve for Jackson. He can't play again until 1973.

"You can pray for it to be 95 degrees tomorrow but it ain't gonna happen," Jackson said.

The A's centerfielder didn't learn officially until after the A's workout when two doctors examined the knee and took W-rays that he is officially out of the entire Series and will be replaced on the roster by Alan Lewis.

The pain in his leg, though, gave him the answer. He couldn't sleep at all Thursday night and the doctors told him he strained his knee muscles, pulled a calf muscle and ruptured a hamstring. It all added up to the fact that he couldn't even walk on it.

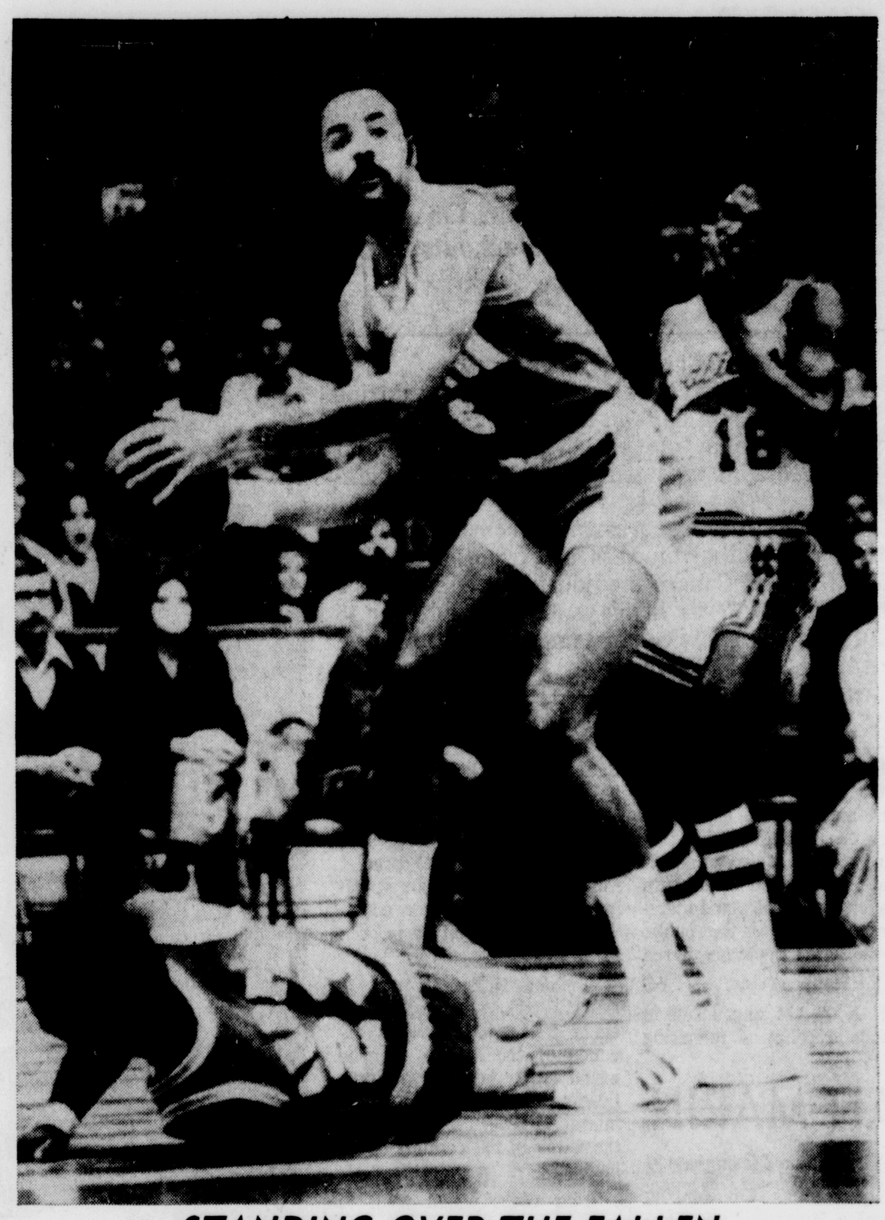

Jackson suffered the injury stealing home in the second inning of Oakland's 2-1 victory over Detroit Thursday. Without that run, the clubs would have gone into extra innings and Oakland might have lost. So, if he hadn't been injured, the club might not be the American League champions.

It was an irony that Jackson could appreciate.

For any athlete, it would be unfortunate but for an emotional, articulate athlete like Jackson, it was a severe blow.

"I play with emotion," Jackson said, "I don't hide my emotions. I tell you how I feel. I'm glad I'm sensitive. I've got some very close friends. Dave Duncan cried for me on the plane here because I couldn't play and I cried with him. I need to be able to share it. If I

San Rafael Is Stunned

By LEW CODDINGTON

Exploding into a rage of defensive opportunism in the fourth quarter, San Marin High School struck for three touchdowns inside four minutes and scored an 18-12 upset football victory over host San Rafael High last night.

Led by Fred Doar, who had a hand, foot or shoulder in all three scores, the Mustangs erased a 12-0 lead and beat San Rafael for the first time in their four-year varsity history.

The weather was clear but the field at San Rafael was muddy, and about 2,500 fans watched the two teams struggle through the muck until Doar decided the issue by falling on a blocked punt in San Rafael's end zone with 8:02 remaining. Steve Fowler blocked the kick.

The victory stamped San Marin as an authentic contender for the Marin County Athletic League championship. The Mustangs are 2-1 in the league and 4-1 over-all, while San Rafael slumped to 1-2 and 2-3.

"The defense won it," said jubilant Mustang head coach Bob Martin, who was worried before the game because his defense was deprived of the services of linebacker Dave Azevedo, hospitalized for abdominal surgery.

"I'm not a 'Win one for the Gipper' kind of coach, but I think the boys wanted this one for Dave," Martin said.

It didn't look like the Mustangs would win one for anybody after San Rafael built its two-touchdown lead, but San Marin got a big break late in the third quarter when the Bulldogs fumbled a Mustang punt on their own 35 and Craig Leaf recovered.

Seven plays later, fullback Doar blasted six yards up the middle to put San Marin on the scoreboard.

On San Rafael's next offensive series, linebacker Doar smashed Bulldog quarterback Lance Loughlin, forcing a fumble, and Steve Baldocchi scopped it up and ran 15 yards for a score.

After the Mustang defense choked off San Rafael's next effort, Steve Fowler blocked a Bulldog punt and Doar fell on it in the end zone.

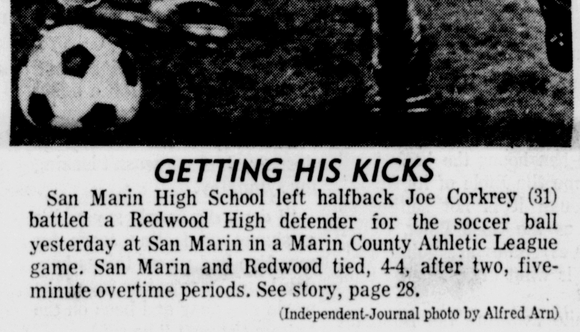

It all happened in 3:48, and nullified 44:12 of statistical dominance by San Rafael, which outgained San Marin, 195 yards to 120. Three lost fumbles, two pass interceptions and some untimely penalties on offense negated the advantage.

San Rafael scored late in the

Marin 'Cats Overcome Healdsburg

A second quarter Ben Partee touchdown pass to Dan Mahoney covering 52 yards plus a two-point conversion lifted visiting Marin Catholic to an 8-6 football victory last night over Healdsburg.

Winning coach Bruno Banducci explained, "I called the play but (split end) Mahoney was not the primary receiver. However, Mahoney was so wide open, Partee threw to him instead of intended receiver Rick Cervisi." Cervisi then plunged over for the decisive conversion.

After the score moments before halftime, Banducci's defense held off the Healdsburg offense on a muddy field.

"Gino Pomilia, a linebacker, and Jim Schalich, a tackle, did a fine job. Partee, the starting quarterback and defensive halfback played a fine game also," Banducci said.

The affair started poorly for the Marin Wildcats as the visitors arrived five minutes late for the kickoff after having difficulty finding the high school. Following the tardy arrival, the 'Cats were penalized 15 yards on the opening kickoff for delaying the game.

"What made it worse is we fumbled the ball on the second play after the kickoff. We held them, but they eventually scored in the first period. But from then on, our defense held."

Simpson-Paced Bills Try To Embarrass Host Raiders

OAKLAND (UPI) — Triple threat O.J. Simpson has brought respectability to the Buffalo Bills and now would like to bring embarrassment to the Oakland Raiders.

The San Francisco native, finally getting some help in the Bills backfield from guys like Jim Braxton, leads Buffalo Sunday against the Oakland Raiders. The Bills are averaging 130 yards rushing per game behind Simpson and Braxton.

"There's no doubt that O.J.'s a great back," said Raiders' Coach John Madden. "He's probably the fastest halfback in football."

Madden admitted it is difficult to defense Simpson because he also throws passes and can catch them.

"I'd say that's taking full advantage of your personnel," added Madden in offering part of a compliment to new Bills' Coach Lou Saban.

Madden also is concerned about Buffalo's momentum. After opening losses to the New York Jets and Baltimore Colts, the Bills rallied for wins over San Francisco (27-20) and New England (38-14).

Complementing the Bills running attack is a fine passing game triggered by quarterback Dennis Shaw who has hit on 35 of 75 for five touchdowns and 500 yards. He has a trio of topnotch receivers in J.D. Hill, Bob Chandler and Haven Moses.

Oakland, battling Kansas City, as usual, for the lead in the AFC West, is 2-1-1. With the exception of offensive tackle Bob Brown's sore hand, the Raiders are in top health.

Speedy Clarence Davis will spell Charlie Smith at running back next to pile-driving Marv Hubbard.

Against the Bills passing game, the Raiders will throw the best pass defense in the American Football Conference chaps like Fred Biletnikoff, Raymond Chester and rookie Mike Siani will go against a Buffalo secondary of safeties Alvin Wyatt and Maurice Tyler and cornerbacks Robert James and Tony Greene. Wyatt is a former Raider.

Saban strengthened the Buffalo defense this season by putting No. 1 draft pick Walt Patulski and former USC stalwart Al Cowlings at the ends with newcomers Don Croft and Jerry Patton at tackles. This quartet played havoc with the running game of the San Francisco 49ers a couple of weeks ago.

Jets, Giants At Moment Of Truth

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

New York City's two contributions to the National Football League — the Giants and the Jets — have arrived at that moment of truth in the early stages of the 1972 season known as "turn-around-or-sink time."

Both squads have 2-2 won-lost logs and victory Sunday would mean a winning ledger and a decidedly upward tilt to each team's fortunes.

Oddly enough, the Giants, tied with St. Louis for third in the National Football Conference East, and the Jets, second to Miami but already two games in back of the unbeaten Dolphins in the American Football Conference East, both face teams with similar 2-2 records and equally anxious to rise a cut above mediocrity.

GIANTS, JETS

The Giants play the Forty Niners at San Francisco and the Jets shoot up to Foxboro, Mass., to face the erratic New England Patriots.

The Jets are eight-point favorites in their game while the Giants find themselves eight-point underdogs.

In other contests Sunday, Minnesota is seen as 11 points better than Denver, Oakland is tabbed by 13 over Buffalo, Dallas by three over Baltimore, Washington by seven over the Cardinals, Kansas City by eight over Cincinnati and Atlanta by 13 over winless New Orleans.

Also, Miami is a nine-point pick to make it five in a row at the expense of San Diego, Los Angeles figures as at least 13 points better than Philadelphia, Pittsburgh is picked by 11 over Houston and Cleveland by five over Chicago.

Detroit is a six-point choice over Green Bay in the Monday night television offering.

FLAT

The Giants appeared flatter than Twiggy in their 30-16 opening week loss to the Lions. The following week they fumbled their way to a 23-14 loss to the world champion Cowboys before struggling back to respectability with a 27-12 win over the Eagles and a 45-21 conquest of the Saints.

However, beating Philadelphia and New Orleans (the two have a combined 0-8 record) isn't anything special. Just show up and your chances are a helluva lot better than 50-50.

PLUNKETT

As Jim Plunkett throws, so go the Patriots. The 24-year-old neophyte superstar had outstanding games in the Pats' wins over Atlanta and the Redskins and like the little girl with the curl he was horrible in New England's losses to the Bengals and Buffalo.

"Every time Jim has a super game, we win," said offensive Coach Sam Rutigliano. "What we have to do is win when he has an average game."

NAMATH

Joe Willie Namath picked his gimpy legs off his llama skin rug and threw a total of seven touchdown passes in New York's first two wins —41-24 over Buffalo and 44-34 over the Colts.

Then the Jets' secondary lost sight of the fact that its job is supposed to be to keep the other team from completing passes — touchdown or otherwise — and losses to Houston and Miami were the result.

As usual, the Jets have been bitten by the injury bugaboo and hopes of contention, dimmed by the happenings of the last two weeks, may be snuffed out altogether if Plunkett outdistances Namath.

New-Look Warriors Host Bucks

OAKLAND (UPI) — Golden State's new-look Warriors, with Rick Barry back in tow, won't have a soft touch tonight when they open their National Basketball Association season.

Providing the opposition will be the Milwaukee Bucks and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"I wanted to get a good look at their guards (Oscar Robertson, Jon McGlocklin, Lucius Allen and Wally Jones)," said Attles. "Maybe we can get a good matchup early."

Barry will be wearing his old No. 24 as he returns to the Warriors for the first time since 1967 when he jumped to the rival American Basketball Association.

The star forward told a booster's club luncheon Friday that the present Warriors "have better personnel than the one I left in 1967." That one captured the Western Division title but lost to Philadelphia in the NBA final.

Barry will operate at forward with Cazzie Russell, Joe Ellis and Bob Portman. Nate Thurmond will oppose Abdul Jabbar at center and be spelled by Clyde Lee and newcomer George Johnson if necessary.

Johnson, a 6-foot-11 product from Dillard College, impressed Attles in pre-season workouts as he beat out seven-foot Vic Bartolome and Bill Turner. Charlie Johnson, a tenacious guard from Cal, is the other newcomer to the Warriors.

Jeff Mullins tops the Warrior backcourt which includes Fritz Williams, Jim Barnett and Charlie Johnson.

Unpredictable 49ers Play Improved Football Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The unpredictable San Francisco 49ers, as good as they can be one week and awful the next, try to get straightened out against the improving New York Giants Sunday.

San Francisco, 2-2 and trailing in the NFC West, is favored by 7 1-2 points over the Giants, also 2-2 and trailing in the NFC East. The game is a sellout at 61,000-seat Candlestick Park and gets underway at 1 p.m. PDT.

The 49ers, routed 31-7 by the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday when they were the favorites, too, will start with John Brodie at quarterback and Ken Willard at fullback. The two, as usual, are the key to the team's offensive success.

Willard has to help establish a running game so that Brodie can set up a passing attack. The two never really got untracked against Los Angeles with Willard gaining only 30 yards rushing and Brodie hitting on 10 of 18 passes for 135 yards.

The Giants, who whipped New Orleans, 45-21, in their last start, have problems and their starting backfield probably won't be decided upon by coach Alex Webster until just before game time.

That's because of injuries to veteran running back Bobby Duhon and kick return specialist Rocky Thompson, both hurt in the New Orleans game. Duhon suffered a charley horse while Thompson injured an ankle.

Webster said that if neither can make it Sunday he will reactivate former 49ers running back Joe Orduna. If one or the other makes it, then Orduna will remain on the taxi squad.

Also, a pulled calf muscle to defensive lineman Dan Goich has resulted in the re-activation of Charlie Harper, a former offensive lineman who will move in as a backup on defense.

Sunday's game marks the first time Webster and Dick Nolan, coach of the 49ers, have faced each other as rivals. Both played withthe Giants in the 50s, Webster as a running back and Nolan as a defensive back.

The two clubs have met only six times in the past with the Giants leading the series, 4-2, but the 49ers won the last game, 26-10, in 1968, which was Nolan's first year as San Francisco head coach.

Veteran Norm Snead directs the New York offense. Currently, he is the top passer in the NFC. Against New Orleans last Sunday, Snead connected on 12 of 17 throws for 149 yards and three touchdowns. In all, he has thrown nine scoring passes this season.

Trevino, Weiskopf In Match Play Golf

WENTWORTH, England (UPI)—Lee Trevino figured he aged 10 years enroute to today's 36-hole all-American final against Tom Weiskopf in the Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship.

"I feel like 42 now," he said after emerging weary in mind and body but triumphant by the narrowest margin possible from his semi-final Friday against Tony Jacklin.

Trevino, runner-up in 1970 to Jack Nicklaus in another great match, won with a birdie four on the 36th green to end a pulsating contest of truly stupendous quality that neither player deserved to lose.

Jacklin, the 28-year-old local idol who reserves his best performances for the "big ones," carded an 11-under-par figure 63 for his second tour of the 6,997 yard, par-74 course and got beat one-up.

Trevino shot seven-under-par 67's in both morning and afternoon rounds and only just scraped home despite leading by four holes after the opening 18.

It was that kind of match. Between them the pair registered four eagles and 27 birdies in 36 holes.

Weiskopf, 29, from Columbus, Ohio and making his first appearance in the $62,500 event, did it the easy way, with the help of off-form opponent Peter Oosterhuis. The 24-year-old Englishman, conqueror of title-holder Gary Player in the previous round, failed to win a hole until the 20th, by which time he was four down.

Weiskopf, eight under par for the day, ran out a 4 and 3 winner to clinch at least the runner-up prize of $11,250. First place is worth $21,250 with $7,500 going to the beaten semifinalists.

Trevino, winner over Doug Sanders Thursday, looked to be home and dry at the half-way stage, winning the 16th, 17th and 18th to consolidate his position.

Then Jacklin, who faded badly to finish the morning round in 72, got hot—burning hot. He reduced the 3,389 yard, par-36 outward half to a mere 29 strokes with five birdies and an eagle three to zip from four down to one up in six holes.

"I just did not know what the hell was going to happen then," Trevino said. But instead of collapsing under the pressure, the American counter-attacked like a champion.

After an exchange of holes followed by five successive halves, Trevino clinched at the 495 yard 18th by unleashing a tremendous three-wood to the green while Jacklin pulled his approach.

U.S. Nears Davis Cup Net Title

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — The United States moved one giant step nearer to regaining the Davis Cup today when Stan Smith and Eric Van Dillen crushed the Romanian pair of Ilie Nastase and Ion Tiriac in three straight sets.

The Americans won 6-2, 6-0, 6-3 obtaining a 2-1 lead which is considered sufficient to assure them of defending the Davis Cup they have won consecutively in the past four years.

The last two singles will be played Sunday with Smith meeting Tiriacand Tom Gorman playing Nastase.

"I knew the doubles would be the key match," said Dennis Ralston, the U.S. team's non-playing captain. "I feel relieved now."

The Americans displayed magnificent tennis with Dillen, the master in network, clearly the greatest personality on the court. Smith, the reigning Wimbledon champion, added his great experience and powerful

Kemp's Views On TV Grid Blackouts

Last of Series

Jack Kemp always was a brainy fellow during his quarterbacking days in the American Football League. His fellow players so admired him that they elected him president of their players association.

Kemp now is a congressman from New York and all pro football owners are grateful to him. Before the 92nd Congress adjourned for last year's Christmas-New Year holidays, Kemp spoke for 15 minutes to his fellow congressmen on the sensitive subject of local TV blackouts of home football games.

"If," said Kemp, "any club were to televise its home games locally, it would have to do so on the basis of a pre-determined and publicly announced policy. Good faith with its ticket buying fans requires this. It would be the height of bad faith to solicit ticket sales and thereafter announce to the public that the game would be offered free on home TV.

"IF A TEAM announced in advance a policy of televising its home games locally whenever a sellout had been achieved, the effect on ticket sales would be wholly unpredictable. Holdbacks on ticket purchases would be the order of the day, as fans attempted to predict sellout possibilities, team standing, and even weather conditions on a seasonal basis or a game-by-game basis.

"Season tickets would be sharply reduced in value, as every fan would know in advance of the season that he would either be able to obtain tickets to each game on a last-minute basis or be able to view the game in the comfort of his home.

"Few clubs would want to experiment with the dramatic impact that guessing games of this character could have on gate attendance. Nor would knowledgeable stadium authorities, almost all of whom have their rental income based on a percentage of gate receipts.

"THE SUGGESTION that local telecasts of home games would actually benefit the member clubs financially is a rather remarkable one. It proceeds on the assumption that the member clubs either do not understand their own business or that they are, for no rational reason, stubbornly resisting the opportunity to advance their own financial interests.

"But the opposition of the member clubs to local telecasts of their home games is not limited to the potential effect on ticket sales. It is also based on the clubs' desire to preserve professional football principally as a stadium spectator sport.

"The clubs do not want adverse weather conditions or poor standing of the local team during the latter part of the season to result in home games being played in half-empty stadiums even where sellouts have been achieved.

"ONLY A HANDFUL of clubs are assured of stadium sellouts in advance of the season. Most do so only rarely or with respect to particular games. Many clubs achieve sellouts on an individual game basis only at the last minute through ticket sales occurring right up to the amount of kickoff.

"One Super Bowl game was not even sold out — largely because of speculation as to the possibility of a local telecast of the game."

Romanian coach Stefan Georgescu said, "I have no explanation for this defeat. Perhaps the pressure to have to win was too much for our players."

The doubles match was preceded by harsh words of the American captain about the bad behavior of the Romanian players on the first day.

"They should not be allowed to compete in international tennis unless they radically improve their on-court manners," Ralston said.

He refered to the frequent discussions between the Romanian players and linesmen about allegedly wrong decisions.

The 6,000 fanatic spectators were asked in leaflets before the match to "abstain from protesting the referee's decisions."

At one stage of the doubles match, the Romanian referee told the crowd over the loudspeaker to "stop shouting during the play because it disturbes our players more than it does the Americans."

Nastase, who repeatedly quarelled with the linesmen on the first day, stopped playing in the first set of the doubles today and told an American tourist "stop talking or I will give you five dollars and send you home."

BOATING BOOK — San Rafael author Jack H. Feller Jr. showed his first boating book entitled: Yacht Racing Protests And Appeals. He wrote this book to fill a need of research material heretofore unavailable on this topic. Book subjects include defending and prosecuting yacht racing protests. (Independent-Journal photo)

A San Rafael Man Writes Boat Racing Appeals Book

By RON LENT

Webster's Third International Dictionary defines "want" as: "to be in want: be necessary."

For lack of research material on yacht racing protests and appeals, San Rafael author Jack H. Feller Jr. wrote a book on this boating subject.

"There was a need for this type of book for as long as I can recall, so I filled that need," Feller, 39, said about his 128-page book "Yacht Racing Protests and Appeals."

The book, published by Miller Freeman Publications of San Francisco, covers four topics: how to file, defend and prosecute yacht racing protests; preparing and presenting appeals; appeals committee conduct and actions; and race judging committee activities.

When discussing his book, illustrated by San Rafael artist Ann Newark, Feller pointed out that no one had covered this subject before, so "I decided I would.

"I've been considering this book for years." A year ago, the management consultant for Stewart & Stewart, Inc. of Fairfax wrote the outline. He did it, he recalled, at a St. Francis Yacht Club stag cruise at Tinsley Island (near Stockton). Feller completed the first manuscript September, 1971 — without research resources, he claimed.

Feller added, "I began thinking in terms of what should be said about this subject, and how it should be recorded. I have run many regattas, thus giving me knowledge in my subject area."

He subsequently called Miller Freeman Publications upon advice from friends. "They (the publishers) were immediately interested. They bought the book without seeing the completed manuscript. On Dec. 16, Feller delivered the final manuscript and production began two months later.

It was officially published in July and some 5,000 copies were printed, according to Feller.

He has hopes the book "will become the Bible of its field."

Though it is not selling as well as the Good Book, Feller believes "Sales are going well. That is what my publisher tells me."

While awaiting the financial returns, Feller is searching for "an appealing and marketable idea for a second book. I find writing fun, but I'm also in it to make money. I'm not going to make a living at it, yet the money aspects can not be ignored. I wouldn't respect an author who didn't consider the money factor."

Philadelphia Game Off: Ice Problems

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The World Hockey Association completed the secondnight of its competitive existence Friday, with four games on tap.

But the game that caused the most excitement was one that wasn't played.

That was at Philadelphia, where the home opener of the Blazers was postponed because the ice wasn't considered "icy" enough to play on.

The surface of the ice was cracking badly at face-off time. An ice-surfacing machine was wheeled into Convention Hall one-half hour after the scheduled startof the game.

It was discovered, however, that the composition beneath the surface would not support the weight of the machine.

That fact forced officials to reschedule the Blazers' game with the New England Whalers until a later date.

A crowd of about 5,000 people pelted the playing surface with debris, including pucks they had purchased as what they thought would be souvenirs of the first WHA game they had ever attended.

In the games that were played, Quebec blanked Alberta 6-0, Winnipeg edged Minnesota, 4-3 and Houston outlasted Los Angeles, 3-2.

Vallejo '11' Beaten By Petaluma

By PAUL DWORIN

Petaluma High School had a lucky Friday the 13th last night, as the Trojans scored a 7-6 North Bay League football victory over the visiting Vallejo High Apaches.

The Trojans now have a 3-0 record in league and may have sole possession of first place depending on the outcome of the Ukiah-Napa game. Petaluma is now 4-1 for the season, which is the most games it's won in seven years.

The winning touchdown came on a perfectly executed screen pass from Steve Crawford to Mike Maselli, who with the assistance of great blocks by Mike Swaney and Jack Ryno, broke a few tackles and raced down the left sideline for a 50-yard scoring play.

Dan Solis kicked the extra point. "It was an automatic kick situation. We had no decision to make," Petaluma coach Tony Kehl explained later.

want to cry, I'm not going to hold it back."

Playing in a Series had been a treat that Jackson had longed for and his parents had planned to come to see him.

But despite his feelings of despair, Jackson wasn't looking for sympathy.

"I don't dig people saying it's a shame or feeling sorry for me. I've had worse things happen to me. I've sat on top of the world one year and been on the bottom the next," he said.

Campaneris, whose native language is Spanish, doesn't express himself as well as Jackson but the feeling was still there.

Throwing the bat, after he was hit with a pitch, was obviously an impulse that he quickly regretted.

"I hurt so bad, I just threw the bat. But afterwards, why I throw bat. I say to myself, how I throw the bat. I no think I do it again. I'm sorry about it," he said.

Campaneris, now having the chance to play, was obviously relishing the competition that Jackson would miss. His thing is getting on base and he'll be running on the arm of Cincinnati's Johnny Bench. Bench has the best arm in baseball and Campaneris' ankle is still sore but Campaneris will be looking for his chances to run.

"If I get a good jump I can run on anybody," Campaneris said. "I no care who throw if I get a good jump."

And the guy who'll be spurring him on will be Jackson, who has become the team's No. 1 cheerleader.

"All I can do is say to the guys is 'c'mon let's go.' That's about it," Jackson said.

Another Watts' Boxing Foe Out

NEW YORK (UPI) —Bobby "Boogaloo" Watts had another opponent cancel out on him Friday when it was announced that Kim Booker, a promising middleweight from Oakland, Calif., had broken his right hand in training and would not be able to fight Oct. 20 at Madison Square Garden.

Harry Markson, head of boxing at the Garden, put in a call to New Orleans and got Alvin Phillips to fill in against Watts in the last of five 10rounders on the card next Friday.

Giant McCovey To Hospital

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Giants announced yesterday slugger Willie McCovey will enter Stanford Medical Center tomorrow to have a steel rod removed from his right forearm.

McCovey broke a bone in the forearm in the fourth game of the 1972 season when he collided with John Jeter of the San Diego Padres.

A steel rod, about a foot long, was inserted into the forearm to keep it rigid so McCovey could play. He was out of action for about six weeks and it took him another three weeks to regain his hitting form.

Still, the Giants used him sparingly the rest of the season and McCovey, the most feared slugger in the National League, wound up his worst big league season with 14 homers, 35 runs batted in and a .213 batting average while playing in 81 games.

Before the season ended, McCovey said he was certain removal of the rod would help him to hit better next year.

"With the rod in, my arm is too rigid," he said. "I'm sure I'll be back where I was before after they take it out."

More Baseball

CASPER, Wyo. — Steve Carlton, the Philadelphia Phillies 27-game winner and candidate for the Cy Young award, and three other major league baseball players were ordered off a Frontier Airlines flight Friday for allegedly violating Federal Aviation Agency regulations.

A Frontier spokesman said Carlton, along with Joe Hoerner and Pat Jarvis, pitchers for the Atlanta Braves, and Montreal catcher Tim McCarver were en route from Denver to Great Falls, Mont., on a hunting trip.

Braves' slugger Hank Aaron was with the group, and deplaned with his companions, although Frontier personnel said he could have remained aboard.

The spokesman in Denver said the group was playing a tape recorder and drinking liquor from its own supply, both violations of FAA regulations, and refused to stop whena stewardess asked them to do so.

Auto Racing

MONTEREY — George Follmer, Arcadia, and Mark Donohue, Newton Square, Pa., steered their Porsches to record trial times Friday in qualifying runs of the $75,000 Monterey Grand Prix.

Both roared their turbocharged cars around the 1.9 mile Laguna Seca track in 58.66 seconds for an average speed of 116.6 miles an hour. The old time was 58.76 set by Peter Revson.

Golf

NAPA — Arnold Palmer has joined the field for next week's $150,000 Kaiser International Open at Silverado Country Club.

Also in the field are Jack Nicklaus, shooting to become the first man in history to win $300,000 in a single year, Billy Casper, Lee Trevino, George Archer, Jerry Heard and Grier Jones, all among the leading money winners this year.

Another who will play is Gene Littler from La Jolla making a comeback after cancer surgery.

Tennis

BOCCA RATON, Fla. — Billie Jean King vs. Chris Evert — one of the classic matchups in women's tennis — was set for a sixth engagement today in the semi-finals of the $100,000 Virginia Slims tennis tourney.

King and the 17-year-old Chris easily overcame their opponents Friday to advance to the semifinals, along with Kerry Melville of Australia, who meets Francoise Durr of Paris in today's other match.

Mrs. King defeated Wendy Overton of Ormond Beach, Fla., 7-6, 6-2 Friday. Chris beat Karen Krantzchke of Australia 6-2, 6-2.

REAGAN BETS BOTTLE OF WINE ON A'S WIN

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan Friday bet OhioGovernor John Gilligan two bottles of California wine against a bushel of corn that the Oakland A's would defeat the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series.

Gilligan challenged Reagan to the bet in a telegram in which he offered a bushel of Ohio sweet corn "against whatever you choose that our Reds will beat your Athletics in the World Series."

Reagan accepted and wagered a bottle of California-produced chablis and a burgundy, adding that "our A's will start a prairie fire around the base paths at Riverfront Stadium and will continue the carnage at the Oakland Coliseum."

"As you know, California produces the world's finest wines," Reagan told Gilligan in a telegram. "I look forward to enjoying a glass with your sweet corn."

Cheerleaders, Mule Welcome Home A's

OAKLAND (AP) — A band, cheerleaders and their mule mascot, Charlie O., will welcome the American League champion Oakland A's home tomorrow.

Civic leaders and A's boosters will be at Oakland International Airport to greet the team when it returns from the first two World Series games in Cincinnati.

The A's are expected to arrive about 6:30 p.m. PDT, depending on the time Sunday's game is completed.

The National League champion Reds are scheduled to arrive at 11:40 a.m. PDT Monday, and both teams have scheduled practices that day in the Oakland Coliseum to prepare for Tuesday's third game.

NBA ROUNDUP

Havlicek Lifts Celtics

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

John Havlicek, the human dynamo, has got the Boston Celtics running again and that means bad news for the rest of the National Basketball Association.

Havlicek, who seems never to stop moving, led the famed Boston fast break in the first half Friday as the Celtics piled up a 61-40 halftime bulge against the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers and topped all scorers with 30 points as Boston notched a 112-104 triumph.

Happy Hairston tallied 10 points in the third quarter for Los Angeles, but the Lakers still trailed 90-68 going into the final period.

The Lakers drew to within six points of the Celtics by opening the fourth quarter with 10 straight points, but Boston managed to hold on for the win.

Aggressive center Dave Cowens followed Havlicek for Boston with 26 points while Don Nelson chipped in with 16 points. Jerry West paced the Lakers with 21 points and was followed by Jim McMillian and Hairston, each of whom scored 20 points.

In other NBA action Milwaukee defeated Phoenix 117-105, Buffalo edged Philadelphia 104-101, Baltimore beat Atlanta 115-98, Houston nipped Cleveland 109-108, Detroit kayoed Chicago 100-91 and Seattle beat Portland 92-84.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar poured in 41 points to lead the Bucks in their season-opening victory over Phoenix.

Philadelphia, off to a rocky start under new coach Roy Rubin, lost its third straight game as Fred Hilton paced a balanced Buffalo scoring attack with 22 points.

Phil Chenier and Stan Love combined for 45 points and Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes hauled in a combined 30 rebounds as the Bullets overwhelmed the Hawks.

Pete Maravich led the Hawks with 27 points and five assists.

Bob Lanier's 21 points led Detroit as all five of the Piston starters scored 14 or more points in toppling the Chicago Bulls.

ABA ROUNDUP

Nets Dominate Colonels

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Between April Fool's Day last season and Friday the 13th yesterday, the American Basketball Association New York Nets, underdogs in every game, have beaten the Kentucky Colonels five times in seven meetings.

New York's energetic coach, Lou Carnesecca, was at a loss after his young team overwhelmed Kentucky 114-90 Friday night to explain the Nets' apparent dominance over the strongest team in the league — a team which last year set an ABA mark with a 68-16 regular season record.

"I don't know if we have anything special over them," Carnesecca beamed while trying to relax after the game. "But we were definitely alive out there."

Agreeing with Carnesecca was Nets guard John Roche, who deflated the Colonels by hitting 14 of 21 field goals, mostly from 20-30 feet out, and scoring 32 points.

"It's too early to tell just how far we've come. Kentucky is a better team than they showed tonight and they'll be very strong by the middle of the season," said Roche.

In the two other ABA games Friday, the Denver Rockets handed the new San Diego Conquistadors a 109-100 defeat and the Carolina Cougars dumped the defending ABA champion Indiana Pacers 106-88.

A New Store In A New County Means Another Grand Opening Sale

Our new San Rafael store is open and all our stores share in the sale prices we're celebrating with. The savings will stagger you. The San Rafael store also has an exclusive four-channel show by Pioneer, which you won't want to miss. So if you come to Pacific Stereo this week you'll be able to get great gear for unusually low prices. You can sit down with a cup of coffee and talk to some knowledgeable people who will help you select what's really best for you. When you do choose, we make sure all the equipment is in good working order before it leaves the store. And of course, our five-year written no hassle warranty will apply to any system, as well as our 60-day exchange option and one year speaker trial, all as explained in detail at the bottom of the page. In fact, you'll find a lot of interesting details down there, after you've looked over the Grand Opening sale items you'll find on the way down.

1 AN ENTICINGLY LARGE SAVING ON A $500 PIONEER SYSTEM. If you're at all familiar with the high quality of Pioneer components, the chance to save $136 on a system with the versatile Pioneer 727 AM/FM stereo receiver should tempt you a great deal. With the 727, you can later expand your system to include three sets of speakers, two tape recorders with monitoring for both, two record players, stereophones and a microphone. The 727's versatility is matched by its performance. Our tests show 72 RMS watts of power cleanly delivered, and the tuner section achieves 50 decibels of quieting with an FM signal of 2.6 microvolts, so you should get noise-free reception of any station on the air. A full range of controls is provided, including separate bass and treble controls for each channel and separate signal strength and center channel meters for precise FM tuning. The Pioneer 727 usually sells for $349.95.

Garrard's SL65B automatic record player has a viscous damped cueing and pause lever that makes it awfully hard to scratch a record even accidentally, an adjustable anti-skate control to keep the needle in the center of the groove, and a tubular aluminum tonearm with an adjustable counterweight so you can set the tracking pressure for minimum record wear. Equipped with an ADC 220X cartridge and a base, it normally sells for $85.90.

Quadraflex Q55's are almost certainly the best $200 a pair speaker systems you've heard. Their sound is clean as can be, and their deep bass response and power handling capacity leave very little to be desired. Each walnut finish enclosure has a ten-inch high compliance linear motion bass speaker, a 4½-inch midrange in an acoustic suspension isolation chamber to prevent interference between elements, a three-inch wide dispersion treble speaker, and special taper controls for balancing the three drivers.

2 $225 ALTEC MADRIDS FOR $169.95

Altec Madrids have the same drivers as the popular Altec Santana speaker systems, but they're in different cabinets and, because of our Grand Opening Sale price, a good deal less expensive. They consist of a two-way "biflex" 15-inch bass speaker and a treble speaker in an extremely handsome floor standing cabinet. The overall sound is the kind that has distinguished Altec Lansing over the years. Altec's price is $225 apiece. You save a lot if you hurry.

3 OVER 1/3 OFF ON NIKKO'S BEST RECEIVER SAVES YOU $110 The 9010 is Nikko's top-of-the-line AM/FM stereo receiver, with 60 watts of RMS power and a highly sensitive tuner section. Volume, balance, bass and treble are regulated by slider type controls while piano-key switches control mode, tape monitor, loudness and interstation noise muting. The loudness control assures full and satisfying bass response at low volume levels, while the muting provides clean intervals of silence between FM stations on the dial. Noise filters eliminate high frequency scratch or low frequency rumble from incoming signals. The 9010 also has circuit breakers, an earphone jack and provision for switching two sets of speakers. It's a good value at its $309.95 nationally advertised price; at our Grand Opening Sale price of $199.95 it's a value indeed. But we have only a very limited quantity, so hurry! .....$199.95

4 AN INCREDIBLY LOW INTRODUCTORY PRICE ON MEMOREX TAPE. Memorex makes just about the best low noise/high output tape you can get for your reel-to-reel recorder. Now they have a new series that's even better than the tape we've been selling for $4.99. That should tell you how incredible our Grand Opening introductory price really is for these 1800' seven-inch reels. . . $1.99

5 SPECTROSONIC'S NEWEST RECEIVER IN OUR LOWEST-PRICED SPECTROSONIC SYSTEM EVER. The 55-4 is Spectrosonic's newest receiver, and it has almost all the features of the other Spectrosonics. But it has a lower price, and that's what makes it ideal for a budget-saving system. With its 16 RMS watts of wide-band power, it outperforms any receiver on the market under $200. It has full tape monitoring facilities, switching for two speaker systems, tuning meter, and complete 4-channel adaptability — features usually found only in much more expensive equipment. And its direct coupled amplifier circuit gives the purest possible sound. The 55-4 forms the heart of a system that is one of the best values we have ever been able to offer. The walnut case is optional.

The popular Garrard 40B is also an outstanding value. It's a totally reliably record changer with a cueing lever to gently put the arm and the ADC 220X cartridge on your records for you. With this cartridge and the base, the 40B's normal price is $55.90.

KLH 32 speaker systems sell like gangbusters. One reason is their tiny $99.90 a pair price and another is that they sound awfully good. What's inside is an eight-inch acoustic suspension bass speaker and a two-inch treble speaker. What's outside is clean, wide range sound. It's the first time we've been able to offer KLH quality in such an inexpensive system.

Or, in the case of classical music, you experience the complete ambience of the concert hall. As part of our Grand Opening celebration, Pioneer is holding a complete four-channel show and previewing their very latest components at our new San Rafael store on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday starting at noon. There are AM/FM receivers which can handle discrete four-channel reproduction or four-channel effects from two-channel sources, amplifiers for the same purpose, and equipment you can add to your existing music system to obtain the full four-channel experience. We'll be able to answer all your questions about these components and about four-channel sound in general.

SERVICES WEDNESDAY

Shrine's 10-Year Story 'Ends' With Dedication

By MARY LEYDECKER

"The Healing Shrine of the Armless Christ" will be dedicated in "very medieval" services at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Holy Innocents' Church in Corte Madera.

The outdoor shrine is a symbol of the healing ministry long practiced in the parish and, indirectly, of the cheerful practicality and devout faith of the church's longtime rector, Rev. Tod W. Ewald.

For 15 years Ewald has been involved in carrying out Christ's direction to heal the sick, a practice which he said has in recent years "been shoved underground in the church through disuse."

At two weekly healing services, Ewald has met and prayed with "many, many people" who suffer physical and mental illnesses as well as "sickness of the soul."

"I have seen the blind see again and the lame walk," he said. He described cases where "the angel of God" touched people who had speech problems and such illnesses as cancer and cerebral palsy.

"We're not running against the doctors — we're working with them," he said, "and when we work together, people get healed much sooner."

Healing, he said, is a gift, but one which anyone can ask for and receive. However, "you can't expect to play a concerto the first time you sit down at a piano," he added, and healing takes practice.

People come from all over Northern California, he said, for the healing services at noon and again at 8 p.m. on Wednesdays. Ewald also arranges to see people at other hours, including a young couple this week who came to him to help with their drug problems.

The results "leave you breathless," the rector said.

Along with his great faith, Ewald is a believer in the practicalities of life. "Whenever a parishioner goes abroad, I encourage him to bring back something for the church," he said.

As a result of this, the little redwood church is equipped with such articles as cruets from Sweden, statues from Spain and crucifixes from Mexico.

"One day about 10 years ago, a colonel came into the church," the kindly-faced rector began the story which leads to the "Armless Christ" shrine dedication next week.

The colonel had been stationed in Bavaria and he had brought back a solid oak wooden corpus, about 500 years old. The only problem with the statue of Christ was that it had no arms.

Ewald was at a loss as to what to do with the gift, so he "stored it in my root cellar." The root cellar is where he also keeps food supplies for needy people, "and everyone who went down there was frightened of this object, thinking I had a mummy in the cellar."

The corpus stayed in the cellar for some seven years until Ewald and his wife, Mary, visited the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Portugal.

"I looked up and saw that the corpus there had no legs," he said with a smile. "That doesn't look half bad, I told Mary. I've got one at home with no arms."

So when he returned, Ewald, along with architect Harold Wagstaff, fixed a place for the Christ on an outside garden wall. They put a little shelf under it but added nothing else to the garden.

"Then I discovered that kids coming home from school and other people were kneeling in the St. John's wort planted under it and praying," he said. So he conceived the idea of making the little garden areainto a comfortable shrine with a wooden deck enclosed by a wall and iron gates.

When a parishioner, Ruth Turner Torbet, died last year, she left money making this possible, and Wednesday the shrine will be dedicated in her memory.

"Jesus Christ has no other arms but ours to do his work — to show his love," the words of St. Teresa of Avilla, are written under the corpus which hangs on a wooden cross.

During the dedication ceremonies, parishioners, guests and clergy will carry candles in specially designed lanterns in a procession of the Blessed Sacrament to the shrine.

Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, Episcopal bishop of California, will be among clergy attending, and the office of solemn evensong will be sung by layman Richard Hicks. Rev. Paul Schoch of First Assembly of God, Oakland, will be the preacher, and Rev. David Schofield of Inverness will be master of ceremonies.

St. Edward's Guild will sponsor a reception following the service.

'Happening' For Youth Next Week

A Christian "Youth Happening" will be held at the community house, Delong and Machin avenues, Novato, next Saturday.

The party for teenagers, to begin at 7:29 p.m., will feature a variety of activities and games, music and a speaker from Teen Challenge in San Francisco.

Stephen Thomas, intake counselor and director of evangelism for Teen Challenge, a Christ-centered drug rehabilitation program, will speak briefly on a Christian theme.

Music will be provided by "Christ Love, Inc.," teenage choir from Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato, under the direction of Gloria Tovani.

Refreshments will be served and tickets will be available at the door.

Those planning to attend are asked to wear old clothes for participation in games. The event is sponsored by the Jesus Music Festival Steering Committee, also known as Young Marin for Christ, which sponsored an August skating party in San Rafael attended by young people from several Marin churches.

Seminary Shows Off Its Classes

San Francisco Theological Seminary's annual "Student For A Day" will be held next Saturday. Six seminary professors will present lectures from current classes.

"Student For A Day" is designed to show the laymen what type of classes seminary students are taking. The program is open to the public and is free of charge except for those who wish to have lunch, which will be $2.25.

The program will take place in Geneva Hall on the seminary's San Anselmo campus between 9:15 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Classes being offered are:

"Christianity and Contemporary Religious Movements," Dr. Surjit Singh, dean; "Urban Ministries," Dr. W. Hazaiah Williams; "Understanding Black Theology," Dr. Cornelius Berry; "The Next Step in Your Development as a Woman," Dr. Roy Fairchild; "New Forms of Worship," Rev. Howard Rice; "The Growing Impact of the Occult and Witchcraft on Christianity," Dr. Aaron Ungersma.

Those wishing to make luncheon reservations should call the seminary by Monday afternoon.

New Addition Kept Him Busy

YORK, Pa. — All sorts of things, including a newly arrived daughter, kept Rev. Glenn Hagen from preparing his usual Sunday sermon.

So, upon entering the pulpit, he said he had chosen as his text the first half of Luke 1:22: "And when he came out, he could not speak to them."

Then he sat down. The congregation of Memorial United Church of Christ understood and smiled.

GOD AND MAN

Religion, Nixon And McGovern

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

President Nixon is a Quaker. Sen. George McGovern is a Methodist. That's what their official labels say.

But both labels are highly misleading.

Nixon's Quakerism is so dilute—especially on the key doctrine of pacifism—that it would not be recognizable to George Fox, founder of the Society of Friends.

McGovern's brand of Methodism would be equally baffling to John Wesley, founder of the Methodist movement.

Both Nixon and McGovern have been described publicly by clergy-friends as "profoundly religious". This description was applied to Nixon by his unofficial White House pastor, the Rev. Billy Graham. It was applied to McGovern by Bishop James K. Armstrong of Aberdeen, S.D., head of the United Methodist Church in McGovern's home state.

Under questioning by this reporter, both Graham and Armstrong acknowledged they were using the term "religious" in somewhat elastic fashion. They were thinking, they said, of conscientious effort to apply Christian ethical precepts to practical problems of public life, rather than to any pronounced personal godliness.

Actually, neither Nixon nor McGovern is "religious" in the traditional sense of being keenly interested in religious doctrines and faithful in worship.

Although his much-publicized Sunday services in the East Room of the White House have created a wides read impression that Nixon is a regular church-goer, the truth is he attended church quite rarely before he was elected President. And since his election, his attendance at public worship (including the semiprivate White House services) has averaged less than once a month.

Although McGovern's father was a Wesleyan Methodist minister of rigorously fundamentalist faith, his son is a free-thinker in religion and persons close to him say he could not properly be described as a believer in orthodox Christian doctrine.

McGovern gave corroboration to this appraisal of his religious stance in a recent interview with the Rev. Charles P. Henderson Jr., assistant dean of the chapel at Princeton University, published in Commonweal Magazine.

Henderson reported that "despite the intense indoctrination" he received as a child, McGovern "began to doubt many of the fundamentalist doctrines of his father's religion".

"Even before he left home to fight in World War II he rejected the literal inerrancy of Scripture...He began to view the Bible as a work of great literature."

Judging from the things he says, the kind of services he likes to have at the White House, and his choice of Baptist evangelist Graham as a spiritual counselor, Nixon probably would be more accurately described as an evangelical Protestant than as a Quaker.

On the basis of his interview with Henderson and similar things he has said to others, McGovern might be more at home in the Unitarian than in the Methodist fold.

Dedication Will Be Tomorrow

Community Church of Mill Valley tomorrow will dedicate its "open space church" on the hillside property.

Ceremonies involving representatives of local churches, the City of Mill Valley, and Nature Conservancy will be at 2 p.m. and will be the culmination of months of negotiations aimed at preserving the property.

Those attending are urged to bring lunch early. Noel Newton and his "Guitar Choir" will provide music for the service.

Counseling Service Suspended

The Novato Pastoral Counseling Service will be suspended tomorrow, according to Rev. D. M. Rayment, the coordinator.

The service, which has been in operation for two years, has had only moderate success, said Rayment of the Novato Presbyterian Church.

The pastors involved in the service believed that the caseload was too small to warrant continuing it, Rayment said. The service was an association of Novato pastors who counseled troubled persons regardless of their religious affiliations.

Rayment said this does not mean that the pastors of churches have stopped counseling people, but that anyone wanting such a service should contact a local church rather than go through the service.

He said that if the need for such a service appears again, the pastoral counseling service will be reactivated.

NEIL H. BOWLES
'Not merely words'

Lecturer To Speak On Healing

There is a method of prayer that makes Christianity relevant to humanity's needs, according to a public lecture to be given in San Rafael at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Neil H. Bowles, C.S.B., a Christian Science lecturer and teacher from Atlanta, Ga., will explain why he believes answered prayer brings spiritual healing.

"A point in spiritual healing that needs to be understood," he says, "is that its method of prayer is not merely a repetition of words declared in a prescribed order."

Bowles will speak under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in the church edifice at 1618 Fifth Avenue.

A native of Chicago, Bowles has been engaged in the healing ministry of Christian Science for several years. He served as a Christian Science wartime minister during World War II and later as Committee on Publication for Georgia. He became a teacher of Christian Science in 1949, and was first named to the Christian Science Board of Lectureship in 1958.

Bowles is known to Christian Scientists for his writings and lectures and for his participation as speaker on a number of programs in an international radio series.

"What's Necessary About Religion?" is the title of his local lecture. The public is invited.

Fairfax Court To Host Meet

The Fairfax Court of the Catholic Daughters of America will host a district meeting Sunday, Oct. 22, at the Holiday Inn in San Rafael.

Delegates from several Northern California dioceses will attend.

The Fairfax group, Court St. Agnes 1428, recently celebrated its 25th anniversary and tomorrow will observe National Catholic Daughters of America Day, as proclaimed by Fairfax Mayor Albert E. Gately.

Seminary's Founders Day Is Tuesday

Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary in Mill Valley will observe its annual Founders Day Tuesday, with Dr. Gaines S. Dobbins, retired professor of church administration at Golden Gate and now of Alabama, to be key speaker at 9:50 a.m. in Broadus Hall Chapel.

Dobbins, recognized by several generations of Southern Baptists as a Christian educator, minister and writer, also will be Lecture-Dialogue Day guest at the seminary at 9:50 a.m. Thursday in room 210 of Conner Hall. Topic for the session will be "The Future of Christian Education In A Changing Church."

Dobbins, now 87, once said, "Retirement to inactivity has little appeal to a healthy man hibituated to work." He has practiced this rule throughout his life.

Dobbins retired for the second time in 1966, when he left the post of distinguished professor of church administration at Golden Gate. Ten years prior, he had retired after 36 years as a faculty member of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

Dobbins in 1968 was named as emeritus professor of religious education and church administration by Southern Seminary. In 1966, he was awarded the E. Y. Mullins Denonimational Service Award, with recognition of Dobbins as the first Southern Baptist to teach Christian journalism, pastoral care, psychology of religion and church administration.

He served as a member of the child care board for the Southern Baptist General Convention of California from 1950 to 1964. He is former chairman of the committee of church organizations for the Southern Baptist Convention, and served as chairman of the commission on bible study and membership training of the Baptist World Alliance.

He received the doctor of theology degree from Southern Seminary, where he later served as interim president. Dobbins was awarded a master of arts degree from Columbia University and earned a bachelor of arts degree from Mississippi College.

He has been active in Southern Baptist denominational life since his official retirement from Golden Gate and speaks in churches and at Southern Baptist schools and conferences. Dobbins is the author of 24 books and numerous articles.

He also wrote the words to the seminary's Golden Gate Hymn.

Witness Semiannual Assembly In Oakland

Oakland Auditorium will be the site of the semiannual circuit assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses from Marin and the East Bay Friday and next Saturday.

More than 110 from San Rafael will attend the gathering sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, Inc. The theme of the convention will be "Let Us Serve Jehovah Whole-Souled," according to Wayne Kitchel, presiding minister of the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Commenting on the assembly's purpose, Kitchel said, "Since people's faith in the Bible is being undermined by modernists and 'higher critics', assemblies such as these help establish our faith that the Bible is the word of God and is alive and the only true guide for mankind today."

Paul D. Moske, circuit minister for the area, will oversee the assembly operations which will be staffed by volunteer workers in more than 20 convention departments.

The climax of the gathering will be on Sunday, Oct. 21, at 3 p.m., when Harold K. Jackson, district overseer of Jehovah's Witnesses, will deliver a lecture to an expected 4,000 delegates on the subject, "Is This Life All There Is?"

All sessions are free and the public is invited.

Bus Lane Shows Waste Of Roadway

THE RESERVE BUS lane experiment on the Waldo Grade may bring benefits not yet obvious.

When bridge-transit managers and highway engineers first unveiled the plan to close two southbound traffic lanes to provide only one northbound bus lane, some of us expected that closing half the southbound lanes was going to be just too much. Big jam-ups would surely result, we feared.

Big jam-ups have not materialized. Two southbound lanes turn out to be adequate.

This should be no surprise. When lanes on the bridge are reversed during peak commute hours, the two remaining are quite adequate for opposite commute traffice.

THINK ABOUT this a moment and you realize that all over the state we have built monstrous multi-lane freeways to handle commute traffic. Traffic is light on one side of the median at the very moment it is creeping bumper-to-bumper on the other side.

On the light side, we have a lot of unused and wasted capacity at the very time and place we have a critical deficiency on the other side.

Obviously, our engineers need to develop workable systems for moving barriers to obtain better utilization of our existing freeway system. It has long been done in a few situations; bridges, for instance.

Now it is being done on the Waldo Grade for buses only.

In the vicinity of Candlestick Park, some streets are changed from inbound one-way before games to one-way outbound after games.

This approach needs to be expanded and perfected. Imagine Lombard Street one-way inbound in the morning and one-way outbound in the afternoons, with reserved lanes for buses.

Imaginative study of the reserve bus lane experiment on the Waldo could help get us headed in new directions in traffic handling.

TO SOME, the Waldo experiment has not measured up to expectations. With a clear downhill run in the evening, bridge district buses cruise along at a very conservative 35 miles per hour.

One would expect them to run at least the maximum legal speed for traffic in other lanes, 55 mph. Those responsible for bus maintenance, however, have decreed the 35 mph downhill limit as the optimum speed to insure long life and low operating costs for the costly vehicles.

Except in times of total stoppage on the Waldo, the buses improve their homeward bound time only a few minutes before the reserve lanes end at the Richardson Bay Bridge.

Soon the widening of the Richardson Bridge will be complete and thereafter, the special bus lane can be extended toward Alto. Later it will be continued to San Rafael.

IN THE LONGER range future, bridge district officialdom still hopes to provide separate roadways for buses.

All these advances should further increase the time advantage of the bus over private cars.

Most important of all is the long-range view that while the volume of traffic continues to increase in the public lanes and gradually choke them, the bus lanes will remain open and free.

Improved bus service has attracted some commuters out of their private cars. Presumably, expanded ferry service will do likewise in the future.

But the number of cars on the road continues to grow. When the new freeway by-passes Novato's signal-controlled downtown intersections, Southern Sonoma will be but 40 minutes commute from downtown San Francisco. More private auto commute trips most certainly will originate there.

For the driver of a private commute vehicle, the outlook is bleak. Until and unless we can figure out how to reinstitute rail commute service on our side of the Golden Gate, we will be depending more and more on buses in reserve lanes.

This is what the Waldo reserve bus lane experiment really tells us.

Otters And Oil Spills

Few animals are as appealing to most people as the playful, intelligent sea otter. Though the present California colony consists of a small group off the south of Monterey region, some otter lovers have hopes that they may eventually spread to other parts of the coast.

Besides abalone fishermen, the major enemy of the sea otter is oil spills. Because it has little subcutaneous fat, the sea otter depends on an insulating blanket of air trapped in its fur to keep warm and buoyant. Oil spills can be fatal by coating the fur, destroying warmth and causing chill.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUET to the Greenbrae Property Owners Association for banning political signs in its jurisdiction. Political posters have little place in residential areas.

BRICKBATS to those candidates who, as the campaign draws nearer its close, make increasingly wilder claims and charges, failing to back them with facts.

BOUQUET to the Oakland Athletics for winning the American League baseball championship and bringing World Series games to the Bay Area for only the second time in history, and the first since the Giants-Yankees series 10 years ago.

BRICKBAT to the United States Postal Service for experimenting with our mail service in ways that make it slower and less reliable, while at the same time asking for increased postage rates.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Highly Visible Flag Draws Congratulations

As a long-time citizen of San Rafael, I believe compliments are in order to Marin Bay Mercury-Lincoln personnel for the erection of that gigantic flag pole and display of the enormous Amerian flag for all to see going north or south on Highway 101.

The flag is clearly above all of the commercial signs on Francisco Boulevard, and it looks beautiful waving in the breeze with the hills of San Rafael in the background.

Congratulations to these people for a fine contribution to our community.

17.8 Pay Raise Versus Alleged Wage Freeze

I read in the Sept. 21 issue of the I-J about Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of Marin's Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency, getting a 17.8 per cent raise. I don't know why that is possible with Nixon's wage freeze thing. It seems wage freeze only affects a few, like middle-class and under, not upper-class and up. The rich get richer and so on.

I don't understand the Nixon wage freeze and I don't think too many people do. . .

I know, I as an electrician can't get more than 5½ per cent raise per year, and understand that an individual in a company or corporation can get any kind of raise his boss sees fit. The above named executive works for the county and is paid from tax monies. You could say he works for me, and I don't like it when my employee can get a 17.8 per cent raise and all I can get is 5½ per cent. . .

Take an electrician like myself, the total package is a lot. Say you had an electrician do some work for you, you are charged say $12 an hour for labor. Out of that $12 comes health and welfare, insurance, federal tax, state tax, FICA, SDI, etc. Take-home pay for that labor is a little over $5 an hour, with no sick pay, and in my case I have to pay close to $400 in union dues. Vacation, holiday pay is a percentage of my gross pay removed from my check. If your lucky you work all year, not too many do. The last raise I got, I took less home and that is the truth.

The 5½ per cent is fine with me as long as it covers everyone from Mr. Nixon down. I remember when Mr. President gave himself a 100 per cent raise.

Gross Commercial Exploitation In Schools

I have a complaint against rampant commercialism in schools.

Item 1: School pictures and yearbooks. — I don't know why or how they originated. My theory is that some fast-talking photographer (likewise book publisher) sold the idea to some gullible school board years ago and it caught on. Today parents pay through the nose for rotten amateur photography and cheap pasteboard yearbooks so our kids will have a couple more dust-collectors that are glanced at once in 30 years. True, we don't have to buy, but pressure is too great not to.

Item 2: Graduation mementoes. — A plain gold ring costs $15. Why does it cost $45 to add a little platform with printing on it? Especially since these rings are made by the dozen, and everybody knows they're cheaper by the dozen, why such a heavy additional cost per ring? Who gets the extra cash?

Graduation pictures. — Inflation strikes indiscriminately, I ealize, but why must I pay for proofs, and then again for finished pictures? Like the rings, pictures are produced en masse. . .

Graduation announcements. — What a big shuck! Why all that high-grade bond and all those envelopes and tissue?. . .

Item 3: The use of school staff to distribute insurance brochures raises a question — who pays for such labor? Do the teachers and staff get paid by the insurance companies? I think not. . .

The overall picture is one of cheap, gross, commercial exploitation in our schools. In addition to being expensive, it encourages acceptance of second-rate material which is not really necessary. I'm trying to teach my children to be selective on a basis of need.

There is enough such exploitation in the world. Must our schools continue nurturing it? I hope not!

The Great Capitol Murder Plot, Or, Who Killed All Those Bills?

WASHINGTON — When Detective Reilly walked into the rotunda of the Capitol he was aghast. Lying there on the floor were the bodies of the Welfare Reform Bill, the Consumer Protection Agency Bill, the Mass Transit Bill, and the Minimum Wage Bill.

"Geez!" whistled Reilly. "This is worse than the St. Valentine's Day massacre."

He went over to his assistant, Detective Monday.

"WHAT HAPPENED?" Reilly asked.

"I don't know," Monday said. "They were all alive and healthy one day, and the next moment they were all killed. Nobody saw anything."

Reilly went over to the Welfare Reform Bill and pulled back the sheet. It was mangled and torn beyond recognition. Reilly almost got sick to his stomach. He asked Monday, "Anybody identify the bodies?"

"Someone said they were all related to a guy named Nixon who lives at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. We sent for him. He sould be here any minute."

JUST THEN, two policemen brought in a dark-haired man with a heavy 5 o'clock shadow.

Reilly went up to him. "Mr. Nixon, sorry to bother you at this hour, but we were wondering if you could identify any of these bills lying there on the floor."

Nixon, without looking, said, "I never saw any of them before in my life."

Detective Monday referred to some notes. "Witnesses say you introduced these bills and then killed them."

"It's a lie," Nixon said. "I haven't been up here on the Hill for months."

"Well, let me ask you this. Did you know the deceased at all?" Reilly asked.

NIXON SAID, "You can't pin this one on me. Congress killed them. I had nothing to do with it."

"We're not accusing you of anything, Mr. Nixon," Reilly said. "We're just trying to put the pieces together." He pulled the sheet back from the Consumer Protection Agency Bill. "Do you recognize this one?"

"I don't remember," Nixon said.

"What about the Mass Transit Bill over there?" Monday asked. "Your man John Volpe testified last month you supported this bill."

"Volpe doesn't know what he's talking about."

"And I suppose you know nothing about the killing of the Minimum Wage Bill either?"

"I told you, I don't know nothing!" Nixon shouted. "You can't pin a thing on me!"

"THERE IS NO sense getting excited," Reilly said. "Let me ask you this. Do you know of any lobbyists who would want to have these bills eliminated?"

"I refuse to answer on the grounds it would incriminate me," Nixon said.

Just then a detective rushed in. "Someone's just killed a congressional investigation of the Watergate bugging incident in the House Banking Committee."

Reilly asked Nixon, "You couldn't shed any light on that one, could you?"

Nixon wiped his lips nervously. 'It comes as much of a surprise to me as it does to you."

'Four More Years' Meaning Is Special For Utility Firms

WASHINGTON — Four more years! For the fat-cat donors of so many millions to re-elect the President, that slogan carries the promise that the regulatory agencies will be stacked with sympathetic friends of big business. Begun in the first four years, the process will gather momentum in the second term as vacancies come up on federal communications, federal power, federal trade — the agencies that can mean so much to the corporate balance sheet.

Although it is, in theory, a temporary barrier against inflation, the price commission shows how higher profits are blessed even though they go along with rate increases. Electric bills are going up all across the country. That puts an added burden on the budget of every householder into the indefinite future, for those rates never come down.

OF THE 100 LARGEST electric utiities, 76 showed a rise in net profits in 1971 over 1970, according to a table put in the Congressional Record by Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont. The table came out of Electirc Light and Power, the house organ of the industry. The price commission granted rate increases to company after company showing a big jump in the profit ratio.

For example, the commission approved a 15.5 per cent increase for Indiana and Michigan Electric, a subsidiary of the giant New York holding company, American Eletric Power. American Electric had a net-after-tax profit of 19.27 cents out of every revenue dollar in 1971. This was a jump from 17.56 cents in 1970.

"The outlook for 1972 is for an even more profitable year for the utilities at the expense of millions of wage earners' whose earning power dwindles," Metcalf told the Senate. "In my state Montana Power kept as net profit 22.62 cents out of every revenue dollar it collected last year. Its net profit during the first six months of this year rose to 24.3 cents . . . And it now has pending before the state Public Service Commission a rate-increase request amounting to 17 per cent for its electric operations and 29 per cent for its gas operations.

"One thing is perfectly clear. The Nixon administration is winning its fight to make the rich richer and the poor poorer."

BECAUSE ELECTRIC utilit companies hold a monopoly on a commodity that is a necessity for the householder and for industry, the theory has been that rates would be regulated at reasonable levels by public authority. State utility commissions have been the principal instruments. But, as has been demonstrated again and again, they are not up to an increasingly complex task. Lacking adequate trained and experienced staff, the state commissions find all too often that their best people are recruited at much higher salaries by the utilities.

Some states, as Metcalf noted, do not have regulartory agencies. What the price commission appears to have done is merely to ratify the findings of state commissions even though they sanctioned whopping rate increases that would further higher profits.

Sen. Frank E. Moss, D.-Utah, pointed to an increase in the price of natural gas of $111 million in 1970 and $531 million in 1971. He charged that this was a payoff of big campaign contributors who want to see the Federal Power Commission become a compliant arm of the White House. Moss noted that of the $800 million contirbuted by petroleum executives in the 1968 campaign, 93 per cent went to the Republicans. And, as the first Nixon appointment to the FPC made amply clear, that agency will soon be dominated by men out of the industry.

THE ENERGY CRISIS is very real. It adds up to the necessity hardly a decade ahead to import an increasing share of the raw materials of power. The crisis will not be solved by appeasing big power and gas with the invariable answer of higher rates and higher profits out of which, in theory, will come the means to explore new energy sources.

In the next four years the holdovers on the commissions will virtually all be replaced by Nixon men. Behind all the hoopla of the campaign, that is one consequence of the choice just ahead.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Emirs In Driver's Seat As Oil Supply Shrinks

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Pretty soon we'll all be paying more for our gasoline, but, according to the experts who try to keep track of the world's energy needs, that's only the beginning.

They add that all talk such as of extracting cheap energy from the limitless supplies of hydrogen in the world's oceans is just so much pie in the sky stuff until someone actually does it. They say the emergency is as of the end of this decade.

THE CURRENT ALARM arises from the deal just concluded between the Western world's major oil companies and five Persian Gulf producers, Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi, Iraq, Kuwait and Qatar.

The agreement gives them an initial 20 per cent interest in existing concessions on their soil, the interest to grow to a controlling 51 per cent within the decade.

The agreement proves what was becoming apparent more than a year ago, which is that in a world gulping up oil at an ever increasing rate, the producing countries are in the driver's seat.

And the sheikdoms, emirates, kingdoms, etc., of the Middle East are the ones that hold 70 per cent of the world's known reserves. The pattern set by the five is expected to be followed by at least five of the six other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. They are Algeria, Indonesia, Nigeria, Libya and Venezuela. Iran, the sixth member, has its own arrangement.

AT ANY RATE, here are some of the things the world's experts are saying:

In the decade of the '70s the world will use more oil than in all the previous years in history.

A European central banker predicts that Arab countries soon will have $20 billion in foreign reserves, enough to wield a decisive influence on world monetary affairs.

The United States now imports 23 per cent of its oil with only about 3 per cent coming from the Middle East. By 1980 it could be importing as much as 60 per cent of its oil with the bulk of it coming from the Middle East. In the event of a war the power holding the Mideast fields could have a stranglehold on the rest of the world.

The idea of "participation" in oil production originated with Sheikh Yamani, Saudi Arabia's minister of oil and minerals, and has been described variously as "rape with consent" and a "shotgun wedding" between the oil producing nations and the companies.

But for the companies it is better than the outright nationalization such as has been carried out by Algeria, Libya and Iraq.

For the countries it not only represents an increase in revenues, it has the added advantage of not frightening away the foreign investments they need for continued development.

IT COULD, however, be extended to other natural resources and thereby signal the end to a cheap supply of raw materials.

As American industry shifts more and more to oil and natural gas despite doubts concerning the future, Saudi Arabia has made a tempting suggestion somewhat similar to an earlier one from the Shah of Iran. The Saudis have proposed a commercial agreement under which the United States would give Saudi oil special duty and quota-free status in the oil market. The U.S. State Department has called the offer "extremely important."

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

How to vote? The Democrats promise you the world, but the Republicans give you the business.

Politics is confusing, aren't they?

Prosperity is when Republicans make so much money they feel guilty enough to give it all back to the Democrats in government aid programs.

The American dream is to make money like a Republican so you can spend it like a Democrat.

A Power Solution: Giant Floating Nuclear Plants

By MARTIN SKALA
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Within the next 10 years nuclear power plants moored to the ocean's floor may begin supplying a sizable portion of the East Coast's energy needs.

Hard-pressed by rising opposition to land-based nuclear plants, several East Coast utilities are seriously studying the feasibility of offshore, barge-mounted generating units.

Sheltered against rough seas by concrete breakwaters, the floating plants would transmit electricity to shore by underwater cable. There it would be distributed to population centers in the same manner as with other power plants.

The economic attractiveness of placing a huge two or three million kilowatt power plant in 45 feet of water several miles from land remains to be proven. But utility officials assert that it may be the only viable alternative to the spiraling costs, long delays, and environmentalists' objections encountered in building conventional nuclear plants.

The first utility to take the offshore plunge is Public Service Electric and Gas Co., which serves about 80 per cent of New Jersey's population. The company has signed a $750 million contract for two floating 1.15 million kilowatt generating plants to be built by Offshore Power Systems, a joint venture of Westinghouse Electric Corp. and Tenneco, Inc.

The offshore plant, scheduled to begin operation in 1980, will be built in Jacksonville, Fla., then towed to the site 12 miles northeast of Atlantic City.

At contract signing ceremonies here the Public Service Electric and Gas president, Edward R. Eberle, said the floating generating units would help resolve the conflict between demands for a cleaner environment and growing energy needs.

One of the chief problems with nuclear plants, according to environmentalists, is the tremendous throwoff of waste heat into streams and lakes. These thermal discharges may cause harm to aquatic life. In the ocean, offshore-power advocates argue, the vast body of water surrounding the hot reactors provides all the cooling capacity that may be needed.

In addition, the superior mixing action of the sea is said to ensure better control of any radioactive emissions.

Another argument favoring choice of an offshore site was the scarcity of land in the densely populated state. According to Public Service Electric and Gas, rivers close to the state's population centers could no longer absorb the waste heat from additional nuclear generating stations; New Jersey already has six nuclear power plants in construction or in the planning stages. And a large new nuclear plant would have required about 500 acres of waterfront property — more than four times the space needed offshore.

With its low profile and the absence of any smokestacks, the offshore units aren't expected to interfere with water sports.

Because offshore nuclear plants are still a novel concept, environmental groups say they have not had time to fully explore their ecological implications. But some critics are beginning to raise their voices.

"The move offshore won't solve the nuclear industry's environmental problems — it's just an effort to sweep them out of sight," says Joe Browder, executive director of Environmental Policy Council, a Washington-based lobbying group concerned about the safety aspects of atomic reactors.

Before the floating plant becomes operable in 1980, PSE&G must get about 50 permits or authorizations from local, state, and federal agencies. The first public hearings before the Atomic Energy Commission aren't scheduled until 1974.

Offshore Power Systems will build the barge-borne nuclear plants at a 900-acre facility under construction near Jacksonville. Alexander P. Zechella, Offshore's president, says the PSE&G contract, the largest electrical equipment purchase on record, is a "major breakthrough," showing the utility industry that floating plants "make sense from an invironmental and economic standpoint."

PSE&G is holding talks with neighboring utilities, two of which may soon join the offshore project as minority partners.

Noting that New York City's Consolidated Edison Co. and Virginia Electric & Power Co. have expressed interest, Zachella says Offshore's goal is eight plants on order by mid-1973.

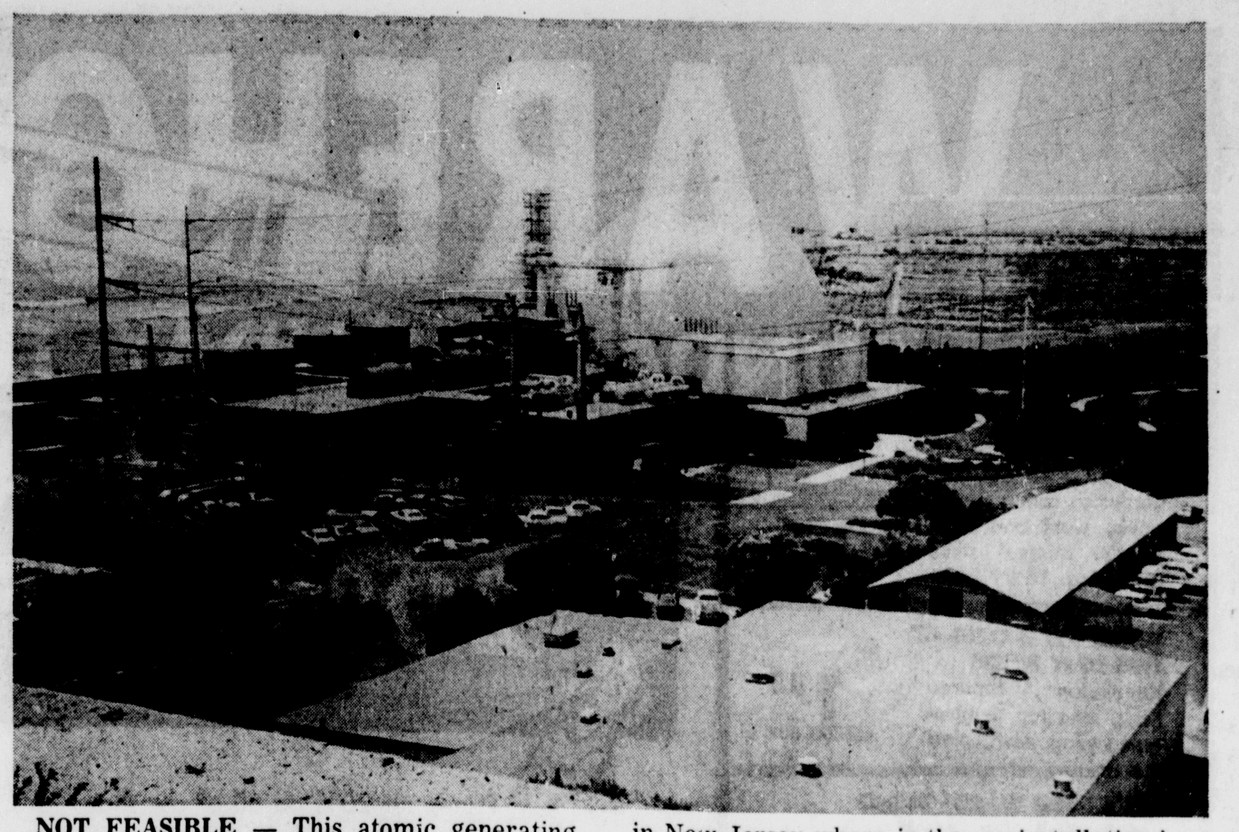

The Westinghouse affiliate is confident that East, West, and Gulf Coast utilities, which supply close to 42 per cent of the nation's power, will increasingly turn toward atomic-powered units. Government and industry forecasters have consistently maintained that, by the end of 1980, nuclear power will account for close to 24 per cent of the nation's electrical capacity.

The growing scarcity of publicly acceptable land sites will force utilities to comb the continental shelf within the three-mile limit for alternative location, Zechella predicts.

With construction costs of new land-based nuclear plants climbing to $500 per kilowatt of generating capacity, the economics of offshore power production "don't look bad," Zechella contends. Placing the huge breakwaters, he says, will account for about 25 per cent of the overall cost.

Another advantage of the offshore units, according to Zechella, is that they will be made using an assembly-line manufacturing process. A cross between a shipyard and a factory, Offshore's $200-million Jacksonville plant will be geared to make two to four platform-mounted reactors a year. And quality control is expected to be far superior to conventional on-site construction methods.

GEORGE S. McGOVERN

THIS WEEK In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Talk of peace in Vietnam was in the news this week on two fronts—diplomatic and political.

Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's national security adviser, spent four days talking with North Vietnamese delegates to the Paris peace talks.

The negotiations were private, and neither side would give details. Although it was Kissinger's 19th trip to Paris for similar discussions, never before had he spent as much time with Communist negotiators.

Sen. George S. McGovern, in a televised address, outlined what steps he will take to disengage from the Indochina conflict if he is elected president. The bombing of North Vietnam and all U.S. support of South Vietnam would stop on inauguration day, Sargent Shriver would be sent to Hanoi to arrange the return of prisoners of war and the Vietnamese would be permitted to work out their own political settlement, he said.

The White House did not comment on McGovern's plan, but Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird called it an "unconditional surrender" policy.

Around The World, Around The Clock

ATLANTA — President Nixon made only one campaign appearance, to this city where thousands of persons greeted him.

SAIGON — The French and Algerian missions to North Vietnam were damaged during a U.S. bombing raid. Five persons were killed and three wounded, Hanoi Radio said. A U.S. Navy spokesman denied American planes bombed the missions, but Laird said he could not rule out that possibility.

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon told a House committee prisoners of war released by North Vietnam would not be used in war-related work.

STOCKHOLM — Dr. Gerald M. Edelman of Rockefeller University in New York and Dr. Rodney R. Porter of Oxford University were awarded the Nobel Prize in medicine. Edelman and Porter had investigated antibodies, the blood protein involved in the body's defense against infection.

WASHINGTON — The Senate confirmed the appointment of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, President Nixon's choice as Army chief of staff. Confirmation hearings in the Senate Armed Service Committee had centered on unauthorized bombings of North Vietnam.

WASHINGTON — The House passed a bill, requested by the administration, to let the President cut government spending to $250 billion this year. The senate Finance Committee then sent the same version of the bill to the floor.

WASHINGTON — The Senate set aside consideration of a bill to prevent courts from ordering cross-town busing to bring about public school integration. The move was taken after supporters could not stop a filibuster by liberal opponents.

WASHINGTON — The House approved a compromise bill to distribute $5 billion in federal revenue to state and local governments. Senate approval was expected.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court struck down Ohio's plan of reimbursing parents who send their children to private and parochial schools.

WASHINGTON — Fifty prisoners at the District of Columbia jail held 11 hostages during a 22-hour rebellion. It ended with the prisoners promised reforms and a pledge of no reprisals.

CHICAGO — Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, Al Capone's successor as head of the Chicago crime syndicate, died of a heart attack. He was 74.

CINCINNATI — Both of baseball's major league playoffs went the full five games. The Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates for the National League title and the Oakland Athletics won the American League flag from the Detroit Tigers.

Even Payroll Checks Fading Away

By DAVID T. COOK
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

That reassuring piece of paper called a weekly paycheck is California's latest endangered species.

After Monday, the payday ritual will change for millions of the state's workers. The self-extended lunch hour spent waiting in line at the neighborhood bank will be replaced by the services of the California Automated Clearing House.

The new system will enable an employer to fatten his employees' checking accounts without having to issue individual paychecks.

The system was designed by the California Special Committee on Paperless Entries (SCOPE). California SCOPE is one of 18 nationwide committees in various stages of planning systems to reduce banking paperwork.

Instead of spewing out individual checks, the employer's computer will talk, by means of magnetic tape, to its electronic counterpart at the new clearing house. The clearing house computer will tell 104 state banks how much to add to each worker's checking account. Some 95 per cent of the state's branch banks are participating in the new system.

Participating employers will give the clearing house one check to cover the pay for all of their employees who elect to participate in the new service. Previously firms which sent paychecks directly to employee checking accounts had to issue separate checks for each worker.

The checkless payday isn't the only innovation made possible by the Automated Clearing House. The system also will enable individuals to pay recurring bills without having to write monthly checks.

With permission, participating banks will automatically subtract mortgage, car loan, utility, and other cyclical payments from a customer's checking account and electronically route the funds to the creditor's bank account through the facilities of the Clearing House. Everything but the muttering will be done by computer.

Research and preparation of computer programs for California's automated clearing house took four years. The committee which coordinated the planning was composed of state banking officials and representatives of the state's commercial and Federal Reserve banks.

The automated clearing house concept is expected to produce substantial savings for both banks and employers while not increasing what the consumer pays for his checking account.

Probably the most extensive studies of the cost implications of automated clearing houses were done by Dr. Alan Lipis for the Georgia Committee on Paperless Entries (COPE). Lipis directs Georgia COPE's Atlanta Payments Project, which in early 1973 will test the automated clearing house concept in Atlanta in preparation for later implementation statewide.

"A bank should save 10 cents for every paycheck that is automated," Lipis estimates. Because paychecks are among the most expensive checks banks handle, savings on recurring bills handled by an automated clearing house will be smaller. Savings on the average check should be close to four cents.

Since many employees take considerable time on payday to pick up their checks and then take an extended lunch hour to cash them, Lipis forecasts that employers will realize significant, if difficult to estimate, savings from the automated deposit feature of the new clearing house.

The California consumer is receiving high-level promises that his banking costs won't go up as a result of the new machinery. Russell Fenwick, vice-president of the giant Bank of America and chairman of California SCOPE, notes that at his bank, "We don't apply a charge for handling deposits and we will not apply a charge (under the new system). The preauthorized banks, (of recurring bills) will be treated just as though they were other disbursements from the checking account."

Fenwick's committee made a concerted effort to see that the checking customer's rights aren't bent, folded, stapled, or mutilated by the computers at the new clearing house.

The consumer will get advance notice of recurring bills which vary from month to month (i.e. utility bills) 10 days before his account is charged for the debt. The customer can stop payment anytime during this 10-day period and settle the account directly with his creditor.

After the balance in his checking account has been automatically reduced to pay a recurring bill, the consumer has 45 days to go to his bank and sign a form reversing the deduction. The checking customer isn't charged for changing his mind.

Even after receiving his monthly checking account statement the customer has 15 days to go to the bank and reverse a deduction with which he disagrees.

Inflation In Europe Is Racing Unchecked

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary Francoise Tacket came home to Paris from vacation to find bread, mineral water and just about everything else to eat had gone up in price. Rome housewives complained of 2 per cent food hikes in July. London apartment prices shot to Paris levels.

Inflation, that disease of prosperous industrialized countries, is racing unchecked across western Europe.

The situation has reached such crisis proportions that European finance ministers representing the enlarged European Common Market meet Oct. 31 to map an inflation battle. With vacations over, labor unrest over booming prices is threatening to boil over into strikes, particularly in France and Italy.

Paris still reigns as the most expensive city in the west with Stockholm, Bonn and Oslo not far behind.

At the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) headquarters in Paris, inflation experts say the United States' annual inflation growth now is 3 per cent. This is a snail's pace compared to the dizzy spiral in other OECD member countries.

The OECD lists Portugal as suffering the greatest rate of inflation increase—11.1 per cent for the year between July 1, 1971, and July 31, 1972.

Runners-up in the price boom are Spain at 8.3 per cent, Finland 7.6 per cent, Norway 7.3 per cent, The Netherlands 7.2 per cent, Sweden 6.9 per cent, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium and Italy all 5.9 per cent, France 5.7 per cent, Germany 5.4 per cent, Britain 5.3 per cent, Japan 4.8 per cent and Canada 4.6 per cent.

When it comes to the cost of living—the actual prices—Paris still is the west's most expensive city, according to surveys. France at the start of the inflation race had higher prices than other countries. Although Portugal has the highest inflation rate, its prices used to be so low that Lisbon still is the cheapest European capital.

Cost of living surveys are prepared by some governmental organizations so they can figure salaries for their diplomats. Diplomats do not pay sales taxes and often shop in private commissaries at lower prices, but such surveys indicate in which cities people are having the hardest time stretching their paychecks.

The U.S. Department of State, for example, lists Paris and Stockholm as the two highest priced cities in Europe for American diplomats.

One Common Market organization made a cost of living scale for its diplomats using Brussels as a common denominator of 100. Stockholm was listed as the most expensive city at 116, Paris next at 109, Oslo 108, Bonn 107, The Hague 101, Copenhagen 100. The countries enjoying the lowest prices for diplomats were London 93, Rome 93 and Lisbon 87.

For the millions of ordinary citizens who pay sales taxes, Paris remains the most expensive with a tax on goods and services ranging from 17 to 33 per cent. Sweden has none. (Norway's sales tax is 20 per cent, Denmark 15 per cent, The Netherlands 14 per cent and Germany 11 per cent).

The inflation spiral in France made headlines all summer. The July boost of 0.8 per cent, the highest in 2 1-2 years in France, was topped in Europe only by Spain at 1.3 per cent. French television announced France had set "a non-Olympic record".

The French Finance Ministry promptly froze prices of public services such as the subway until next spring. But the press howled "too late" because the government recently raised the prices of electricity, tobacco and medical services.

The French do not need statistics to be convinced their prices are high. The price of a subway ticket has more than doubled in Paris in five years.

UNHAPPY — A rather unhappy looking housewife passes a butcher shop with its window listing the prices of various meats on sale. When it comes to the cost-of-living — the actual prices — Paris still is the West's most expensive city, according to surveys.

Lilly Silverfield Danced To Freedom

Her Talent Turns To Mosaics

Lilly Silverfield, a laughing, lively German born woman who danced her way out of Hitler's reign of terror 40 years ago, today is creating colorful mosaics that soon may make her well known in Bay Area art circles.

Born Lilli Sandberg in Breslau where her father practiced law, she began a career as a ballerina with the Breslau Opera at the age of 13 without ever having studied dance.

By 1933 she realized that Germany was no longer a safe place for Jews to live.

OBTAINING a permit to work outside of the country (at this time Jews were not being allowed to work within Nazi Germany,) she left her parents and older brother behind and began dancing in cities across Europe, she recalled recently at her Greenbrae home.

Mrs. Silverfield still credits her dancing as being responsible for her escape. As an entertainer, other countries allowed her to come to perform because "I would not stay forever."

Discovering she could do tricks of "bending and twisting that the others girls were unable to do," (she was born double jointed and still is able to manipulate limbs with equal ease on both the front and back of her body) she soon created a solo specialty act.

LIVING out of a suitcase she toured such cities as Zurich, Copenhagen and Paris winning first prize for eccentric dance at the International Dance Competition in Warsaw in 1935.

For a time she also toured with Trudi Schoop's famous mime troupe.

Around this time she adopted the stage name Lilly Sandan, ("no one could pronounce Lilli").

Wishing desperately to get to the United States where her brother fled in 1935 (he is a Chicago physician), the young woman traveled to Palestine to obtain a visa to enter this country.

Later, with a reentry permit, she returned to Paris where she carried on with her dancing and persisted in trying to get her parents out of Germany.

THESE years are still described as a "rough time" by Mrs. Silverfield who would rather not speak of them.

With the help of friends in 1938 Mr. and Mrs. Sandberg were brought to safety in England "after my father had been in a concentration camp for six weeks."

Lilly's career continued to soar. She appeared in English casinos and in 1939 was booked into the world famous Bal Tabarin in Paris where she transformed herself into a whimsically bizarre scarecrow.

She was still appearing at the Bal Tabarin on Sept. 1 when Hitler's army invaded Poland lighting the fuse that ignited World War II in Europe.

WITHIN three weeks she was back in New York arriving on Sept. 18. The next day she applied for her first citizen papers.

COLORFUL MOSAICS are the art work of Lilly Silverfield of Greenbrae, who once spent her artistic energy as a ballerina and eccentric dancer, appearing throughout Europe, on Broadway and at the World Fair on Treasure Island in 1940. In a blending of her talents, she sometimes dances out the movements to be used in her mosaic design.

Straw Hat Revue, she was introduced to Broadway that November along with a cast of youngsters including Imogene Coca, Danny Kaye, Alfred Drake and Jerome Robbins.

The Revue's words and music were penned by a young Sylvia Fine who became Danny Kaye's wife.

The Dec., 1939 issue of Theatre Arts not only ran a full page photograph of "the youthful artist from abroad," in scarecrow costume, it also reported she "gives a startling performance as a surrealistic scarecrow in which she makes use of a simple device, that of substituting, by means of camouflage costume, one set of limbs for the other . . . with the macbre effect of a Dali painting come to life."

THE YOUNGSTER, who had never met the great surrealist, Salvador Dali, not only created her own ideas, but designed and made her own costumes as well.

Next she was signed for Clifford C. Fischer's 1941 Folies Bergere that was to appear at the World Fair on Treasure Island in 1940.

Arriving in San Francisco ("the most beautiful city in the world") she immediately telephoned family friends to ask help locating an apartment.

Instead she met her husband, the Breslau born Ernest Silverfield, a San Francisco importer, at a hastily planned dinner.

Within weeks the couple was married between shows so Lilly could get back to the Fair in time to go on as the "twofaced girl."

AFTER closing at Treasure Island, the Folies played San Francisco theaters and then embarked on a cross country run that took the young bride away from her husband for weeks.

When her contract was finished early in 1941, the young performer decided to give up her career and returned to San Francisco.

The following year a son, Gerald D. Silverfield, was born. For the next two years agents wrote asking Mrs. Silverfield to return to the stage, even at one point offering a New York apartment and a nurse for the baby.

Instead she packed away her costumes and clippings (holding her scrapbook, she interjected "you know, my son has never seen any of this . . .") and settled down to enjoy life as a wife and mother.

AFTER a brief stay in Portland, Ore. where her husband went to work in a malting company, the family returned to San Francisco where Silverfield took a job with the Continental Grain Co.

During his 20 years with the firm he became manager of all California offices.

Twenty-one years ago the family moved to Greenbrae to "the first home of our own."

When their son left home 12 years ago to begin his freshman year at the University of California, Silverfield bought home a gift that was to change his wife's life.

It was a kit for making mosaics and within a short time the couple's walls, vases, lampshades and even the drawer pulls were covered with beautiful, brightly colored mosaic works.

IN 1964 Mrs. Silverfield fashioned a gigantic world map marked with Continental Grain Co. offices that is now in possession of the firm.

After her husband's death a year and a half ago, Mrs. Silverfield decided to take an art class from June Lederman at her Studio 7 in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Silverfield wanted to learn to draw designs for her mosaic work. Previously she copied designs and figures from pictures and greeting cards.

Within a year Mrs. Lederman was asking her talented pupil to exhibit her works at the Studio. (Mrs. Silverfield's show will reopen on Nov. 1 at Studio 7, 552 San Anselmo Avenue.)

THE NEWER pieces are copied from her own watercolor sketches, described by Mrs. Silverfield, as "child like" because of their simplicity.

She works for hours on end, crouched on elbows and knees, on the floor of her sunny den. The floor is covered by endless rows of containers brimming with tiny mosaic tiles in every imaginable color and shade. ("I get more fun buying them than a new dress.")

First she traces her watercolor on a piece of board that is placed on the floor so that Mrs. Silverfield can work comfortably.

Next the watercolor (currently a cyclist in Golden Gate Park) is mounted above the work area so the artist can use it as a color guide.

Tediously and painstakingly she picks just the right tinted tile to match her sketch. Next using pliers she crops the tiny tile to a proper fit for mounting within the traced lines on the board.

EVER SO slowly, (she works for hours at a time, sometimes with a nearby television switched on for company) the tiles begin to take shape. The cyclist, with his bright blue eyes (the color isn't right and must be changed) already is assuming a personality.

Looking around the rooms of the sun filled home lined with Mrs. Silverfield's lovely and delightful works, it's easy to understand how this enthusiastic and happy lady is "never lonely."

Oriental Garden

A unique blend of east and west has been established high above Tiburon in the melding of a calm, contemplative Japanese garden and a breath-taking view of the San Francisco Bay.

It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Merklin, and it will be the scene of the annual Associates Tea of the Raccoon Branch of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers on Wednesday.

The gardens, with their volcanic rock steps, deep mossy landscaping, waterfall, special Japanese gate and unusual teahouse, will be the major attraction for the 160 Raccoon Branch members and Associates.

BUT THERE will also be Oriental finger food and special interior Japanese decor to carry out the theme of the Tea.

Barbara Merklin and her husband are interested in the Orient, and they have spent much time in Japan. Their interest has nurtured their garden, which has taken nine years to reach its current state.

Dwarf trees, a stone house hundreds of years old, and darting goldfish, including several albino fish, are part of the garden. It's another lovely scene for the unique Marin setting.

THIS STONE lantern, near the entrance of the Japanese garden at the Merklin home in Tiburon, is hundreds of years old, according to Mrs. Merklin.

MRS. BARBARA Merklin steps aboard the volcanic bridge which spans a small lagoon in the Japanese garden at her home. Her gown is the one she will wear Wednesday when she will be the hostess for some 160 members and Associates at the annual Tea of the Raccoon Branch of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

(Independent Journal Photos By Alfred M. Arn)

THE JAPANESE god Dai Koku, the God of Happiness, is located at the entrance of the Merklin home, and Mrs. Merklin pats his head and rubs his tummy for good luck.

A TEAHOUSE, purification gate and two cranes are among the artifacts which are part of the Japanese gardens at the Merklin home. A tour of the gardens will be part of the festivities when the Raccoon Branch of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers holds its annual Associates Tea at the Merklin home on Wednesday.

THE OWL, a symbol of wisdom in the Caucasian world, symbolizes fertility for the Japanese, and this owl is one of the decorations in the Japanese garden built by Kenneth and Barbara Merklin adjacent to their Tiburon home.

Woman Detective Far From Retiring

Former Nurse Recalls People Need Identity

After 22 years as a detective with the San Francisco Police Department with her life well laid out and a full, nice, easy retirement due in ten years, Genevieve Bayreuther decided that she wanted more out of life.

At her Corte Madera home where she has lived for over 20 years, she said, "You know how it is. You stay with something until you think you know all about it. I decided it was time to find out about things I didn't know."

This led to her current commitment in planning a program called "A Time to Live," which she describes as, "All the things you wanted to know about retirement but were afraid to ask!" The program is part of a special series called Dialogues sponsored by Pacific Medical Center in San Francisco.

MISS BAYREUTHER is a third generation San Francisco, a registered professional nurse, an Army Nurse in World War II and a specialist in pediatrics and communicable disease. As a policewoman, she spent nine years in the juvenile bureau, before becoming San Francisco's first woman detective, assigned to the fraud detail and dealing with shoplifters, pickpockets and bunco artists. She worked extensively with youth and school groups and with civic organizations, and testified often as an expert witness in Bay Area superior courts including a Marin.

"Half of the shoplifting cases involye amateurs," she says. "But some amateurs — in the sense that they do not re-sell their loot or convert it into drugs or other goods — are adept and steal habitually."

THE PUBLIC, she feels, has a real responsibility for reporting shoplifters when they see the thefts — "a responsibility to the victim, to society and to the shoplifter himself or herself."

She explains: "While a shoplifting charge is a traumatic experience for the accused, it is often also the only thing that can force the shoplifter to face the fact that he or she is a thief. I am convinced that the confrontation with this fact has caused many, many people to turn their whole lives around, from thievery to honesty."

She left police work, she says, because as a woman she found opportunities for advancement, as far as influence and responsibility, limited, and because she felt she had experienced all the facets of police work that would be available to her.

A 20-year Marin resident, she says her current project reflects her interest dating back to her days as a registered and army nurse when she was impressed with the impact that the loss of a sense of identity could have upon people.

"I REMEMBER vividly what were called the WPA heartcases," she says. "These were men who were unable to find jobs on a normal basis, and who suffered a resulting malaise and sense of lost identity that adversely affected their hearts.

"Then as I recalled my time as an Army nurse, I would remember how servicemen working as ward men or in other such jobs away from the frontlines would worry about what they would later tell their children they had done during the war.

"I could only advise them: 'Well, I guess you will have to tell: I did what I was told to do. And I did it the best I could.'

"But I could see that again it was this matter of identity — a feeling of wanting to belong and to play a significant role in the human drama."

Miss Bayreuther has been one of the guiding forces behind the establishment of the new community programs planned by Pacific Medical Center to get the professional and the people they serve together in a healthy exchange of information and ideas. With that in mind, and with some help and a lot of advice from Genevieve, three different programs began to take shape and were christened Dialogues.

THE FIRST Dialogue, "A Time to Live," will be given at 8 p.m. Oct. 17th at the Fireman's Fund Auditorium, 3333 California Street, San Francisco, open to the public and free of charge.

As Miss Bayreuther said, "When I first left the police force, I decided that one of the things I knew nothing about and wanted to know more about was retirement." In volved in adult education courses and evaluations at both San Francisco State and UCLA, she began to learn a lot about the topic she was most interested in, retirement.

LECTURING to store owners and managers on shoplifting prevention and appearing as a consultant on security problems are among the activities that have kept Genevieve Bayreuther from a life of retirement after she left her job as a woman detective. She was pictured above while addressing the International Security Conference in Chicago last June.

She said "One of the problems with retirement for many people is that they lose their identities when they turn in their badges, their pension forms or their keys to the executive washroom. When they leave the office on that final day, they are once again reduced to being just their own insignificant selves. And, if you can't fact that, you're in trouble."

"THAT'S a little late," Miss Bayreuther said. "Retirement is something you have to prepare for, because one retires as one lives. Throughout the years from infancy you should be planning and thinking about the future, developing a wide range of interests, commitments and hobbies, too."

The Dialogues are audience participation . She explained. "These Dialogues are meant to really work for everyone involved — audience as well as the panel of experts and specialists. We hope to get a lot of exchange going, to let people speak their minds, their fears, and to realize they are not alone."

In the past she has assisted in presenting smaller seminars on pre-retirement and retirement. One of the most rewarding experiences for the participants in these programs has been the fact that they realize that many of their problems and burdens are the same problems and burdens of other people. She says, "When you see that others have your same problem and have solved it, then you can begin to try to find the solution for yourself."

After leaving the police force, Miss Bayreuther made a discovery about herslef. She said, "I found out that I'm 'high' on freedom now. I enjoy doing what I really want to do. Freedom is pretty heady stuff."

SOME of the things that she found she had time to do and wanted to do have been returning to college for special courses, acting as a consultant to retail store managers and owners, as a consultant on security problems and providing training sessions to store personnel on shoplifting prevention. She is also a co-director of Taproot, an organization which plans educational programs.

Despite her busy schedule, she finds time to move about on the lecture circuit. Last June, she spoke at the International Security Conference in Chicago, and in November she will be lecturing at the University of Houston.

Profile Of A Marinite

Von Gundell Sees Open Space For Use By People

By ERIK M. INGRAM

At 42, County Planning Director Werner von Gundell is perched at the top of the heap.

At the top because he holds the job other planners would like to hold. The job as chief planner for a metropolitan area county where there is still time to grab the reins of growth.

To do so, he must make good his promise that the controversial countywide general plan will work — not a small feat.

But von Gundell, a man who never never buys on credit, thinks he can.

WORKING on his side is time. Ideas, viewed with skepticism a few years ago when the plan was first conceived, are becoming more acceptable.

"Six months ago I considered myself a strong conservationist," he said the other day. "Now, I'm probably a middle-of-the-roader."

It's not that he has changed so much, von Gundell explained, it's that others have — some to extremes.

The once extreme proposal to limit and control Marin's population through planning has become a moderate position amid cries from some for "no population growth."

von Gundell, who sports a close-cropped beard resembling that of the Prince Albert chap, was named planning director two years ago in the wake of controversy over his predecessor, Paul C. Zucker.

SINCE THEN, the planning department has assumed a low profile, content to let controversy rage over ideas instead of personalities.

The controversy raging now centers on sections of the proposed countywide plan — due to undergo public hearings throughout the county.

If the plan survives those hearings, the planning director said, the real work and challenge will come after adoption by the county and cities.

"We are all good at drawing plans, but when it comes to carrying them out, most fail," he said, laying down his pipe and bumming the first of several cigarettes which his wife thinks he quit.

"Professionally, this job is as far as you can go. My ambition now is to make the most of what planning can give us. . . to go beyond conventional planning and into growth control, (balancing) environmental and social goals. . .

"IF WE can't come to grips with our problems on the local level," he added, "a higher level of government may step in."

The planning director, whose voice hints of a German accent, views himself as a planner for people, an apt self-characterization since some consider him "more politician than planner."

Others view him as kind of a free spirit in a bureaucratic world of conformity where administrative procedure is king.

He doesn't quarrel seriously with either "as long as 'politician' means working with people and not back-room wheeling and dealing."

"Planning has to deal with people and their relationships," he continued. "If it only dealt with land, then we would be missing the important part" of trying to maintain a diverse population through such means as mixed housing and local employment.

"MARIN COUNTY is pioneering in planning, and that's the challenge," he said, firing up an uncooperative pipe for the umpteenth time.

The view that people are one of the most important ingredients in planning has brought him into conflict with some of his allies in the crusade for more open space.

Some conservationists, he said, are suggesting that the use of open space — for anything but viewing — should be discouraged. He violently disagrees.

"Open space — for the sake of open space only — makes sense in just a few pristine spots," he said. "Generally (his voice pounding hard on the first syllable), I feel open space is for people to use and enjoy" for recreation as well as for aesthetics.

WHILE HIS comments smack of "von Gundell the politician", the manner in which he runs his department is strictly "von Gundell the free spirit."

He shuns what he considers government's preoccupation with administrative rules and procedures that dictate how employees should look, act and think.

"Of course we have some, but my nature is to run things with as few restrictions and regulations as possible," he said.

If an employee works better at 6 p.m. than at 8 a.m., the director added, he shouldn't be restricted by the 8 to 5 routine of government. "that is, if he's not serving the public directly."

When civic center security was imposed following the 1970 courtroom bombing, von Gundell was one of the first to protest the move as an infringement on personal freedom. He was one of the first to applaud its removal earlier this year.

HIS CONCERN for personal freedom, he said, stems from his childhood in Nazi Germany.

Born in Kassel, von Gundell witnessed the savagery of World War II as a curious schoolboy, only to be awed later in life by the realization of what had occurred.

In 1956, he graduated from the University of Darmstadt ("after four years of tennis and beer drinking") with a masters degree in architecture and a year later traveled to the United States.

He accepted a position with a firm of architects in West Hartford, Conn. but soon grew disenchanted with the job.

In 1958, he was hired as an assistant planner with the city of West Hartford and there he excelled, being named planning director in 1961.

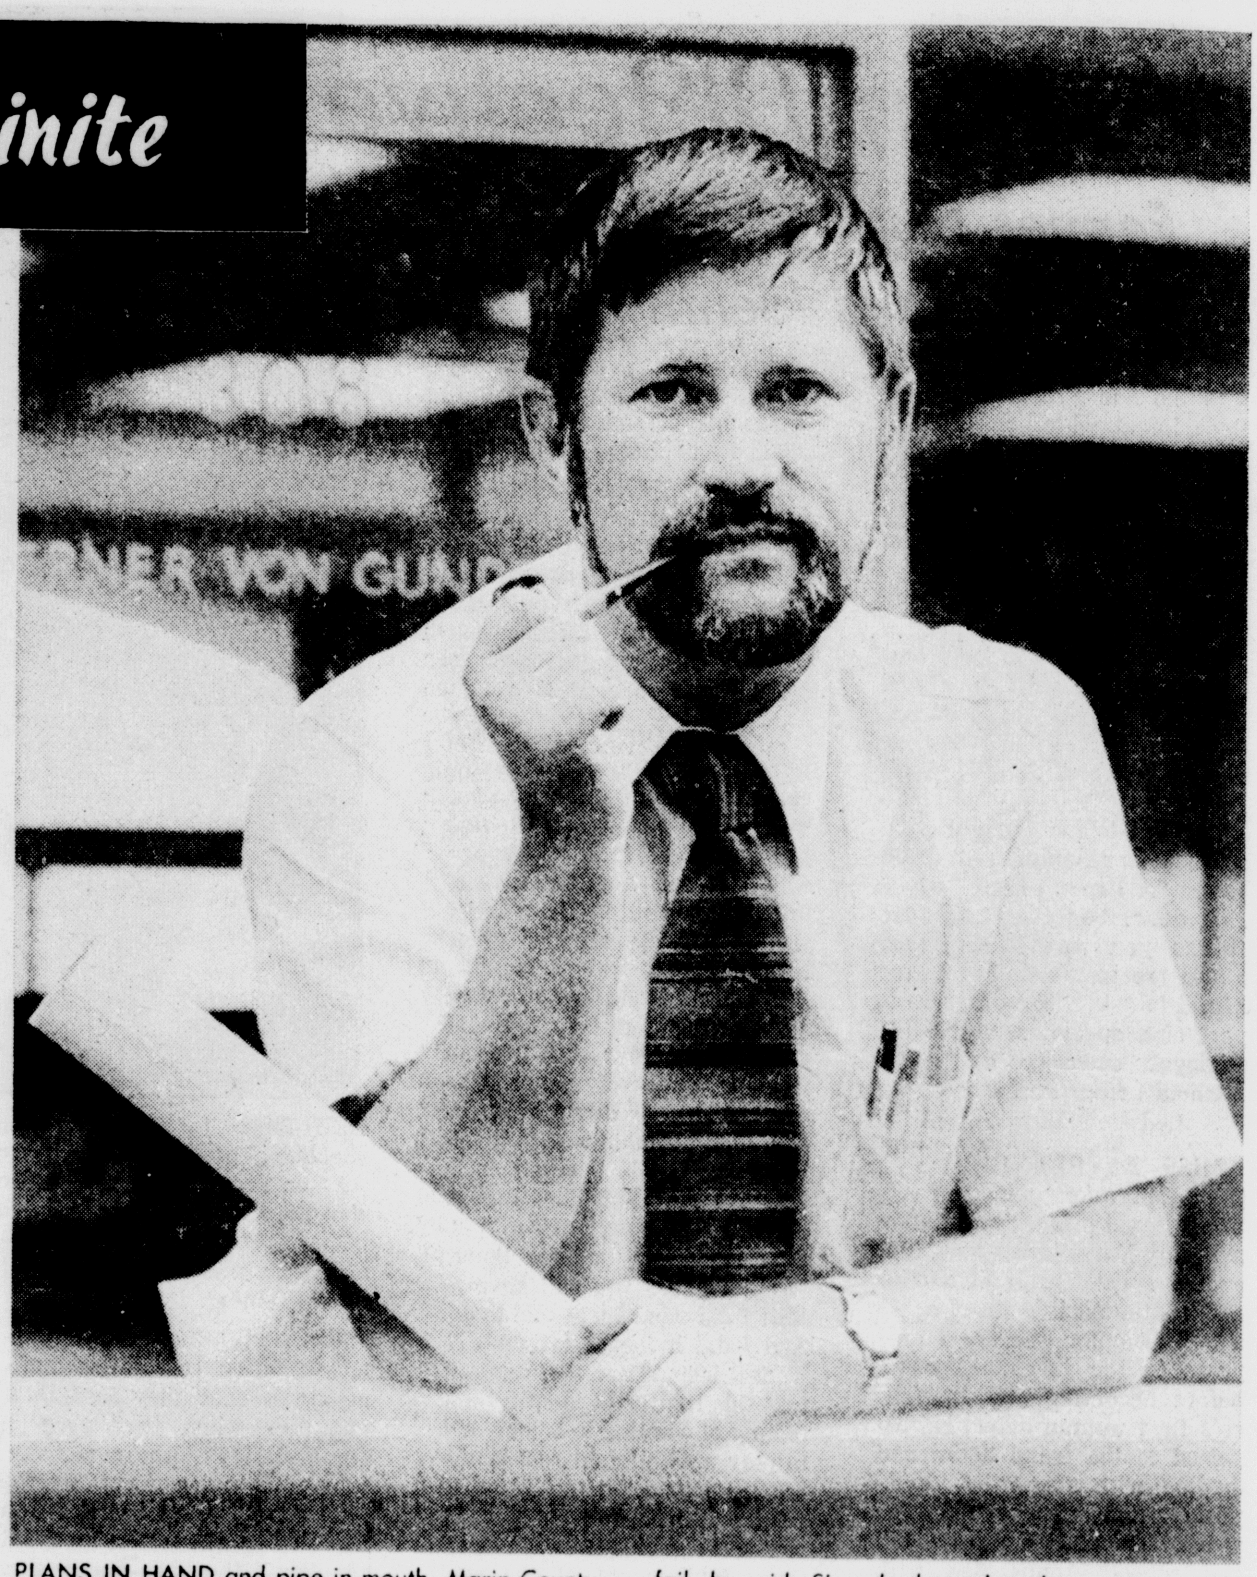

Five years later he came to Marin County as chief of current planning and in 1970 was promoted to planning director. He has no plans of moving again.

There, in the evening, he enjoys a special frustration — composing music. A flute and guitar have replaced the martini.

"It's becoming fustrating because the music is in my head but I can't get it down on paper." he said. "It's kind of like an illiterate trying to write a novel."

But its a challenge, he added.

PLANS IN HAND and pipe in mouth, Marin County Planning Director Werner von Gundell ponders the job of carrying out plans, a tough job where most fail, he said. Since he has taken the post proposals to limit growth, once considered extreme, are now considered "middle-of-the-road."

Water Polo On The Rise

By DON KEOWN

Hundreds of thousands of Americans were exposed to the sport of water polo for the first time during the recent televising of the Summer Olympic Games from Munich and found what they saw intriguing and exciting.

To at least some Marinites, however, the sight of two seven-man teams splashing and struggling as they sought to one-hand a ball into a goal net was not an unfamiliar one.

They were the ones who follow water polo as a school sport in their own county.

SEVEN Marin County Athletic League schools — all the members except Marin Catholic High School — have water polo teams.

It began in 1967 when Bill Purcell organized and coached Marin's first prep school squad at Redwood High School. The following year, five Marin schools participated in the sport. And now the number stands at seven.

Pioneer Purcell has left the coaching of swimming and water polo at Redwood High School to concentrate upon his duties as head of the foreign language department there.

And Terra Linda High School's Trojans, coached by Chuck Metz and Bob Pollitt, have succeeded the Redwood swimmers as the powerhouse of Marin prep school water polo, having won league titles the last three seasons.

EVEN before Purcell introduced the sport to his high school swimmers, water polo was being played in Marin — at the College of Marin. But the Kentfield junior college operated under a severe handicap, since there was no flow of experienced water polo players coming from the high schools.

Now that has changed, although Marin County is still something less than a hotspot for the pool sport.

For one thing, to avoid a conflict with another sport, girls' swimming, in the use of the available pools, Marin water polo games were played off-season. Normally the sport coincides with football. But in Marin, because the girls used the pools for their competition in late September through the middle of November, the water polo teams had to schedule their games for the basketball season — beginning in November and continued into the middle of January.

ONE consequence of this was disaster for Marin teams in clashes with out-of-county schools.

For instance, Terra Linda High, powerful as it was in county competition, lost all six of its non-league contests last year.

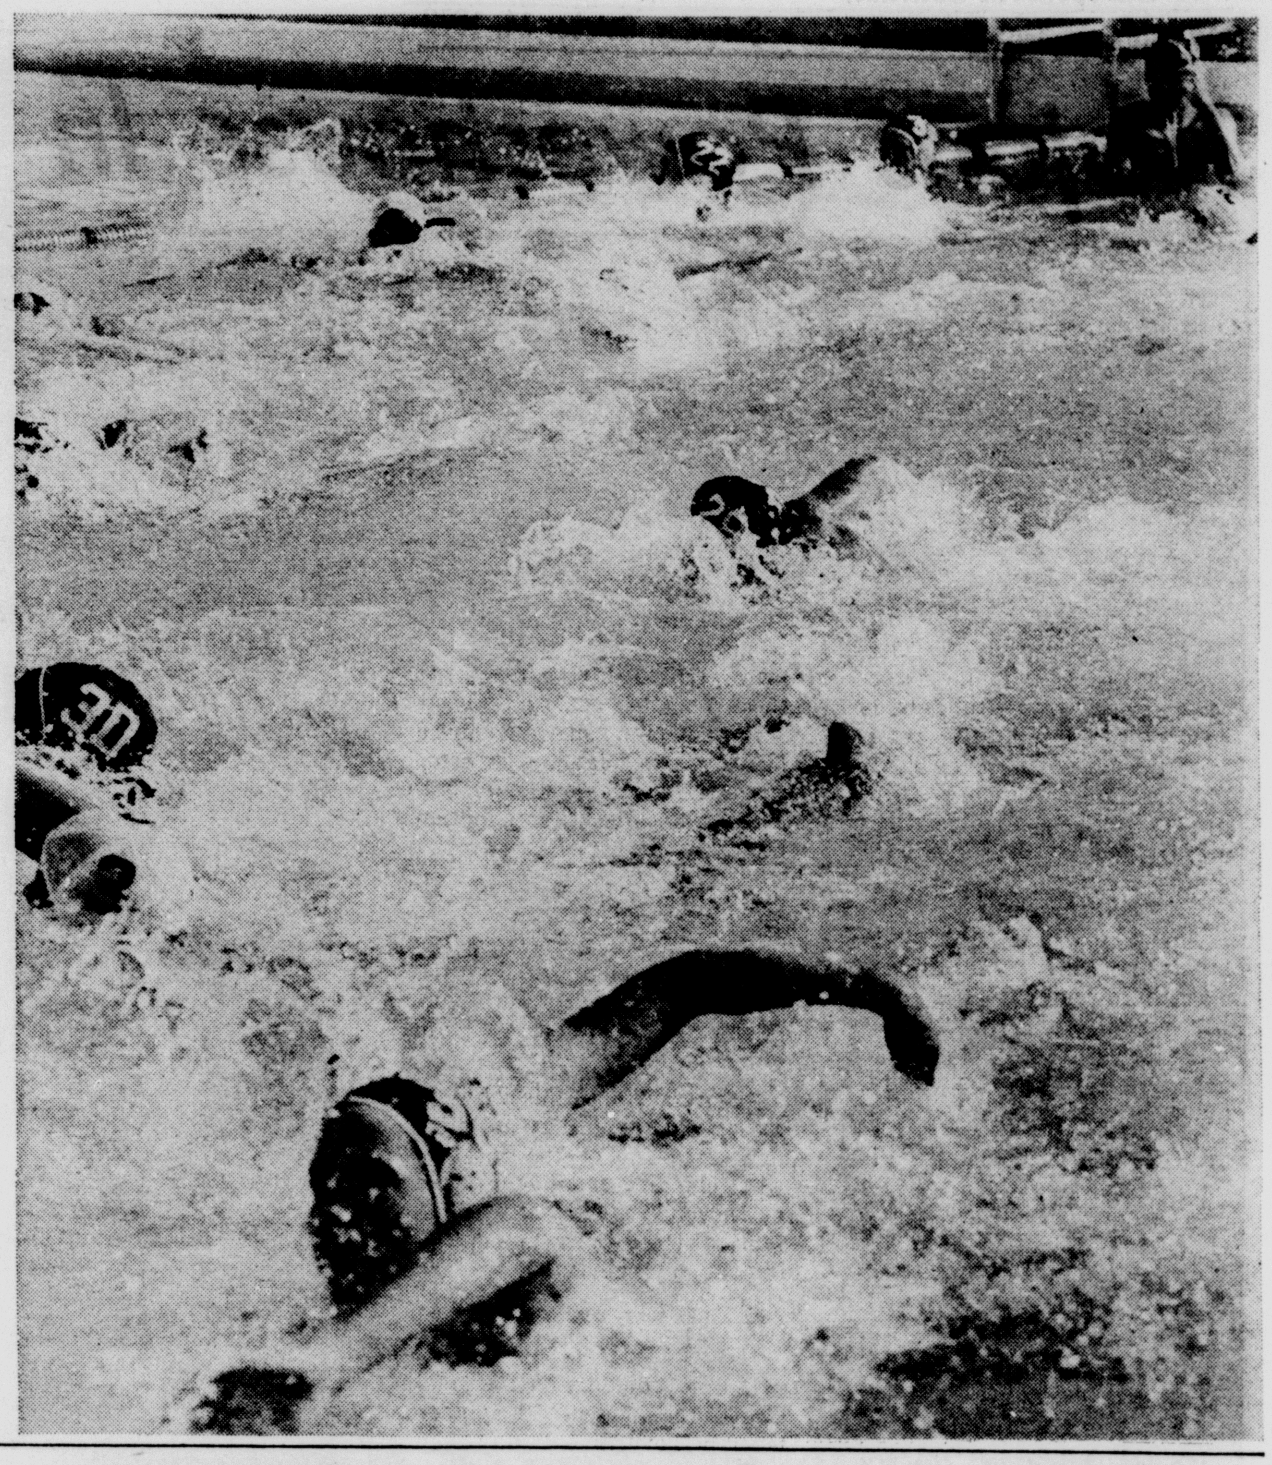

Coach Metz explains: "When we went up against Berkeley for the first time, we were playing our first game, they were playing something like their 19th. We just weren't ready for an experienced, coordinated team."

This season, however, girls' swimming and water polo have worked out schedules by which the two sports both were able to begin using the pools in September.

POLO games are played Tuesday and Friday afternoons, starting at 3:45 p.m. All the high schools except San Marin, which uses Novato High School facilities, has a pool suited to water polo.

Water polo is played best in all-deep-water pools of six feet or more, so that the players' feet never touch bottom during

Trojans Powerhouse In Water Polo

WARMING UP is just part of the gruelling training by the Terra Linda High School water polo team, whose members swim about two miles in the morning, work out with the weights in the afternoon and then swim again concluding with a scrimmage for about an hour and a half.

the competition. But for the Marin County Athletic League games, the pools vary from about 12 feet at a deep end to three and a half feet at a shallow end. An exception is Redwood High School, where the all-deep diving pool is used for water polo. .

Players are permitted to stand for rest while in the shallow end of the pool, but cannot use the bottom to help them in the play. An exception is the goalie guarding the net at the shallow end. He is permitted to stand as he defends the goal.

The net at the shallow end of the pool, 10 feet in width, measures eight feet above the bottom of the pool at its top. The net at the deep end, also 10 feet wide, measures three feet above the water at its top.

MOST goals are scored at the deeper end of the pool where the goalie does not have the advantage of using the bottom as he maneuvers to protect the net.

Most of the Marin pools are about 25 yards long and 50 feet wide. The Novato pool measures 25 meters in length. And the Redwood diving pool is somewhat narrower and shorter than the other courses.

High school water polo games are played in four seven-minute periods or quarters, as compared to the five-minute quarters seen in the Olympics. The high school swimmers are allowed three time-outs per game, and may substitute freely after goals, the end of a quarter, or during a time-out.

At defending champion Terra Linda, coaches Metz and Pollitt work with a squad of 30. "We don't cut anyone," Metz says. And to enable all squad members to gain experience, varsity games are followed by jayvee contests open to all who did not play in the main contest.

"AND WITH some of the smaller squads, we just say: 'Go ahead and use as many of your varsity men as you need to make up a jayvee team'," says Metz. "The important thing is to let the boys get the experience."

The water polo player, Metz notes, follows an even more grueling training schedule than does the football player.

Metz gives this as a typical day for one of his Trojans: "He is in the water at 7 a.m. and until 8 will swim hard under controlled conditions, covering about two miles. Then in the afternoon he will work out with the weights for 30 minutes, return to the pool and tread water in the deep end for 30 minutes, then swim hard for another half hour. Then we will scrimmage for an hour and a half."

It is not, however, a dangerous sport, despite its reputation as such, Metz insists.

"Most of the injuries are cuts and bruises," he says. "It is difficult to hurt your leg, for instance, in the water."

HE POINTS out that football players, forced to quit that sport with a knee injury, have joined the water polo team with their doctor's approval and thus are still able to enjoy the contact and competition they crave.

Good officialing, too, can do much to prevent the rough stuff once associated with water polo, Metz notes. "And besides," he adds, "if you have ever tried to strike a blow or deliver a kick underneath the water, you know how hard it is to build up any momentum for the punch."

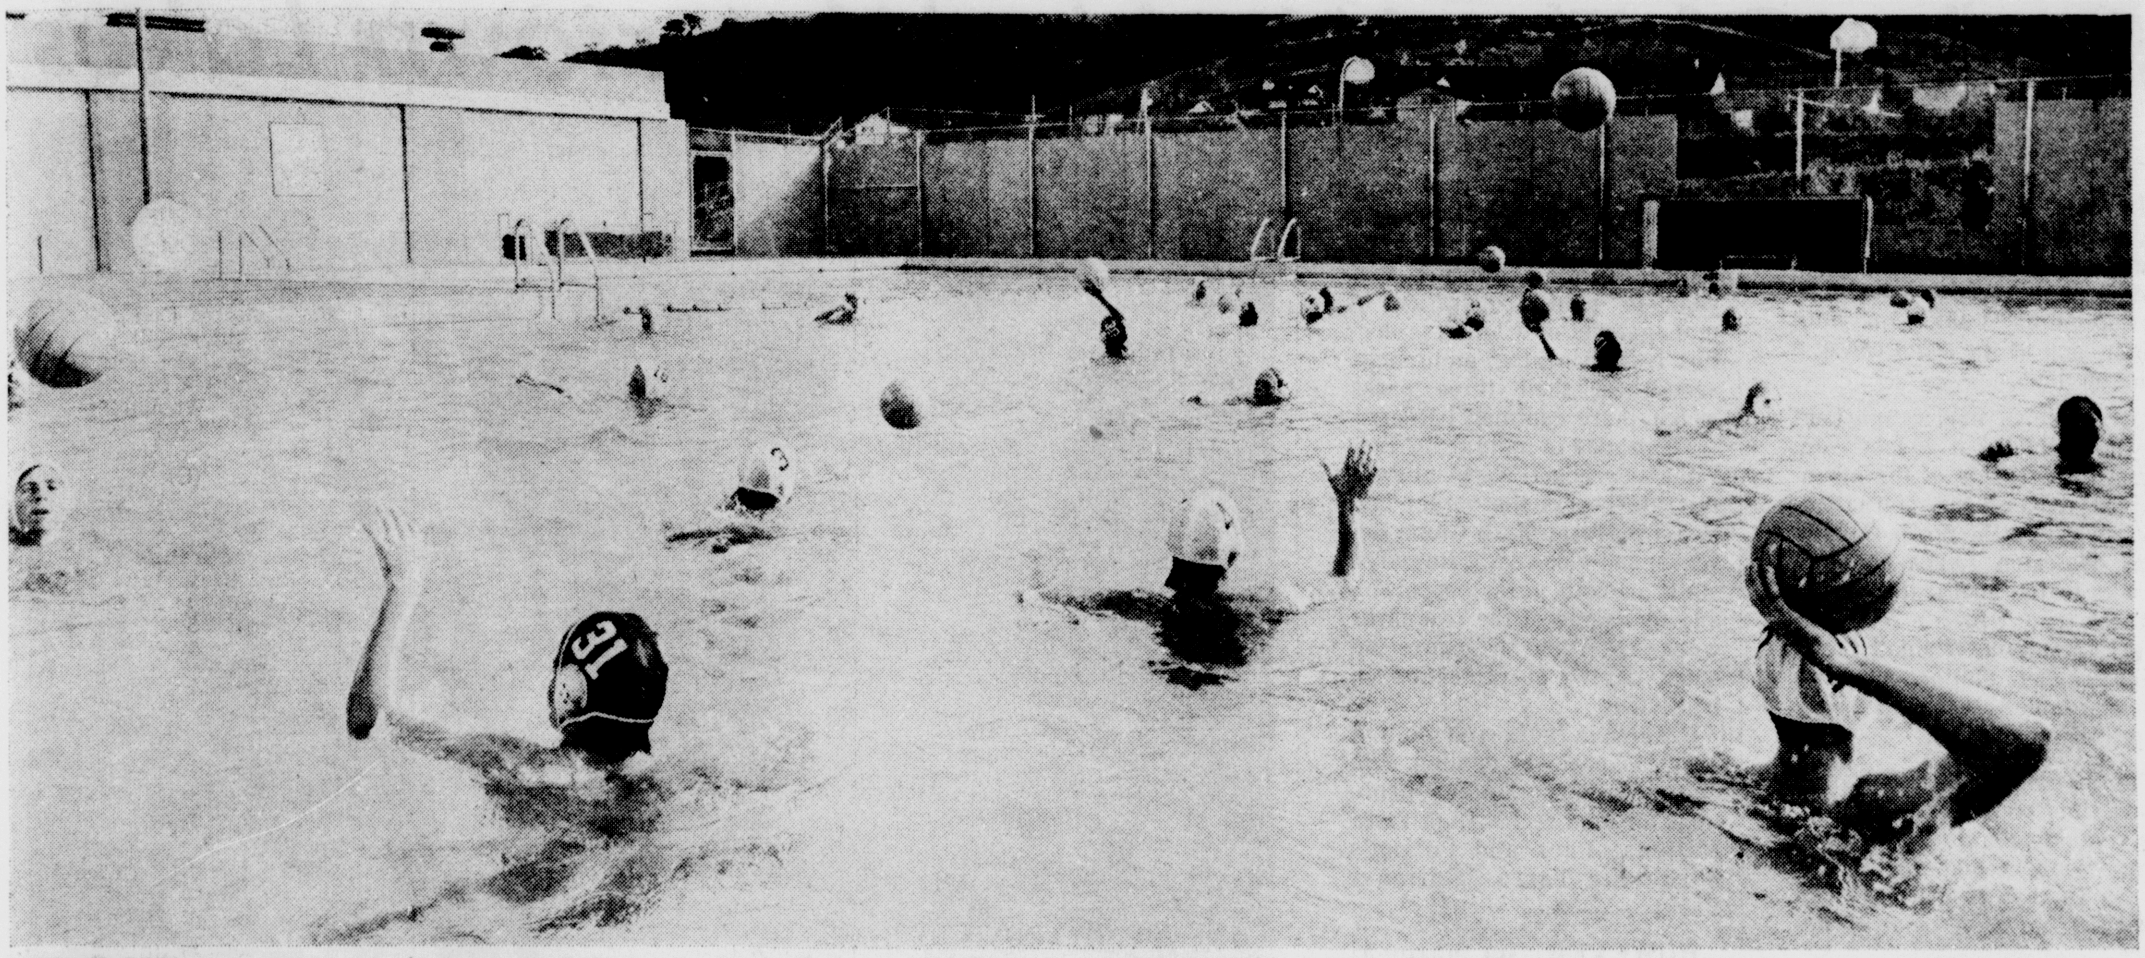

Metz, like his fellow Marin

COACH CHUCK METZ, foreground, and Team Manager Kevin Williams distribute the balls to anxious swimmers at the start of the afternoon training session at Terra Linda High School pool.

BLOCKING a potential goal, goalie Peter Thomas rises from the water in the nick of time in a sport that consists of passes and shots being made while players are suspended in water.

PASSING DRILL on a man to man basis is one of the key periods in training sessions since only one hand is used in ballhandling. According to Terra Linda coach Chuck Metz the best swimmers are not necessarily the best water polo players, "although swimming ability is important."

water polo coaches, is primarily a swimming coach. And he admits the coaches first became interested in water polo as a means of keeping their swimming stars in the pool while the competitive swimming season was dormant and to provide them with a change of pace from racing.

"Now," Metz laughs, "it is the other way around. Lots of our water polo players go out for swimming to keep in shape and to keep their timing after the polo season is over."

THE BEST swimmers are not necessarily the best water polo players, Metz notes, "although swimming ability is important."

Equally important is the enjoyment of contact and violent action, "and some of the best swimmers have gone into their sport at least partially to avoid such rougher contact sports as football."

Important, too, is ballhandling ability. And water polo calls for a kind of ballhandling required in no other sport, since only one hand can be used, and since passes and shots must be made while suspended in the water.

Great weight and strength are not a necessity, Metz claims. "A five-foot six-inch boy can play water polo right along with the six-footers," he claims.

Metz, also a mathematics teacher, did not play water polo himself. But he was fortunate in being at Oxnard High School when that school launched it aquatic sports program for which he was named chairman. And he worked with Pete Cutino, a Cal Poly water polo star who after seven years of coaching the Oxnard High team went on to the University of California at Berkeley to become its head coach.

"I picked his mind for water polo know-how, and I still do," Metz says. "Then, too, we all go to clinics, and take in all the games, high school, college and club, that we can. We are, all of us, still learning, right along with the kids."

METZ also uses his contact with Cutino to bring former U.C. water polo players, now graduate students, to Marin to officiate at the Marin County Athletic League games. Bob Justice, the College of Marin water polo coach, and some of his players have also served as officials, although that source has been lost, since the Marin college and high school seasons now coincide.

Retired polo players living in the area fill in as referees and timekeepers, too.

In no other sport is the official more important than in water polo. This is particularly true in the AAU or Olympic caliber play, since games repeatedly are won on goals scored on free shots awarded for fouls, or scored while the opposing team is short a player sent to the poolside to sit out a penalty.

High school and college games are less likely to be decided by fouls, Metz says, "and therefore I think our rules are better."

"YOU ARE never a man-down or a man short in high school and college water polo," he explains, "so penalties are less a decisive factor."

Of the recent Olympic Games, Metz opines that "the deal we received in water polo was almost as bad as the rooking we took in basketball."

Officials, he claims, were highly oriented toward the Iron Curtain countries and their style of play. "And the officials have great control over Olympic and AAU games. It is easy for them to decide the outcome."

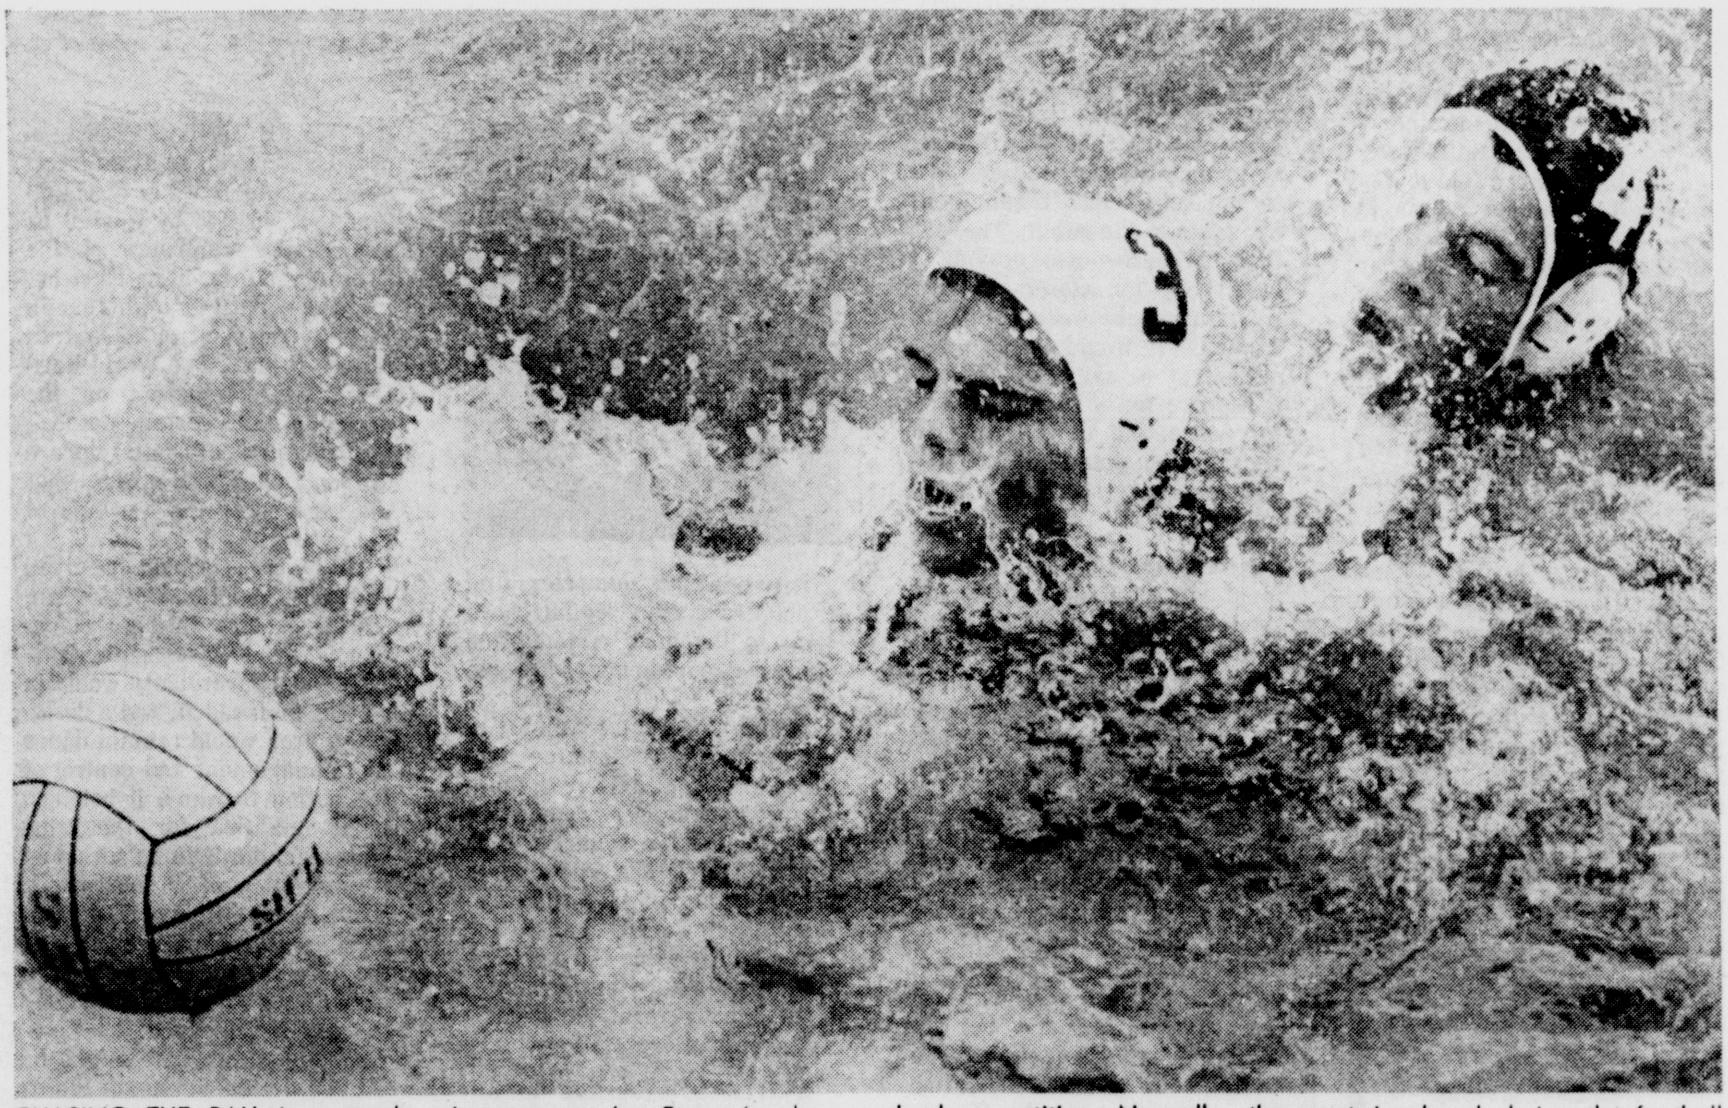

Northern California, Metz admits, is still a long ways from being a major water polo center. Southern California remains the mecca of the game in America. But some schools in Northern California, such as Santa Clara High School and Campolindo High in the Mount Diablo area, rate with the best in the state.

AND THE area can claim in Cal's Cutino and DeAnza College's Art Lambert two of the country's outstanding coaches of the sport. Both have coached Olympic and Pan American Games teams. And five of Lambert's DeAnza stars played in the American team in the 1972 games.

It is a sport that began in England first as a kind of "football in the water" and then as a kind of aquatic handball. It became an organized game there in the 1880s, and it spread to the continent and the U.S. after the organization in 1888 of the London Water Polo League.

It has never really caught on big in the United States.

But Chuck Metz and others like him hope that the American Bronze Medal win at Munich and the opportunity U.S. sports fans had to witness the furious action of the sport heralds the start of a new day for a game they regard as one of the best yet devised for young men and boys.

CHASING THE BALL in a tough scrimmage are Jon Fearn (number three) with Jeff Miller close behind, both members of Terra Linda High School water polo team which has become the powerhouse of Marin prep school competition. Normally, the sport is played during the football season, but because of conflicting pool use, the team has had to schedule games from early November into the middle of January.

Parks Of The World—Watertown Lakes

By ROBERT CAHN

WATERTON, ALBERTA — Six miles south of this little town my boat pulled up at a small dock. We were in the heart of the Rocky Mountains, tremendous peaks on both sides, and at the south end of a narrow lake.

A couple of obelisk markers n the midst of a 20-foot-wide gash up one side of the mountain designated the international border. To the north, Canada and Waterton Lakes National Park; to the south, the United States and Glacier National Park, Montana. A small Canadian ranger station and two picnic tables were the only signs of civilization.

INACCESSIBLE and rarely used, this picnic site has little recreation potential. But it does have symbolic significance, for it shows that two nations can share a common bond of nature.

The United States and Canada, which in 1932 proclaimed this international peace park, coordinate the park planning, exchange rangers for interpretive talks, and have excursion boats making daily runs in season between Waterton and a visitor center between the United States and the end of the lake.

Just a year earlier, my wife and I walked a trail along another border where two nations and two national parks come together. We were in Zambia, viewing the awesome spectacle of Victoria Falls, where the Zambest River plunges 300 feet over a mile-wide precipice. Half of the river belongs to Rhodesia, the other half to Zambia, and each country has established its own national park on its side.

UNLIKE the easy flow of visitors between the United States and Canada, however, Zambia and Rhodesia have no inter-park cooperation. We wanted to cross the bridge to see the falls from the Rhodesian Park, but were told it was not possible without a visa to clear the border checkpoint, and if we could get a visa for Rhodesia, we could not cross back into Zambia.

This situation reflects the already unfriendly relationship between the two nations, and is an exception to the growing cooperation that exists among nations with contiguous national parks.

South Africa and Botswana have adjacent areas, each called Gemsbok National Park. On the South African side are two million acres and on the Botswana side four million. The boundary is unmarked, and South Africa, in fact, administers not only its own side, but at Botswana's request the other side as well.

PARK officials from Uganda, Zaire, and Rwanda held an unprecedented meeting last year to plan cooperation in management of wildlife, protection from poaching, and tourist access for their three parks which share common borders.

Thousands of animals in Tanzania's Serengeti National Park migrate across the border into Kenya's Masai Mara Game Reserve, and vice versa. Research staffs of both parks cooperate, and managers of the two parks work together to insure an equal degree of protection on both sides.

Czechoslavakia and Poland also cooperate in dealing with common management problems for the Czech's High Tatra National Park and Poland's bordering Tatras National Park.

HOWEVER, no national parks are truly international in the sense that citizens can freely mingle across borders in jointly used and managed areas.

"There is no need to have international parks," says Maria Buchinger of Argentina, executive secretary of the Latin-American Committee on National Parks. "If countries are enemies, having parks on borders results in additional problems. When countries are friends, having parks on common borders can result in sharing."

In a revolutionary gesture, the Shah of Iran announced to the International Conference on the Conservation of Wetlands that Iran was prepared to place one of its wetlands, ecosystems of special global significance in a joint trust with an international agency "to conserve and administer for all mankind." A 125,000-acre site at Darjan now has been picked, although the International park has not yet been established.

The 101 nations that have set aside national parks have done so primarily in unique and historical areas and made them available to the public. The fact that the parks also provide a laboratory for closer working relationships between nations is a bonus. It would be an overstatement to say that national parks are today a major force for peace, but they do have a considerable potential for goodwill and understanding among nations.

NATIONAL-PARKS management has spurred training activities that span national boundaries and culture. The United States, Canada, and the University of Michigan annually present a month-long seminar in administration of national parks and equivalent reserves. Professional personnel from 70 countries have visited U.S. and Canadian parks during the seven years the course has been offered.

Regional schools for training of park rangers and wardens now exist in Tanzania, the Cameroon, and Argentina. The College of African Wildlife Management at Mweka, Tanzania, has students from 11 English-speaking countries, and graduates occupy leading positions in the park systems and wildlife departments of 15 countries.

VICTORIA FALLS, where the Zambesi River plunges 300 feet over a mile wide precipice, is an exception to the growing cooperation that exists among nations with contiguous national parks. The unfriendly relationship between Rhodesia and Zambia prevents citizens or visitors in either nation from easy access to the other to permit viewing this wonder of nature from both sides of the Zambesi.

The Travel Pages

The United States as part of its technical assistance program has sent advisers to more than 20 countries requesting park-planning assistance. The United States has launched a new program in which the National Park Service and Peace Corps will provide Peace Corps volunteers skilled in park planning, management, and environmental interpretations.

A STEP in extending the national-park concept in the field of international cooperation is the World Heritage Trust, a proposal first made at an international conference in Washington, D.C., in 1965 by Russell E. Train, now chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, and Joseph Fisher, president of Resources for the Future. The World Heritage Trust is based on the principle that certain natural, historical, or cultural areas are of such universal value that they belong to the heritage of the entire world.

These areas should be given added recognition, protection, and assistance through elevation to a special classification.

National sovereignty would in no way be invaded, and a designated area would remain under the management and control of the nation to which it belongs. If it qualified for the trust under standards to be set up by a committee of 15 nations, it could receive financial or technical assistance if needed, and the highest degree of protection would have to be maintained by the country involved.

Among areas that might be eligible are the Serengeti Plains of Tanzania, the Grand Canyon in Arizona, and the Galapagos Islands of Equador, all of which now are and would continue to be national parks. Areas such as Mt. Everest or portions of the Amazon Basin not now in national parks could also qualify.

THE FIRST AIRLINE?

America's oldest airline?

No, it's not one of the big flying fleets with a home base in the United States. It's Mexicana Airlines, founded in 1924 "out of necessity because bandits were plundering oil company payrolls transported by road from Mexico City to Tampico," and an alternative was needed desperately.

Tampico banker George Rihl provided the answer with four small 54-mile-an-hour Lincoln Standard planes purchased from an aerial circus, and the start of a fledgling airline that carried its first passengers that same year.

New York — Dramatic

By GUY HALVERSON

NEW YORK, N.Y. — To try and understand the United States without at least a passing familiarity with New York, travel officials here stoutly maintain, would be much like reading a primer on American history while omitting the significance of the Statue of Liberty.

For the inescapable fact remains that this urban colossus — long an international communications and financial hub — has been not only the main point of demarcation for millions of emigrants, but in many ways the most dramatic symbol of the very drive and aspiration of the American people themselves.

AND NO insular metropolis — this New York! The world's second largest city (behind Tokyo), this community of roughly 7.8 million people (plus 16 million visitors annually) is a veritable hodgepodge of backgrounds, peoples, and tongues.

From your first arrival at any of the city's three metropolitan area airports, you'll be quickly caught up in the swirl — which perhaps more than anything else proves that urban living, despite enormous problems, can work.

One important tip: be price conscious, right from the outset. Accommodations are excellent — 100,000 first-class tourist rooms located throughout the city, ranging from $15 to $22 for a double room with bath at a medium priced hotel such as the Tudor City near the United Nations, to between $37 and $58 at the Plaza.

ROOMS USUALLY are booked heavily for the main convention seasons, spring and fall, so secure your lodgings as early as possible. Information may be obtained from the city's Convention and Tourist Bureau, 90 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y., 10017.

The main problem for the visitor — indeed, the resident, too — you'll quickly discover, is that there's almost too much to do. So, be selective. New York is perhaps best known for its theater district — still the "footlights" of the nation. There are some 15 major legitimate theaters in the Broadway-Times Square area, and curtain time is usually 7:30, letting out between 10 and 10:30.

Be forewarned, however, that the area has had an influx of porno film theaters and other rather unsavory entrepreneurs in the past decade; so again, it's best to be purposive about your movements. In fact, that's good advice wherever you go here.

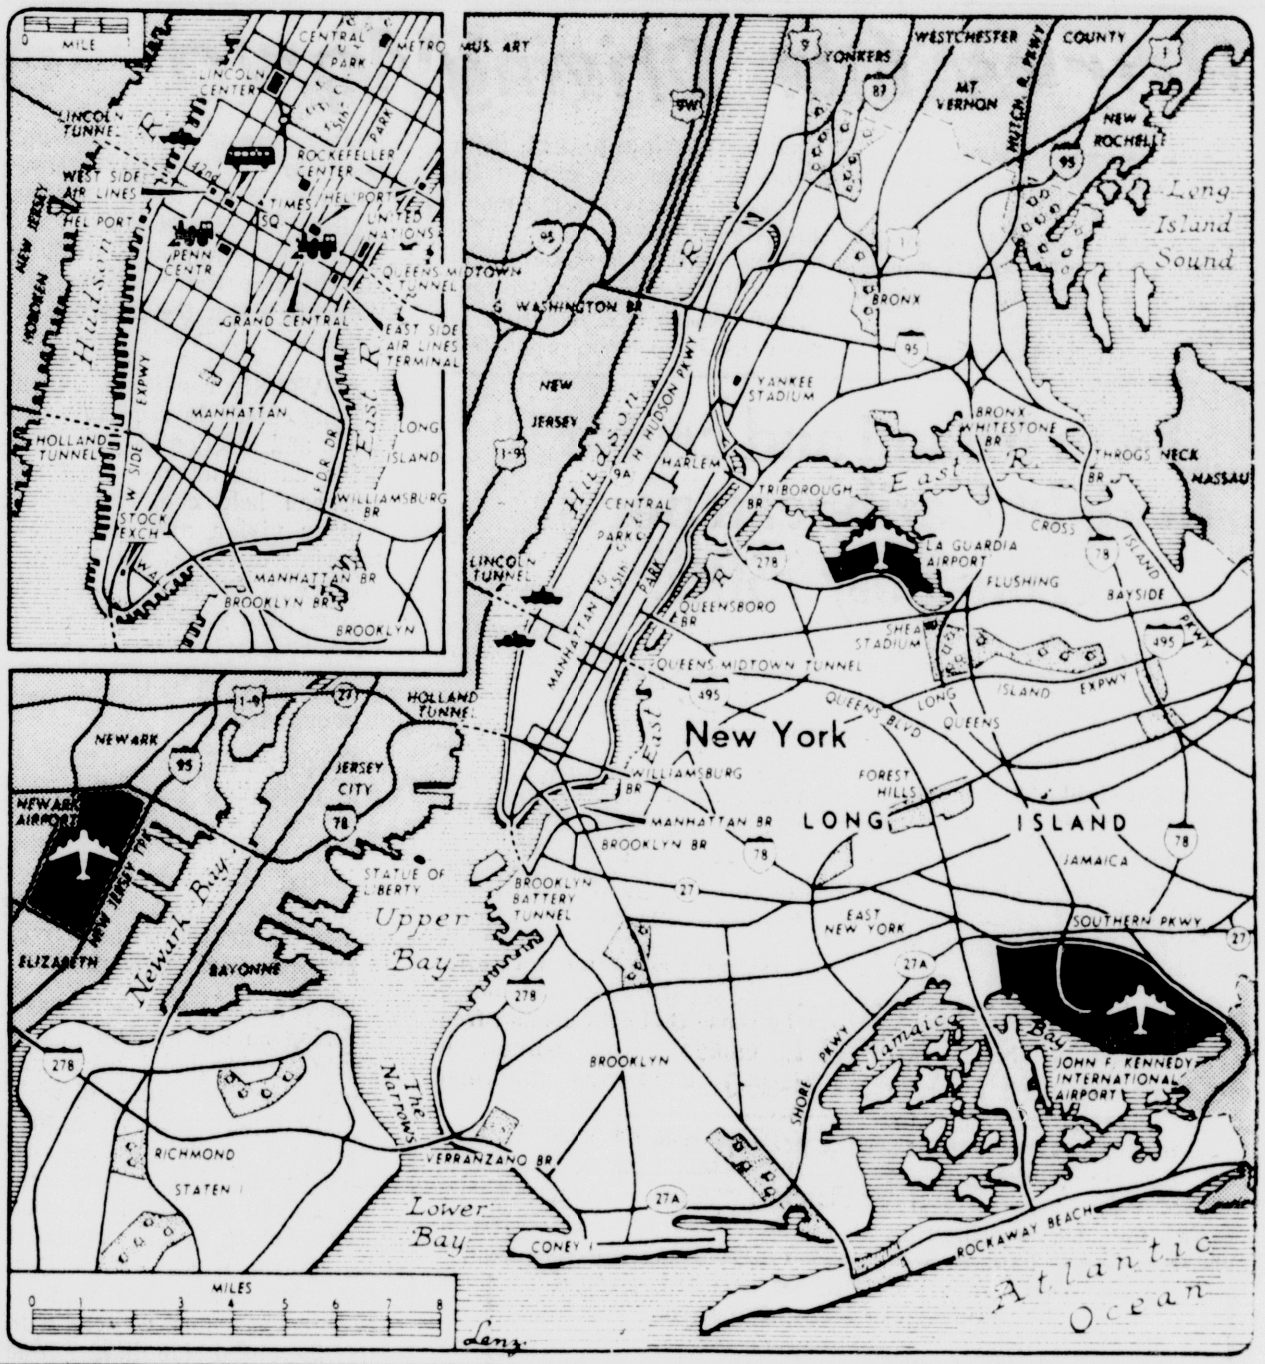

There also are scores of "Off-Broadway" theaters throughout the city — from the Broadway area itself down to Greenwich Village. Always order tickets in advance, if possible. During summer months, you can see magnificent "free" Shakespeare at Central Park.

SIGHT-SEEING tours leave from the main hotels and are good introductory guides. There also are magnificent boat trips around Manhattan Island, and a five-mile ferryboat trip to Staten Island that takes about one hour round trip and gives an absolutely splendid view of the city's Wall Street financial area.

The Radio City complex at Rockefeller Center, complete with a number of the little restaurants, is capped by the Rainbow Room on the 65th floor of the RCA Building (which houses National Broadcasting Company television studios) and offers a sweeping panorama of the city.

It's equally as charming as the view from the Empire State Building, and certainly more intimate. And Lincoln Center, on the West Side, has a full range of plays, ballet, dance, symphony, and opera.

BUT TO really get the feel of this vast melting pot you've got to meet the New Yorkers themselves.

Winter Driving Tips

Winter is just around the corner, and that means ski trips, winter camping, snowmobiling, and all the other activities our recreation-minded nation is so fond of during the winter months.

It also means that the driving conditions going to and from these activities are going to be less than ideal, says the American Automobile Assn.

Many winter accidents are caused by the fact that too few drivers know that skidding is more likely to occur when the temperature is at the freezing point or just slightly above freezing. When ice is wet or melting because of rising temperatures, stopping distances can become twice as long as they are when the mercury is at zero.

ADVERSE conditions affect driving chiefly by reducing visibility and traction. If you must drive during adverse weather, you can help compensate for poorer vision and increased stopping distances by keeping your car in good condition, driving slowly, and using extra care.

AAA offers these tips for your winter driving:

Keep windshields, windows, and headlights clean to offset poor visibility during rainy or snowy weather. Mud and dirt splashed back on your headlights can cover them and make the lighting efficiency of your headlights inadequate.

Snow and sleet collecting and freezing on the windshield can produce wide blind areas not cleaned by the windsheld wipers. With peripheral vision thus restricted you may not be able to spot pedestrians or cars coming in from the side. It's a good idea to clean this accumulated ice off the windshield periodically, but in any case, remember that you must contend with this increased side danger zone and drive accordingly.

Keep windshield wipers and defrosters in good working condition since they are your prime bad-weather safety devices. If the windshield and side windows fog over on the inside, open a window slightly and turn on the defroster.

Colorado Ghost Towns Visited

DENVER, Colo. — Of the hundreds of mining camps established between 1858 and 1891 in Colorado dozens are booming again not for gold but for tourists.

"Ghost towns dot the rockies almost everywhere," the travel experts for Continental Airlines report. "For the tourist they provide surprising rewards."

CRIPPLE CREEK, only a short drive from Denver, was once considered the world's greatest gold camp. After the first great discovery there in 1890 it became Colorado's fourth largest city, had a stock exchange, numerous hotels, and two trolley lines.

There was a great decline after the turn of the century and there are now only 600 permanent residents, but some of the hotels have been restored, there's a summer theatre, museum, tourist tours of the old mines and a two-foot-gauge railroad with the engineer, from the cab of his tiny steam locomotive, calling passenger's attention to points of interest along the two-mile route.

"The names of Colorado's ghost towns are as colorful as the mountains in which they are located," says Continental. "There is Tin Cup, Marble, Rifle, Caribou, Fairplay and Buckskin Joe to mention some of them."

LEADVILLE sitting high in the north central Rockies at 10,152 feet altitude, had a rip-roaring past after gold was first discovered there in 1860. The town grew from an initial 1,200 persons to 45,000 in six months. It cost $10 for a barrel of water and candles sold for 50 cents a piece.

Today, Leadville retains much of its original wide-open flavor. Many of the buildings that were around over a hundred years ago are still there. One os the major tourist attractions is the old Tabor Opera House, where conducted tours are offered daily throughout the summer.

The town abounds in unusual Victorian architecture and local residents love to relate tales from the past such as the one about a man who was hanged by vigilantes. The reason "For general principles."

MORE FINE examples of Victorian architecture are to be found in Georgetown, only an hour's drive from Denver, which was one of the first of the Colorado gold and silver mining towns where men brought their womenfolk. Nearby is Waldorf, where over $4-million worth of ore was taken from the mines up to the turn of the century. Some of the mines in the area are still being worked.

In Fairplay, not too far from Leadville, there is a monument to Prunes, a 63-year-old ore-hauling burro, and this old camp also has an authentic restoration of an early Western mining town.

Well worth a visit, too, reports Continental, is the old town of Marble, deep in the Rockies, where immense deposits of that building stone were discovered in 1890. When the quarries were productive the town flourished but they are mostly deserted now. The marble for the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C. came from here, as did that for the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Tourists, walking around the town, can easily pick up beautiful specimens to take home.

Nasser—Strengths And Weaknesses

"To pick up a rug from the middle", runs an old proverb, "is impossible". By the same token, a participant in critical events is unable to be a dispassionate, objective observer of those events.

Anthony Nutting negotiated the Anglo-Egyptian agreement of 1954 which provided for the withdrawal of British troops from Egypt; he resigned from office in protest against British involvement in the Suez takeover attempt and he was a friend of Nasser. This background disqualified him on grounds of objectivity, but it does provide the knowledge and the intimate insights for an informative, anecdotal, somewhat one-sided biography.

The Egypt of Gamal Abdel Nasser's birth in 1918 was controlled by Great Britain. British domination was only the current phase of 2,500 years of outsider control beginning with the Persian conquest of Egypt.

Nasser, the son of a postman, became an ardent nationalist in his youth, expanded to pan-Arabism during his years of leadership through the Six Day War of 1967 and retreated to Egyptian nationalism from then until his death in 1970.

His early nationalism first made him a student activist in anti-government riots and then led him into an army career because he saw a strong army as Egypt's only hope for independence. In 1952 he was the behind-the-scenes leader of the Free Officers' Executive Committee which deposed Farouk and established General Neguib as President.

The military junta set up a Revolutionary Command Council with Neguib as Chairman and Nasser as Vice Chairman. From this very narrow group Nasser was to choose most of his top associates after he took over sole leadership in 1954. Nutting shows clearly that the conspiratorial years of Nasser's life, between 1935 and 1954, had a profound effect on his governing style.

The successful conspirator, i.e., the one who survives, must suspect everyone. Nasser did. He found it impossible to delegate authority and as a result, literally killed himself with work that others should have been doing.

If "suspicion was Nasser's besetting sin and principal weakness", his second major limitation was that, despite his pan-Arabism, he knew very little about his fellow Arabs and showed little desire to learn more. This serious flaw became evident after the union between Egypt and Syria. Never having been in Syria prior to the merger, Nasser preferred to use gossip for his information rather than the informed news of his own ambassador to Damascus.

To a significant degree the union that formed the United Arab Republic failed because Nasser could not appreciate the differences between Syrian and Egyptian traditions. Nasser tried to govern Syria as he governed Egypt; the attempt was doomed to failure.

Nutting is at his best in his analysis of Nasser as man and leader. He is most one-sided in his presentation of Nasser's greatest success and greatest failure because he identified himself so closely with Nasser's cause. The success is Nasser's handling of the Suez crisis of 1956. Nutting provides an insider's view of the international manipulations leading up to and following the Franco-Israeli takeover of the Suez Canal. He gives Nasser credit for exploiting international forces beyond his control.

The failure was Nasser's handling of the Six Day War and its causes. Nutting makes Nasser the puppet of forces he couldn't control and blames those forces and the Israelis for the debacle that ensued.

In other words, when Nasser succeeds, Nutting says he succeeds because of his personal talent. When he fails, it isn't his fault; the dice were loaded against him.

"Nasser" provides a good introduction to the man who attempted, with much success, to restore Egyptian dignity after millenia of servitude. Nutting exploits his intimate knowledge of Nasser to show both the strengths and weaknesses of the man. But the very closeness which enables him to disclose the man, limits the historical objectivity he brings to the events.

Adventure In Northern Ireland

THE SAVAGE DAY by Jack Higgins; Holt, Rinehart, Winston, 182 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by James Meldrum.

The author has taken the military efficiency of Bond, added the rough, tough aspects of Hammer and discarded many of the oversexed characteristics of both. (It would be a reasonable guess that he could not fit them all in). Simon Vaughan is all business, but when you take the fiery situation that is present day Northern Ireland, romanticise the issues with rip-roaring heroics and allow for the far-flung imagination of this author, you can see why there is little time for sexual meandering.

Despite all this "The Savage Day" retains an authenticity that speaks well for the author's research and first hand knowledge of the Irish-British dilemma.

Simon Vaughan is a reluctant rogue-type hero who is 'persuaded' by his old employers, the British Intelligence, to take an active militant role in the Irish situation. Our hero's roots, like the authors, happen to be of recent Irish origin and he is thereby able to infiltrate an I.R.A. underground group that is suspected of having absconded wth a sizable chunk of Her Majesty's gold buillion.

JACK HIGGINS
Irish tale

There are complications galore and Higgins has skillfully-blended the elements of suspense with a colorful mixture of characters. Among the latter is the mysterious Nora Murphy, who represents the inevitable American presence, and her uncle, the "Small Man," who is a true to life patriotic Irish character who favors reason as opposed to the violence advocated by other revolutionary elements. I hasten to add that violence wins out and there is enough blood and gore to satisfy an army of vampires. Chase episodes on land and sea are exciting with their literal and liberal use of flying fists, boots and bullets.

Vaughan, being the chief recipient and donor of these shenanigans is still able to retain a dry, cold and sometimes unnerving sense of humor. Crumpled corpses fall all over the place, and although Simon does not emerge unscathed he does somehow survive.

With the exception of the author's occasional philosophical intervention and subsequent patronizing tone, this is a good short novel with a straight shooting style. If this type of action with its built in violence and organized mayhem is your cup of tea, or poison, you will be reluctant to put this book down and quite unhappy to reach its end.

Simple Tale of Boy In Uncaring World

LIKE THE LION'S TOOTH, by Marjorie Kellogg; Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 147 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

This is a sad book about love and loneliness, a deceptively simple tale about Ben, age 11, the victim of man's inhumanity to children.

The opening sentence sets the style and tone. "The day she didn't come for him, Ben waited an hour in the reception hall. Then he went down by the river . . . being careful not to get his shoes muddy, watching that the brambles didn't tear his new suit, trying not to sweat and mess himself up."

Ben was waiting for his mother to take him away from the institution where she and the court had consigned him — as if he were a piece of furniture put into storage — to protect him from the rages and sexual attacks of his father.

Author Marjorie Kellogg, also creator of "Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon," has produced a small masterpiece. Her portraits of Ben, his brothers and sisters, and of his pathetic yet courageous companions at "the school" are unsentimental and incisive.

Her descriptions of the adults around Ben — all of whom fail him — are frightening. This book should be required reading for social workers, physicians, foster parents — all the people who work with battered children.

But Ben is an exceptional victim. Though maltreated physically and emotionally, he has hope, resiliency, and manages to survive a crisis that would drive most adults to insanity.

If this novel has a weakness it is that the source of Ben's strength is never fully explained.

"Most criminals have never learned to value social approval. # Ex-convict Ponders His Past Without Any Show of Remorse

By DON KEOWN

LIFE by Gary Krist; Olympia Press, 370 pages, $6.95.

There's a breed loose in this land, and on the increase, that can best be described as "the creep."

It isn't only their capacity for injury to others, but the perverse satisfaction they take in such damage. Totally inward in their twisted thinking, they see others only as stepping stones to be tread on in their path to ego satisfaction.

They come in all ages and from all walks of life.

One such is — or was — Gary Krist, the husky young ex-convict who carried out the incredible kidnaping of heiress Barbara Mackle, daughter of one of Florida's wealthiest and most powerful men, and kept her buried alive in Georgia soil in an oversized casket he had constructed and equipped especially for that purpose while he negotiated for ransom.

It is a revelation of the kind of sick thinking that the "creep" practices, and a demonstration that even a high I.Q. — and Krist has one — is not a guarantee of true intelligence.

For instance listen to this rationalization from Krist: "I would, in time, tell myself that my conscience destroyed me. Yes, I would say, it caused me to lose my broad awareness of the outside world and its ornate and deadly perils, depriving me of my sense of cunning, calculating self-preservation. My return to crime need not have hurt me, I would tell myself, and that the cause of my failure was the stimulus of guilt. And so though there had been a great difference between the crime of my total down fall and those I had done before — intensive premeditation — because of its 'guilty' origin the clarity of after-light revealed all the premeditation as faulty thinking, building itself as in a vacuum, and constituting a flight from 'reality.'

GARY KRIST

"These defenses remained strong in me for a long while.

"These feelings did begin then and as they flourished, and before they were put to work to 'exonerate' me for my failure, they afforded me a philosophical system and therein even a moral system to carry me along. I possessed a hall of polemics, my values against those of the whole world, and my own stood triumphant . . ."

All this torturous double talk after 240 pages demonstrating that Gary Krist in his brief lifetime had been not one iota concerned with conscience or moral values.

His book begins with his boyhood in Alaska as the son of an impoverished and dour fisherman. The opening pages are the best written in the book leading the reader to expectations that are not realized, as Krist's rhetoric disintegrates into a kind of breathless parody of the Jack Kerouac style.

In his early years Gary Krist soon develops the anti-social feelings he was to nourish throughout his life. He felt neglected by his parents, was jealous of a more stable brother, and chaffed at the restrictions of Alaskan village life. At an early age he was a thief and a liar. And a total egotist, concerned only with the gratification of his own needs or desires.

This last can be seen not only in his accounts of his thievery, but in the relish with which he relates in detail his sexual conquests of very young girls while still in his tender teens himself. These recitations soon become boring — to everyone but Krist himself, who obviously enjoys, and no doubt embellishes, the stories.

For along with stealing, Gary Krist also became a fantasizer, dreaming up romatic relationships and exploits. It was a trait that was to lead him ultimately into the Barbara Mackle kidnaping.

But before that there was a series of episodes with young women, stolen boats and cars, the law, imprisonment and escape. Even jobs with such prestigious employers as the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (as a physicist) and the Institute of Marine Science in Miami (as an oceanographer). On several occasions, Krist was presented with opportunities to "go straight," but he rejected them all, used those who befriended and in a few cases even loved him, and moved on along his own course to what he saw as his destiny but which proved to be disaster.

One of Krist's several unpleasant traits — the "creep" is never truly pleasant —is his querulous complaining when called upon to pay the price for the misconduct he readily admits.

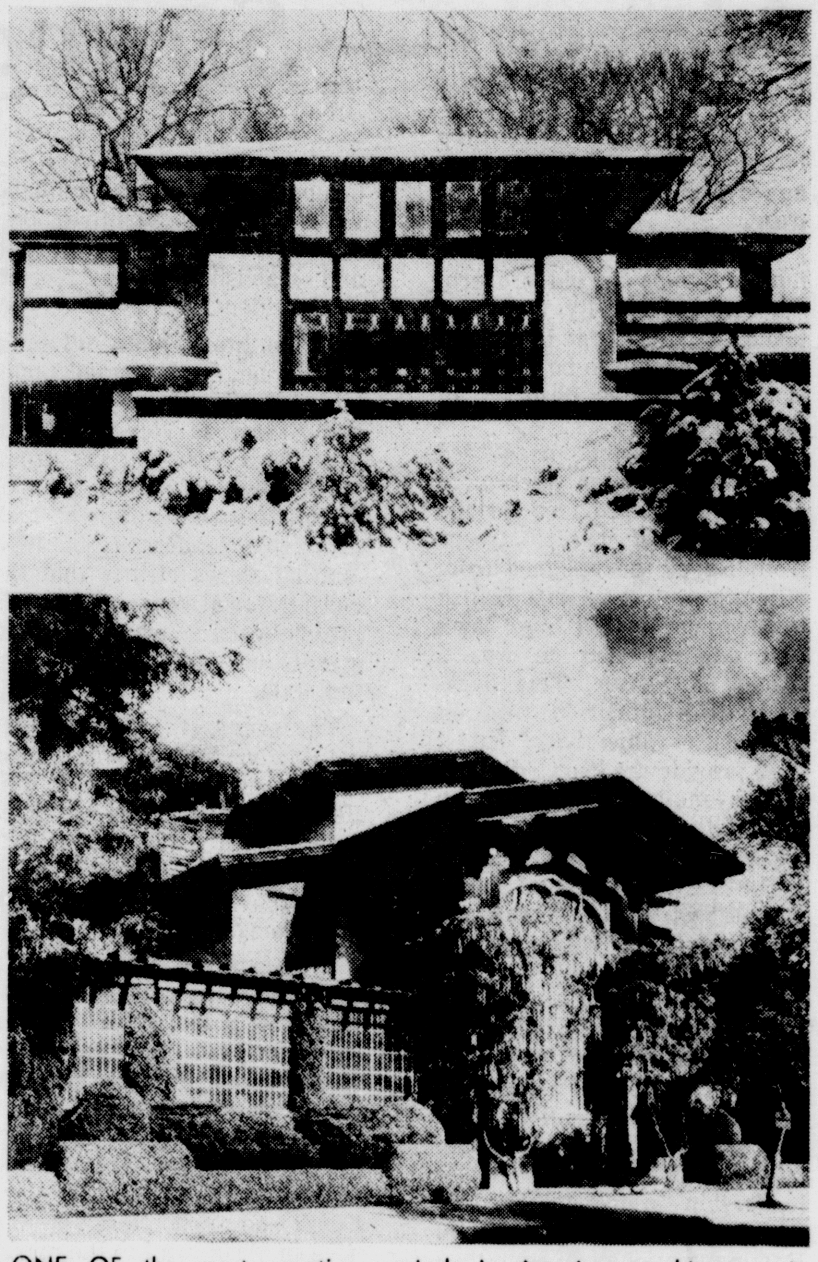

Still, we wrote at the outset of this review that "Gary Krist is — or was — a creep." The past tense alternative was included because his book offers at least one hope that Krist has finally acquired a degree of maturity and self-understanding that will enable him to leave behind his past, if he ever emerges from the Georgia prison where this book was written.

It is found in tis closing passage: "I had played the unthinking, self-centered dolt who had thought 'scientifically' that the drug and my capsule would keep her (Barbara Mackle) safe. Yet had I been killed by car accident or bullet at the wrong time she might have perished beneath the red clay hillside in Georgia. I had been so unfeeling in my self-absorption, in my passionate amour, that I had not at all tried to put myself in Barbara's situation. I did not contemplate at all that trauma might penetrate the drugs and reduce her to madness."

It is the closest Gary Krist comes to recognition of the terrible peril in which he placed his victim, or the horrible ordeal to which he subjected her.

And even then, one wonders. For Krist has proven himself a prevaricator and a clever manipulator.

Such qualities, it seems are often a part of the "creep's" make-up, permitting him to hide, briefly or at length, his inner rot from an undiscerning public. Thousands of Gary Krists, even Charles Mansons, walk our streets today, their menace unrecognized until it is too late. Gary Krist's book at least alerts us to their existence and to one such sick pattern of behavior.

ONE OF the most creative periods in American architecture is covered in the third volume of "American Buildings and Their Architects," Doubleday, $15, 448 pages. Among the buildings illustrated in the book are the late Frank Lloyd Wright's Ward Willits house in Highland Park, Ill., of 1902, at top, and the First Church of Christ, Scientists.

ENTHUSIASM for bicycling continues unabated, and Kenneth E. Luther, journalist, cycling coach, licensed racer and passionate devotee of the sport, hopes to fan the flames with his 160-page, $2 paperback, "Bicycle Riding for Fun and Good Health."

Published by Wilshire Book Co. of 12015 Sherman Road, North Hollywood, Calif., the book is a chatty dissertation by the 43-year-old Luther aimed at the beginner, to acquaint him with the benefits, the equipment and the technique of bicycling, and with considerable emphasis upon safety and attention to bike repairs.

The book is fun reading and geniunely helpful.

TWO NEW craft books, both paperbacks, deal with a relatively popular craft — fabric printing — and with a quite obscure skill, at least locally — coconut palm frond weaving.

"The Craft of Fabric Printing" is by Kathleen Monk, published by Ballantine at $2.95, and is a generously illustrated manual that covers tie and dye, batik, block printing, stenciling, paste resist, painting with rollers and many other decorating techniques.

"Coconut Palm Frond Weaving" by William H. Goodloe, published by Charles E. Tuttle and priced at $3.25, covers a craft that is commonplace in the tropics, but sounds decidedly exotic to westerners. One learns, however, that more and more Americans, including civil engineer Goodloe and his wife, are mastering and enjoying the weaving of the fronds. And it is noted that fronds of other types of palm trees can be substituted for the coconut palm.

A FAMILIAR name and a familiar style are behind three coloring books, "The Family of Families," "The Sunflower" and "Happy Day! Cried the Rainbow Lady, Full of Light." All are by Alicia Bay Laurel, all the drawings are in her primitive-like style, the captions and commentary are in handwriting, and all celebrate the free and natural life and the wonders of nature. Harper & Row is the publisher and the books sell at $1.25 each.

Sleuths & Suspense

AVERY'S FORTUNE by William M. Green; Bobs-Merrill, 203 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

William M. Green's first suspense novel, "Spencer's Bag," earned him attention and acclaim. "Avery's Fortune" marks his attempt to maintain that high performance level, and he almost, but not quite, succeeds.

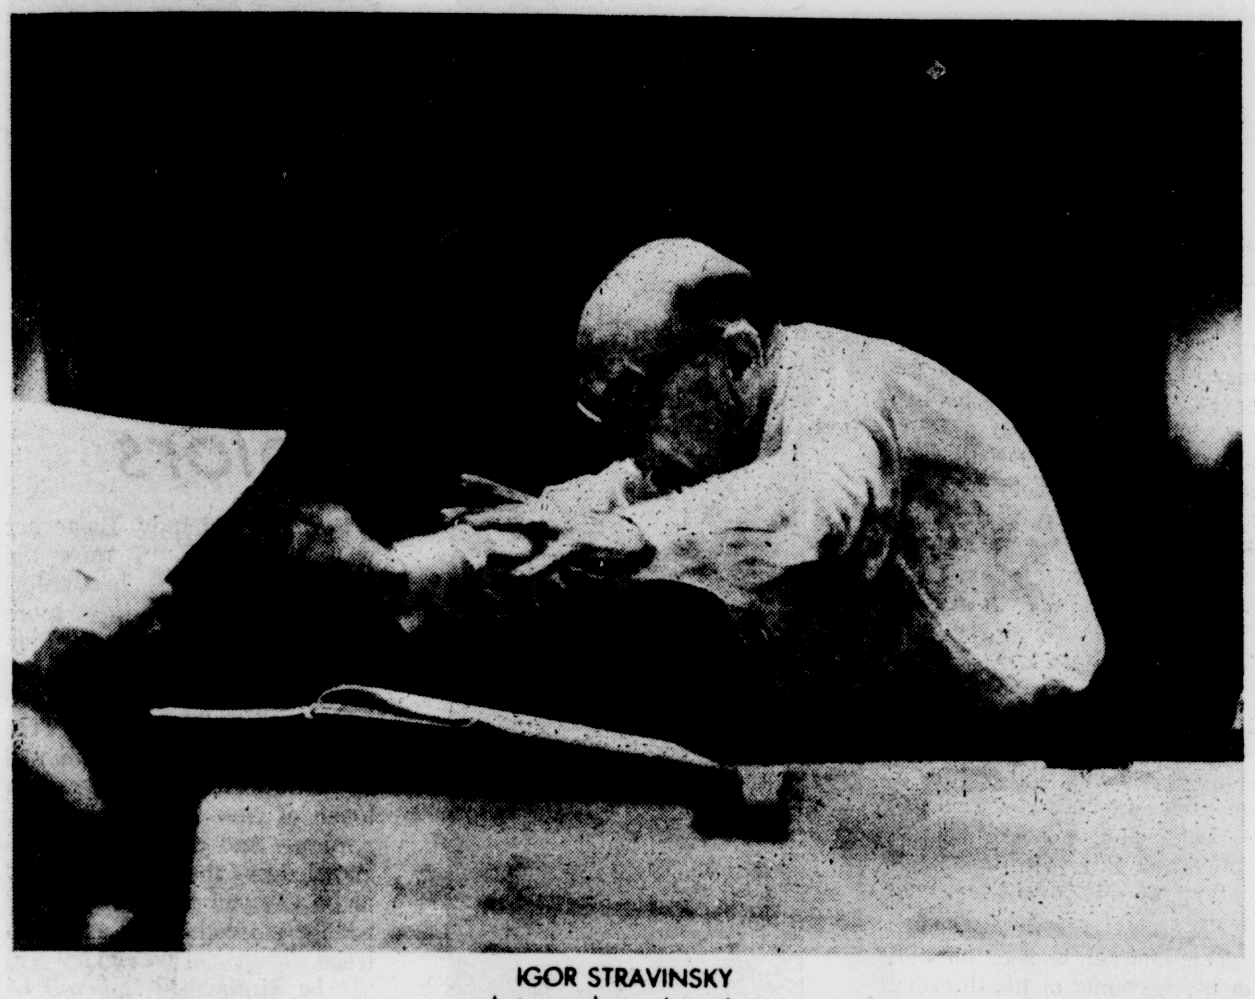

It's an adventure yarn, involving a young playboy type. Avery Peters, in shenanigans, art theft and piracy upon the high seas. Author Green assembles a colorful cast, each member of which is likely to remind you of someone real and prominent, to play out the action with Peters.

Still, it is not unentertaining. And Green does display a free and easy writing style along with a plot seed that is intriguing. Too bad it didn't germinate more fully.

On The Stereo Scene—Stravinsky

IGOR STRAVINSKY
Late conductor in action

By JOHN SUNIER

THE STRAVINSKY ALBUM — Columbia MG 31202: In this bargain-priced double-disc package the late great master conducts the Columbia Symphony Orchestra in his triumvirate of brilliant ballet scores for "The Rite of Spring, "Petrushka" and "Firebird" Suites. These are of course re-issues, as so many classical LP's are nowadays, but these should be in every collection of 20th-Century music and the new pressings have better surfaces than the older ones. There are those who might prefer the more Romantic and dramatic approach of Bernstein or Ansermet in this music, but the composer's own performances are exciting listening as well.

TCHAIKOVSKY: Symphony No. 2 "Little Russian" — Bernstein/New York Philharmonic — Columbia M 31195: The first three of the six Tchaikovsky symphonies are unfairly slighted, for they abound in wonderful melody. Number Two is especially rich in Russian folk music, with a finale full of unexpected changes. Superb delivery and engineering make this a top-notch buy.

A RECITAL OF MAHLER SONGS — Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau and Leonard Bernstein — Columbia KM 30942: Fischer-Dieskau is of course one of our finest baritone voices in todays music world. Leonard Bernstein's versatility is amply illustrated by his sensitive piano accompaniment in this album. Accompaniment is really not the right word when one speaks of art song of this type; the piano part is usually an equal partner of the voice. The songs are selected from two song cycles, or collections: "Songs from Ruckert," and "Songs of Youth." One from the latter, "At Strasbourg on the Fort," with its picture of military life and the onmipresence of death, was for this listener the dramatic highlight of this important album.

STRAVINSKY CONDUCTS STRAVINSKY — Choral Music — Columbia M 31124: The big item in this latest Igor-Plays-Igor collection is an English version of the barnyard fable "Renard, the Fox." This is great fun when one knows what is happening without burying oneself in the libretto.

Also heard are four Russian Songs performed by mezzo-soprano Adrienne Albert, four Russian Peasant Songs with four horns, sung by the Gregg Smith Singers, and three short religious works set to Slavic texts. "Babel," a sectioc from a cycle of Biblical pieces by seven famous composers including Stravinsky, is Webern-esque in its extreme condensation to a short five minutes. Perhaps the highlight for curiosity seekers will be Stravinsky's unique harmonization and orchestration of The Star-Spangled Banner. This is a good one to stump your friends with!

Billy Taylor Has To Set Time For Piano

By MARY CAMPBELL

Jazz pianist Billy Taylor is so busy that he has to write down in his daily schedule, "time at the piano."

Three years as orchestra director of the David Frost Show ended June 30.

BUT THERE was the summer's Jazzmobile, which Taylor helped start in 1965. A woman member of the Harlem Cultural Council had gone to the World's Fair and noticed that, though there were many expensive exhibits, a lot of people were following brass bands and listening to the music. She suggested some street music for Harlem.

Taylor says, "Everybody on the council said no but me. Since I spoke so loudly in favor of it, I became the one they told to go out and do it. It became my baby.

"The exciting thing is being able to pull together sources of funds. We get our biggest help from the state and a lot of help from the city, like from the Sanitation Department and Police Department. Coca Cola has been our most important company sponsor for the last five or six year." This year the budget was $250,000.

TAYLOR taught history of jazz piano at the Manhattan School of Music this summer, mostley to music teachers, and he'll teach it this fall at C. W. Post College.

He wrote a dozen or so books for music teachers in the early 1950s and he's revising and condensing those into one or two volumes. "As an undergraduate, I was going to be a music teacher. I think educational techniques should not be divorced from the practical aspects of playing music, as they have been in this country. And when things bother me I try to do something about them."

Taylor, who was born in Greenville, N.C., in 1921, was reared in Washington D.C. and is a graduate of Virginia State College, also is working on a Ph.D. in black music at the University of Massachusetts.

IN AUGUST he was named to a six-year term on the National Council on the Arts.

This year, Taylor has become part owner of two radio stations. He and two other black men bought WSOK in Savannah, Ga., and he is part of a conglomerate that bought WLIB in New York, the city's first black-owned station.

"This is all a part of my career which has to do with communication on many levels. What I'm concerned with is really expanding the minds of people. I feel there is so much information available that people are interested in, but they're never exposed to it. I'm privarily interested in presenting the contributions of my own ethnic group.

"I'M NOT the program director of either station but from the musical point of view I've been pointing out some things. We don't have to stick strictly to the charts and what is selling best at the moment.

Most black stations have a format of r and b and gospel and possibly some jazz. Harry Belafonte, the Ink Spots, Johnny Mathis, Lena Horne and Brownie McGhee and Sonny Terry wouldn't necessarily fit into that format. Most black stations are owned by white owners. They think they know what is best for us, and they're chart-oriented.

"We're programming classical music. There are remarkable black classical writers and performers going back 150 years. We're also having community opinions shows where the problems of the communities can be discussed."

As for recording, Taylor says he hasn't decided what he wants to record next. "I'm fooling around with electric piano. Maybe I'll do that."

HIS LAST two LPs are "Ok, Billy!" and "From David Frost and Billy Taylor, Merry Christmas," both on Bell.

He says, "My recordings are the best-kept secret in jazz. I've made about 30 as leader, not counting other stuff. Most of them are out of print. 'I Wish I Knew' on Tower and the early trio albums on ABC came off the best, probably."

"I Wish I Knew how it Would Feel To Be Free" is Taylor's best-known composition. He says, "I wrote that nine years ago, when my daughter was 7. She came home singing a black spiritual and she was singing it wrong.

She said a nun taught it to her so it couldn't be wrong. I told her I could write a song like that, so I did. I wrote the first verse and the melody in about 15-20 minutes. It took two years and a co-writer to finish the lyric."

THE TAYLORS also have a son, who is studying architecture at Grinnell University.

Asked about his jazz piano playing, which Taylor does try to keep from getting swamped by everything else, he says:

"One of the points I make in my classes is that major jazz artists have an influence both forward and backward. In my own career, I was influenced by Art Tatum.

Daffodils Come In Different Colors

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

The host of daffodils aren't all golden these days. They also come in white, pastels, and pink, with contrasting trumpets and cups in orange, orange-red, apricot, and pale yellow, some edged with deeper colors, frilled and fluted.

They come in many different shapes, too. Besides the familiar beauties with wide perianth petals framing big or medium trumpets, and the flat white narcissus with small contrasting cup centers, there are fluffy double miniatures with pointed petals, little orchidlike creamy whites, others that look like dimunitive hoop skirts, and still others like shooting stars.

All sizes, too, can be chosen to bloom over a long season.

For best results plant them as early as possible in the autumn, 4 to 8 inches deep and 6 to 10 inches apart — the miniatures closer.

IN VERY cold locations, after the ground has frozen, cover the bulbs with leaves, straw, or coarse litter to a depth of 4 to 6 inches. This prevents alternate freezing and thawing.

If you are naturalizing with them, along a stream or in an open woodland, we are told that rock phosphate or superphosphate in spring and fall will help them multiply.

Troubled with field mice or shrews? Daffodils are your spring-flowering bulb answer. They won't touch daffodil bulbs.

Of the giant and medium trumpets, top favorites are the golden King Alfred and the creamy white Mount Hood. Among other giants, Red Marley has a copper-red trumpet and golden-yellow perianth. Spellbinder has a 4½-inch perianth of lemon-primrose with a greenish cast, and a trumpet of slightly deeper lemon-yellow with the interior ivory white.

Called the "orchid-flowered narcissus," it bears three blooms on a stem, each with recurving perianth petals and graceful trumpets. Other whites include silver chimes, usually six on a stem, two-inch white perianths and primrose cups; and white marvel, three on a stem, with ivory cups.

The so-called "pink" daffodils have white perianths, but the trumpets are distinctly pink or apricot, fluted and ruffled. Plant them where they can be seen close up.

THIS APPLIES also to the miniatures or narcissus species. They are fragrant and dainty and have such different shapes that one needs to be able to enjoy them individually. Some, like Little Beauty and February Silver, are traditional daffodil shapes, but small.

Most of these miniatures are borne several on a stem and are effective in small colonies in the rock garden or among low-growing perennials. Many are very early. Charming, too, in pots for the winter window.

About CARPETS

By Doug Emerson

CARPETS AVAILABLE IN ALMOST ANY COLOR

Which colors do you like best? . . . The carpet industry offers an overwhelming array of colors in many designs and price ranges. Because your carpet is the second largest area of color in your room, selecting a color for it is most important.

To simplify your choice, think in terms of color families. Then look for the exact shade or tint you like most . . . Medium shades are best if you want a minimum of maintenance. Multi-color carpets, such as tweeds, florals and stripes usually wear better and hide soil better than solids.

In heavy traffic areas, such as family rooms and halls, you will enjoy carpets that won't show every footprint. Tight, dense texture such as loops and twists give the best service.

Also consider the practical side of carpet color and texture. Choose a color you can live with comfortably for a long time. Your carpet should be a joy to look at as well as feel.

Remember whatever your selection calls for . . . We can assist you in our wide choice of carpets from the finest mills.

Select Plants For Highlights

There are certain shrubs which stand out in any grouping of plants. They don't overpower the landscape, but provide highlights and accents where other shrubs merely blend into the whole intersting scheme of things.

Two such shrubs are Nandina and Podocarpus: Heavenly Bamboo and Yew Pine, to use their common names. These are ideal accent plants and they do an outstanding job of providing highlights in the garden.

HEAVENLY Bamboo is not a bamboo at all, but it resembles one in many ways. A shrub of refinement, it grows from a clump of canes which increases in size as the plant matures. It produces a feathery, bamboo-like head of foliage.

There are three types and each is an excellent choice in the landscape.

The taller Heavenly Bamboo has been a decorative addition to landscapes for years. The dwarf variety is a later arrival and is a delightful accent in the foreground of planting areas — and in plantings by itself.

Newest-on-the scene is the compact Nandina and its foliage cloak is handsome. Low-growing, it is finding itself in a multitude of uses in the garden. Individually or massed, the compact variety has great appeal for California gardeners.

THE NEW growth, in spring, of Heavenly Bamboo has a bronzy tinge. In fall, the foliage turns to shades of crimson and bronze, adding a lovely seasonal touch to the surroundings. Clusters of spring-summer flowers are followed by bright red berries. These are less apt to set and mature in cool coastal climates than they are inland.

Yew Pine resembles a Yew only in the columnar nature of its growth. In the minds of most horticulturists, it is more attractive than the more formal Yews, having a more open and graceful character. Too, it has much more adaptability for landscape use.

Yew Pine has narrow leaves, whose length and lush coloration appear to be more tropical than alpine. It is an excellent choice for entryway plantings — or on the corners of a structure. It can be grown attractively in a container — for use on a semi-shaded porch or deck.

Autumn Colors

For the unhappy Easterner who complains, "I miss the change of seasons in California," now there are three more answers: "Fastigiata," "Pepperidge" and Raywoodi."

The Sweet Gums, Chinese Pistache and Maidenhair Tree have, for years, been planted by Californians to suggest a touch of New England in their gardens. And city planners, acknowledging the striking beauty to be enjoyed have wisely and widely planted them as street trees. Their autumn glory will not be diminished but will be expanded by these three newcomers.

"FASTIGIATA" is a variety of European Hornbeam. It becomes a dense, narrow column, growing moderately to 40 feet or clipped as a tall hedge. Its dark green serrated leaves, 2 to 5 inches long, turn brilliant yellow as temperatures drop, says the California Association of Nurserymen.

"Pepperidge," a variety of Sour Gum (Nyssa), is one of the best lawn trees for Fall color. It grows well in any soil, takes much or little water, withstands occasional drought and tolerates poor drainage. Growing rather slowly to 30 to 50 feet, spreading to 15 to 25 feet, its narrow dark green, glossy leaves, turn a hot, coppery red in the Fall. And its ornately twisted branches, twigs and dark, red-tinged bark make a dramatic picture against a winter sky.

Strippable Wall Covers Makes Changing Easier

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

Leaving one's mark on an interior is a nice goal; it sounds personal and independent.

But landlords and rental agents don't always understand the desire for self-expression, do they? Consequently, many of us live our lives within spaces that have little relation to our dream house.

THE BATTLESHIP gray or off-white wall surfaces of most apartments can be brightened and lightened with paintings, window treatments and posters.

But the innovation stops there. The rule book says no to wallpapering, unless you're willing to pay for the original wallpaper hanging, then pay again for hiring someone to strip and repaint when you have to move on.

I'm not sure how apartment owners feel about the newer strippable vinyl wall covers, but they seem worth a try. These are designed for contemporary gypsies who can't make too big of an investment in decorative materials that have to remain behind.

AND I don't see why renters would be the only ones to benefit from the strippables. Any homeowner should enjoy the chance to change his mind about how a room's decor shapes up.

But instead of using the same pattern, the designer chose a floral called Cordage for the walls above the kitchen counters. Some of the striped pattern was also used on cabinet doors for extra punch.

ANYTIME the family wants to revamp the kitchen or switch to painted surfaces again, the vinyl can be stripped away. And if there's another area eligible for some of the salvaged wall covering, it can be used again.

Keeping the easy-care theme for these rooms, furnishings have been chosen to fit this same mobile, come-and-go lifestyle. For example, the lightweight table and chairs are molded plastic concepts made by Directional. They come in white, yellow and orange and have been named Umbo.

Other pieces in the Umbo line include furnishings made of lock-together components that work as storage units, headboards, wine racks or room dividers. Since they snap together, they naturally snap apart. Great for moving day!

ROAD RUNNERS and gypsies may find strippable vinyl wall covering, one answer to the noncommital boredom of most temporary homes. With this striped and floral pattern team by Imperial Wallpaper Mills, they can strip and run, taking their decorations with them.

Students Need Place For Study

What's the most important room in a house? That depends on who you are.

For a busy wife and mother, it might be the kitchen. For the man of the family who brings work home from the office, a den can be an absolute necessity. For a youngster, the place where he studies — usually his own room — becomes the hub of a small universe.

A STUDENT'S room is packed with pencils, pens, maps, diagrams, books, a typewriter, stacks of paper, and all the other paraphernalia necessary for a successful academic career. The result is often a clutter that is hardly conductive to good study habits.

Because the study area is such a central part of a student's life — whether it is a first-grader or a high school senior — parents may have to take a hand in arranging it to suit scholastic needs. This can be done easily and economically.

For example, to make a study area more attractive, consider using prefinished hardboard wall paneling. It's available in a variety of woodgrain designs, and interesting colors and textured effects. The panels add eye-appeal and are easy to install over furring strips or right on the existing wall.

THEY'RE ESPECIALLY practical for a room that will be put to a good deal of use, because hardboard panels are dent-mar-and scuff-resistant and can be damp-washed clean.

Extra storage space can be provided with wall-mounted shelf units or book shelves installed across a wall or from floor to ceiling. A desk can either be built-in or, if space allows, using free-standing as part of the storage-wall area.

Perforated hardboard paneling with holes for hooks and shelf brackets is a good way to gain wall storage. Books and desk supplies are on display and within reach.

Extra touches such as brightly colored draperies and rugs, and essentials such as good lighting and comfortable chairs can then be added.

THE BRENTWOOD

Bold vertical fluting, in the warm wood-tones of walnut, contrasts effectively with satin-black metal and brushed chrome accents . . . to draw flattering attention to hand blown Topaz glass. As contemporary as 'now', yet replete with suggestions of yesterday. A truly masterful expression for the 'mix or match' trend.

HANDY STOWAWAY

YOUNGSTERS MUST learn to pick up their toys when they have finished playing, but it's expecting a good deal of a child to take a genuine interest in this little chore unless he has a suitable toy chest of his very own. The chest shown above has additional benefits since it makes a dandy extra seat and has casters under it for mobility. It was painted and decorated with decals, but can be built without decorating, using one of the fancy plywoods on the market. When the child grows up, the chest will be storing apparel and other items. Directions to build the chest can be obtained by sending $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Vun Nuys, Calif., 94109 and ask for full-size chest pattern 248.

Cleaning Up Backyard

By VIVIAN BROWN

When closing down backyard activities in fall, the family should be concerned with proper winter storage of outdoor equipment and comforts.

But usually everyone wants to get the job done quickly. Everything is brought in at the last moment and old and new accouterments are likely to be stored in haphazard fashion — piled in the corner of a cellar or utility room.

Give yourself time to do the job properly, otherwise many of these things will have become warped, mildewed, rusted or frayed by the time they are needed again.

CHAIR and lounge cushions are expensive to replace, but if they are stored well, they may be useful again.

Plastic drycleaning bags or other large plastic film bags may be used for storage of cushions. If they are the long cushions that bend to form both backrest and seat two plastic bags may be necessary.

After cushions are covered, they should be set off the ground in a dry spot in the basement or utility room.

One family replaced cushions for several seasons before they decided they couldn't afford the cost. Now one set of carefully cared-for cushions look almost new at the end of their fourth year.

Before storing, vinyl should be washed with soap and water and left out to dry. If there are spots on the reverse side of the cushion, scrub with soap and water or clean with a spot remover. Such stains attract mice who may wind up using the cushions as nesting grounds.

Garden tools can be a big item if they must be replaced. Dry them thoroughly before storing and wrap the metal ends in newspaper so sharp surfaces may be observed in a dark basement.

Many people are injured when they step on a garden tool that has been carelessly stored. Small garden tools should be wiped clean with an oily cloth and wrapped in plastic or paper bags.

If cellar is damp, wrap legs of furniture with newspaper. A glass topped table should be carefully covered with papers. It is a good place to store cushions which will protect the surface.

Pine furniture should be moved indoors, but redwood can remain outdoors if storage facilities are limited. In putting wood furniture away it is well to repair loose parts. The entire piece may warp if it is stored out of alignment in storage.

Redwood should be in good condition if it is to be left out. Reinsert screws with wood filler if necessary. If the connecting rod between chaise lounge wheels is broken as a result of being tossed around all season, an effective replacement may be made with an old mop handle cut to size. It may fit into the wheels snugly, but if it does not, it can be adjusted.

If too small, small slivers of wood can be inserted into the wheels to fasten. If it is too large, the handle may be shaved to fit. Such a repair takes only a few minutes.

TERMITES INVADING MARIN HOMES NOW.

Every homeowner in Marin County should be on the alert this month for a cloud of winged ant-like insects anywhere around his home. Don't assume that they are ants. It may be a swarm of termites!

In the early spring and fall, all three types of termites found in Marin send out swarms of flying "kings" and "queens" to start new nests. Swarming is heavy and noticeable on a sunny day following rain, but continues to some degree from late February through late October.

Termite colonies send out swarms only after they've been established for three years or more. The flying reproductives can go only a short distance, seldom more than 100 feet unless helped by winds. So if you see a cloud of swarmers or their discarded wings, there's a termite nest nearby.

The swarmers can act as an early-warning system for you. The nest is still fairly small when the first swarms are sent out. If you detect an early swarm, therefore, you've avoided the worst damage. Later, the nests grow to 250,000 termites or more.

The three types of termites in Marin have somewhat different habits for nesting and swarming. But all three types have infested homes in every part of Marin. And contrary to popular belief, they can infest both new and old homes. So every Marin homeowner should be alert this month.

If you see a swarm or discarded wings, call Hinkley & Gordon for a complete Structural Pest Control Inspection. The cost of a Hinkley & Gordon inspection, the most thorough in Marin County, costs just $35 for the average home.

This inspection isn't just a gimmick to sell you a "termite job." It's the best way to avoid one.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN BUYING A MATTRESS?

MATTRESS PRICES COULD START AT 19.00 ★ 22.00 ★ 27.00

Right! But Your Back Wouldn't Be Able To Stand It, and You Would Probably Replace It Very Soon. If You Are Interested In Buying A Mattress Read Every Word In This Advertisement. If You Were To Come To Bellach's And Ask To See A Cheap Mattress — You'll Find Them On A Platform Behind The Store After We've Delivered A New Sealy Mattress Set To A Customer That Asked Us To Haul Away The Old One (Usually A "Bargain") — That Only Lasted A Year Or Two.

At Bellach's We Believe In Selling Quality. After All, If You Buy A Mattress From Us And It Does Not Hold Up, How Can We Expect You To Return For Any Other Home Related Purchases?

SEALY, SIMMONS, and SERTA are the only Names that are found in our Mattress Department. WHY? Because in California alone there are over 400 Manufacturers of Mattresses and Box Springs,, many factory direct. The only trouble is that they are in business one day offering fantastic, unrealistic Guarantees and out of business when you need them. Mattress construction is very important and you the consumer should know about it.

Any of our trained Mattress Experts can tell you all there is to know about the product. We will be happy to explain the differences in firmness and quality price points. As an example: many stores explain about the hundreds and thousands of coils that make up a mattress. But has it ever been pointed out that the number of coils are only important when speaking in reference to the gauge of wire and the number of turns in each individual coil. There are many types of springs on the market. Automobile Springs and Ball Point Pen Springs. Another important part of any quality mattress set is the Box Spring. The function of a box Spring is to give additional firmness to the mattress to absorb the shock and ensure to many years of service without having the mattress lose it's firmness or shape. At Bellach's every mattress advertised is in stock for immediate free 24 hour service delivery.

What type of firmness is the best for you? Come in and let our experts help you decide. One should sleep as if they were standing in perfect posture. The Mattress should fill in the crevices without preventing good blood circulation.

This week we are Featuring Sealy as the most outstanding value. Supreme Posture Firm Quality. King Size Sets complete for 229.95, Queen Size Sets for 159.95 and Twin and Double Sizes in complete sets for only 119.95. # Pro Football Jargon

Pro football has become increasingly specialized and complex and today's sportscasters are required to be veritable walking dictionaries of the game's terms. They must not only know the game but how and when to make use of the colorful gridiron jargon.

For the benefit of viewers not fully initiated into intricacies of pro football, explanations of some of that jargon follow:

Play-Action-Pass: A pass play on which the quarterback will fake a handoff for a running play before dropping back to pass.

SLANT: A pass pattern in which the receiver runs a diagonal line from his position to a point at the sideline six or eight yards downfield.

Slot: An offensive formation in which the tight end is moved four to six yards away from the tackle, leaving a space or "slot" between them. A back, termed the "slot back," will usually be in that space, two yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Flare: A pass pattern in which a back runs out of the backfield toward the sideline and downfield.

Draw: A running play where the quarterback drops back as if to pass, then hands off to a running back.

AUDIBLE: A verbal signal used at the line of scrimmage by the quarterback to change the play originally called in the huddle.

Blitz: An all-out charge of a defensive back into the offensive backfield with the snap of the ball in an attempt to tackle the quarterback before he has time to throw a pass.

Flood: The action of sending two or more receivers into the same area of the field to neutralize a zone pass defense. Also a formation with the wide receivers and tight end all lined up on the same side of the offensive set.

Set: The specific alignment of offensive backs and receivers in formation.

TACKLE ELIGIBLE: A rare formation where a tackle will be placed at the end of the line and become eligible to receive a forward pass.

Hook: A pass pattern when a receiver runs downfield and suddenly turns to face the quarterback, usually runs 8 to 12 yards downfield.

Becky Sharp Loose In British Society

By ALAN BUNCE

NEW YORK, N.Y. — When "Vanity Fair" opened the new "Masterpiece Theater" season Sunday on PBS, it had at least three important things going for it.

One is Susan Hampshire, who is back again glittering and tickling in the deceptively tough role of Becky Sharp. Another is the kind of brilliantly secure BBC cast that has already proven itself in adaptions like "The Spoils of Poynton."

And there's William Thackeray himself, whose novel of 19th-Century avarice and social climbing provides endless grist for the five hour-long episodes the weekly serialization is divided into.

TROLLOPE once called Thackeray's characterization of the opportunist Becky Sharp "among the greatest in world fiction," and although she may not emerge in such grand proportions from this BBC production, it is still a tricky part.

Miss Hampshire's Becky can play an outrageous coquette to British generals and get away with it, as she does in episode three just before Napoleon's army overtakes them. She can say "10,000 pounds" with delicious greed as she sells horses to desperate civilians.

Yet she is also a hollow symbol much of the time in this treatment, a missing emotional link in the lives of those around her. A viewer learns more about her from other people than from the lady herself. Essentially a ruthless adventuress, she often seems to be going against her own nature. She has to work at being a villain.

Her arena is the showy and avaricious British society Thackeray envisioned. As recreated here, everything seems heightened and slightly stylized, but with enormous authority. It is a comedy-drama of manners that depend on the sure quick strokes the company uses to establish the way of life. These players can tell you about a whole world of relationshipu in the ecchanges between equals, competitors, old and young.

AMELIA (Marilyn Taylorson), a spaniel-eyed lady of breeding, is credible in her mawkish subservience to a swaggering snob of a fiancee and later husband. If Jos (John Moffatt) were any more British in his harrumphing stammers he couldn't speak at all, as the saying goes, yet the part is no caricature. It is simply dramatic shorthand for one kind of man this society could produce, and what he assumed about himself and others.

The shock of going from Jos's bright house to the Dickensian gloom of Sir Pitt's hall, as Becky reports for work, is a good sample of the program's effective way with a scene switch. The plot moves with a noticeable dispatch, in early sections especially. Episode two has her telling a frantically proposing Sir Pitt, "I'm married already," but we don't wait around for an astonished reaction. Sometimes the rush forward gets too bustling, but performances stay intact.

THIS IS a big production for television: 60 speaking parts, more than 100 nonspeaking. Costumes are many, with Miss Hampshire alone wearing some 30 before she's through. As the book's subtitle indicates, it is "a novel without a hero." Whether Becky supplies a non-hero instead depends on your belief in her villainy. But it is certainly a picture of a shiny society's underbelly.
